UNION PACIFIC AFFAIRS.

The Main Line Making Money—Not So the Branches

OMAHA, Sept. 30.—When the Union Pacific receivers were appointed last October there was much speculation as to the condition of the company's affairs. Judges Sanborn and Caldwell, of the Eighth federal district, issued an order shortly afterward designed to make public the true situation. They ordered that a report be made on the condition of the Union Pacific interests, as the receivers found them when they took charge, including business transacted and balances of money. It has been almost a year since the road passed into the hands of receivers, but not until to-day has there been any official utterance on the part of the receivers of the line required by court.

Master in Chancery Cornish had views as to the manner in which the report should be made, and it required considerable work to have the comptroller of the system undo some of the supplemental reports which were filed with him. The report is signed by Oliver W. Mink, E. Ellery Anderson and F. R. Coudert, on the part of the receivers, and shows the consolidated statements of cash receipts and cash disbursements, and a statement of the financial operations of receivers of each of the dependent companies.

The report gives in detail receipts and disbursements for the various departments. The total disbursements on account of liabilities and business shows a grand total of $1,408,815; cash on hand $1,135,843. From Oct. 13 to 31, the gross earnings of the Union Pacific company for main and constituent lines were $2,078,793. Total receipts $2,079,537. Operating expenses $1,355,261. Master in Chancery Cornish, after verifying the figures and giving generally the manner in which the roads have been operated, says somewhat significantly:

"The results as shown by said statement are that while the trust properties have, as a whole, earned more than the cost of operation, several of the constituent properties have been operated at a loss. These deficiencies have necessarily been borne temporarily by the receivers out of the moneys received from the operation of the paying properties, and it has not yet been determined how these deficiencies of non-paying properties shall finally be borne, and if it shall be determined that these deficiencies or any portion of them shall be charged against any property other than those against which they occur, material changes in the resources of the paying properties, as indicated by said statement by actual operations, will result."

Night of Terror at Brainerd.

BRAINERD, Minn., Sept. 30.—A heavy rain set in yesterday morning and all fear from forest fires is now over. Friday night was a night of terror here. Fires had eaten their way into the city limits and a fierce gale was blowing the flames directly toward the central portion of the city. Hundreds were fighting flames all night and everyone was awake and anxious. Smoke was dense and the red glare of the angry flames reminded one of the Hinckley disaster. Scores of farmers have been burned out. Many came into the city, having lost all but the clothes on their backs.
