MORNING BREEZES

The winter calm of the Missoula midwinter was surely disturbed yesterday morning by a flicker of the edge of the storm which radiated from the region of the great lakes, according to the forecast of the weather man. The storm, however, had not been expected here, as it was predicted only for the region within a thousand miles of the lakes. A bit of it strayed over the range and took Missoula by surprise but it didn't bring with it the descent of temperature which afflicted east-side districts and the zero mark was not in danger over here. Contemplating the storm which we did have for a few hours, the Man About Town found comfort in the thought that we are outside the thousand-mile limit. It wasn't cold but it must be admitted that the wind did blkow. It was a suggestion, at least, of what was going on inside the thousand-mile radius and the suggestion was enough. He who sought winter had no difficulty in finding it yesterday morning.

SPLENDID SERVICE

Despite the storm, the boys who deliver The Missoulian were right on on the job yesterday morning and they plunged out into the wind with their loads as cheerily as if it were May. Their record of delivery was good; there were few complaints about the service yesterday and there were some patrons who were appreciative and thoughtful enough to telephone to The Missoulian office words of approval of the service of the boys. One of these messages came from away up the Rattlesnake and another came from the other end of the city. These represent the extreme limits of the delivery service and the people who got their papers out on the edge of the city had reason to feel satisfied for it was rough traveling between 4 and 5 o'clock yesterday morning. The man who picks up his newspaper in the morning and reads it comfortably at his breakfast does not often stop to think of the effort involved in getting it to him. But there were some people yesterday who did think of it and were thoughtful enough to say so. All of which is appreciated by the boys and The Missoulian.

SHOPPERS FARE OUT

But the storm lifted soon. Noon found the walks pretty well shoveled and the temperature higher, while the wind had forgotten the way over to western Montana. The morning spite of the weather man had evidently passed with the drinking of his coffee and he was a very decent sort of chap the rest of the day. The afternoon found the shoppers out in good Saturday force and the stores were alive with them. There was nothing to indicate that the worst storm of the winter had been sweeping over the city. It was calm and pleasant and the Saturday buyers had their customary soiree. The country folk were not as strongly represented as usual on Saturday but there were a good many of them in town during the afternoon. The woodhaulers thronged in with their racks of fuel and the coal men hustled to deliver the orders which the phone brought from households which the storm had taken unawares. It wasn't such very different Saturday after 10 o'clock in the morning. Bonner was down as usual, for the electric cars make it pleasant to come in any sort of weather.

ELKS ARE ALL COMFY

In their new home quarters the Elks were comfortable and snug yesterday; those who have a Saturday holiday found pleasure in the reading room and the billiard hall and in the evening the crowd was larger than usual. The new rooms are proving popular with the 800 men who wear the antlered badge and there are many plans afoot for making the lodge headquarters more enjoyable than they are now. There will be some informal functions during the winter. Exalted Ruler Rhoades has planned an Elks' dance at least once a month this winter and there are to be stein parties, at which each member will leave a souvenir stein for the adornment of the cafe of the building. Later there will be ladies' days in which the souvenirs left will be plates. All of these plans will be worked out as speedily as their details can be arranged and the winter promises to be cheery at the Elks' home.

RHOADES PRAISED

There are a good many visitors at the Elks' building these days; there are many people who want to see the building and to inspect it more carefully than was possible on the day of the formal dedication. All of these later visitors, as well as those who preceded them, are loud in their praise of Exalted Ruler Rhoades who led the campaign which resulted in the completion and the furnishing of the building. As a matter of fact, there were not many people who realized what a splendid structure was being erected while the work was going on. There are not many, even now, who realize what a tremendous effort was involved in carrying through the plans. It is well they do not for Jim Rhoades' head would be completely turned were they to know all he has done. As it is, he is receiving such praise as would upset the equipoise of an ordinary man. He takes it all calmly and devotes his energy to developing the plans which he has for making the building a success.

Notice.

People who took coats or hats by mistake at Elks' reception January 1, 1912, will please return same to Elks' building that they may find owner.

YOUNGER VETERANS HAVE GOOD TIME

OWEN H. ROWLAND CAMP INSTALLS OFFICERS AND ENJOYS SOCIAL SESSION.

Camp Owen H. Rowland, United Spanish War Veterans, enjoyed one of the best meetings since its organization at the Eagles' hall last night, the occasion being the installation of officers. The business session was a small part of the evening's entertainment, however, for elaborate plans had been made for a big time and things worked to the perfect satisfaction of all concerned. The installation was conducted by Department Commander Hedges and the ceremony was impressive. Then the camp was adjourned by the new camp commander, Charles E. Dodge, and the veterans forthwith proceeded to refresh themselves, there having been an abundance of all kinds, colors and sizes of things to eat and drink prepared. E. C. Mulroney carried through his part as toastmaster like the master veteran at the art he is, and called forth numerous splendid speeches. Will Cave, James Wallace, William Nipps, Charles Dodge, Lou Kennedy, Charles Hedger, J. T. B. Cameron and several others responded to the toasts which he proposed.

Then there were several athletic events of interest in which John McConville, Johnnie Richards, Charles Adelson and Corporal McBride of Fort Missoula participated. Frank Stevens of Company K of Fort Missoula did a contortion act for the veterans which was in the professional class. He also sang several songs. The veteran's quartet rendered several "solos" and was still singing merrily at a late hour to a good audience.

The meeting called out a big crowd of members from the city and many from out of town. The Bitter Root valley was especially well represented.

The following officers were installed: Charles E. Dodge, commander; James M. Osborne, senior vice commander; John McCarthy, junior vice commander; J. T. B. Cameron, adjutant; H. H. Montgomery, quartermaster; Frank L. Whitehead, officer of the day; Fred Reibold, officer of the guard; John O. Moe, chaplain; F. G. Farrell, color sergeant.

CARVER'S MOTHER DEAD.

A telegram was received yesterday from Officer E. M. Carver who left some days ago for Forest City, N. C., where he was called on account of the illness of his mother, stating that the illness had proved fatal. His mother died yesterday. Mr. Carver will leave the south for home Tuesday.

PRESIDENT ARRIVES FOR INSTALLATION

Julius Greis, grand president of the Montana Sons of Hermann, arrived in Missoula last evening on the Butte local. Mr. Greis is from Sheridan and has come to Missoula for the purpose of installing the recently-elected officers at the meeting of the order which is to be held at 8 o'clock this evening. Mr. Greis is well known to all of the members of the local lodge and his advent will do much to make the meeting this evening a success.

MIDWINTER CLASS TO ENTER

MEETING OF COMMITTEES IS HELD AND PUPILS ARE TO BE RECEIVED IN HIGH SCHOOL.

Last evening the city school board, the county board and the parents' committee met in the rooms of the chamber of commerce for the purpose of arriving at some decision in regard to the midwinter class which is soon to be graduated from the ward schools. The session was entirely amicable in every respect. There was a slight flareup over the question of whether the city board had been notified of the county board's decision not to accept the midwinter class this year, but, with this exception, everything went off nicely and the decision reached was agreeable to all present. There is no doubt but that the grade school graduates will be accepted by the county school, but the action will not establish a precedent and the grade schools will make arrangements in the future, so that they will not have a midwinter class to turn over to the high school.

After Chairman Evans of the county board and J. P. Lansing, chairman of the parents' committee, had procured a scuttle of coal and built up the fire, Mr. Lansing called the meeting to order. He asked Chairman Peat of the city board to state his side of the question. Mr. Peat stated that he was not in a position to say anything, as the matter had never been brought before the city board officially. Sid. J. Coffee concurred in this statement. A. J. Violette, secretary of the county board, took the floor and gave a review of the county board's side of the question. He showed the financial condition of the high school and the difficulty that would be experienced in finding room to accommodate the new pupils. He stated that the county commissioners had reduced their fund, which was barely sufficient to allow the building of the necessary additions to the school, by about $4,000 and that it would be impossible for the board to incure the additional expense.

Superintendent J. U. Williams reviewed the history of the midwinter class and stated that if the board had been notified far enough in advance it could have arranged so as to do away with it. Principal Stejer of the high school was next called on for some information and it developed during the course of his talk that the high school could accommodate the extra pupils by stretching things a little, and it then simmered down to a matter of the financial end. The county board did not desire to pay the money which the admission of the pupils would necessitate. It was thought that if the students were admitted it would be necessary to hire another teacher. The whole matter came much closer to solution when Sid. Coffee stated that as far as he was concerned the city board would pay the cost of another teacher, provided the county would take the class this winter.

W. R. Glasscock brought the meeting to a close by offering a motion to the effect that the chairman of each board appoint a committee to confer in regard to the matter and that the two committees be given power to act. His motion almost brought the meeting to a close, but not quite, as it was remarked by Secretary Violette that the majority of the county board lived outside the city and that it would have to be consulted in the matter. After considerable more discussion, the parents' committee was assured that the children would be cared for and the meeting adjourned. Chairman Peat then appointed Sid. J. Coffee, J. B. Henley and J. G. Ambrose to act as the committee from the city board. Chairman Evans has not yet appointed the representatives from the county board.

STATE EXAMINATIONS COMING THIS MONTH

BIRDS NOT ENTERED AFTER MONDAY

RULE OF POULTRY ASSOCIATION IS VERY PLAINLY STATED IN PREMIUM LIST.

On page 15 of the premium list for the first annual poultry show to be given by the Western Montana Poultry association here this week there appears a prominent paragraph signed by the secretary under the heading, "Notice to Exhibitors," which should be read and heeded by all fanciers intending to display birds at the show. Secretary Austin has been receiving letters every day this week asking the very question that this paragraph in the premium list was intended to answer. In fact, most of the inquiries received concerning the rules of the show are plainly answered in the premium list, and if fanciers would read the matter contained in the booklet more carefully they would save the secretary a great deal of trouble and there would not be any question as to the statements being correct, for all in the premium list are official.

The Important Notice.

The notice to exhibitors referred to above is one concerning the date and hour when all entries for the show must be in the show room to entitle them to compete for premiums and prizes. The notice reads as follows:

"All exhibits must be in the show room by midnight, Monday, January 8, 1912, unless delayed en route. Entries should be made on blanks furnished by the association, and must be received by the show secretary on or before 6 p. m., Monday, January 8. This rule will not be broken for any cause or for any person. We have placed the time of closing entries so late that everyone can make their entries at the regular time without any inconvenience whatever. Cash positively must accompany entries—they will not be entered otherwise. The hall will be open to receive specimens January 9, and birds should reach here on that date if possible, as the show will be cooped and weighed ready for the judges to begin their work Tuesday noon. The hall will be open to the public Tuesday morning. All express charges must be prepaid. Make all remittances payable to L. W. Austin, secretary-treasurer.

PEAT AND M'DONALD MOVE OFFICE

POLICE HEADQUARTERS IS NOW ON GROUND FLOOR OF CITY HALL.

Commissioner Peat and Pete McDonald were busy people yesterday afternoon. They superintended the transfer of police headquarters from the old fire hall to the new city hall, where they have chased Engineer Buck out of his front room. The location is a good one and will prove much better than the former police headquarters. In the basement of the building, six iron cots have been installed and they will be used for the purpose of "sleeping" any deserving people, who are without a place to spend the night.

Judge Small is now alone in his office and it seems quite lonesome there. The telephone numbers at the police station have not been changed, but Judge Small's office has been given a new number. Right on that telephone number is where the judge balks. He says that he doesn't mind losing the company so much, but that when he called up the telephone office to find out his new number, they told him it was No. 23.

COME RIGHT IN.

If there is anyone for whom I have made portraits who is not entirely satisfied, I want them to come right in and tell me so. I'll give them one or a dozen sittings absolutely free until they are pleased. It does not matter wheher the portraits were the highest-priced or the cheapest that I make. All must be in every way to your liking or I do not want you to keep them—and you are the sole judge. There will be no attempt to convince you that you like something that you know that you do not. Now, there is no catch to this. You will not be asked to place another order or anything of that sort. I simply want to emphasize the fact that my guarantee follows all my work for all time—not just until it is delivered and paid for. I want every person in western Montana to realize that when I guarantee my work to please and give satisfaction I mean it. Please remember that whenever I do your portrait work it must be to your liking or you will not be asked to receive it. My studio is run on the principle that you have a right to get just what you pay for, and I am here to furnish it.

The numbers on the program are: "Fairyland Waltz" and "Anchored," school chorus; "Stars of the Summer Night" and "Barcarolle," girls' glee club; "The Red Scarf" and "The Nights," school chorus; "The Faries' Moonlight Dance" and "The Fairy Revel," girls' glee club; "Morning Invitation," school chorus; reading, "The Sky Pilot;" Gwen. Mary Evans; Gwen's challenge, Aubrey Leahy; Gwen's canyon, Gae Pritchard; Canyon flowers, Margaret Wickes; Opening of the Swan Creek church, Lester Grill; The Pilot's last port, Ralph Bell. "Let Love Undying," school chorus; "God's Sentinels" and "Rest," girls' glee club; "A Day on the Water," school chorus. Accompanists: Beatrice Inch and Dorothy Wilkinson.

BOY SCOUTS CONVENE AT THE BUNNEY HOME

The Presbyterian Troop, Boy Scouts of America, held a rousing meeting at the home of W. H. Bunney on Friday evening. Thirty members were present and were entertained by Mrs. Bunney after the close of the meeting. The annual election of officers was held, Lester Cochran being chosen president; Rodger Trafford, vice president; Alfred Farmer, secretary, and David Roberts, treasurer. It was decided to appoint a committee on initiation. Archie Little, John Toole and Fred Hollenbeck were chosen to act on this committee.

PRESS AGENTS TALK OF THEIR SHOWS

At the Isis.

An exceptionally good program will be shown at the popular Isis theater this afternoon and evening. It is composed of three high-classed dramas and two right-speedy comedies. Heading this fine bill will be "The Fishermaid of Baily-David." It is a tale of an Irish fishing village. Kathleen, the daughter of an honest fisherman, meets Henry, the son of a New York broker, who is on a tour through the Emerald isle. Believing the stories of the handsome stranger, the pretty, little Irish lass gives her heart into his keeping. Kathleen's father, returning from the beach, sees the two lovers embracing. On Kathleen's return home he upbraids her and tells her she must have nothing more to do with the stranger, that he is far above her in worldly possessions and that their acquaintance can come to no good end. Believing her father is unjust in his judgment, she becomes angry and decides to go to America and search out her Yankee sweetheart. We see her on the rear deck of the steamer as she takes the last view of her old home. We then get some very good views of the ocean. We also see Kathleen land in New York—her fruitless search for her Yankee; then the story wends its way toward a very pleasing ending of how the little Irish lass reaches her old home again. It is a very pleasing story throughout and everyone will like it. "A Nicotine Conspiracy" is the next to be shown. Smokers who have been where they wanted a smoke and couldn't get it will appreciate the fun in this film. Her father didn't like the doctor, so they put up a joke on him. When the father took her away from civilization, the better to circumvent the doctor, she stole his cigars. The doctor arrives and begins smoking. The old gentleman is in a fever of desire for a smoke. At the right time the doctor hands over a cigar. The result is a wedding. The fun in this story lies in the efforts of the old gentleman to get along without a smoke and the way the doctor handled the situation. "April Fool." From the opening of this picture, one expects a more or less flat ending, but the audience will be completely "taken in" and finds itself most surprisingly fooled. The very flatness of the opening scenes after the two Hallroom boys see the offer made by a local paper of $200 for the best April fool joke was necessary and gives to the end an astonishing push that puts the picture over in fine shape. "The Chief's Daughter" is a very pleasing Indian story. It tells how a friendship between the white woman of the settlement and the cherished daughter of a chief was the means of bringing peace out of war. Mr. LeVasseur will sing two beautiful songs for your approval, and our unexcelled orchestra will be playing a new line of selections.
