Trade's proud empire hastens to swift decay.
—Johnson.

THE SOCIALISTS AND WAR

It becomes evident, as we get truer pictures of the war, that instances in which the socialists proved unpatriotic are few. Both in France and Germany, they rallied loyally to the standard. The dream of a world-family is still unattainable.

Because this is so, we are always inclined to regard with equanimity the loud anti-flag talk of American socialists. We will remember that at the outbreak of the Spanish war, you ran imminent risk, in going in to try to enlist, of being trampled to death by a horde of socialists, flying to the recruiting sergeant's desk.

RUSSIAN REVERSES.

Russian reverses were inevitable, so soon as the Germans massed any reasonable body of troops in East Prussia.

Historic clashes between Teuton and Slav has always ended one way and even without the genius of a Frederick, Wilhelm should have little difficulty in repelling the present Russian invasion.

Winter may soon close the campaign in that section. With the advent of spring, if the war is not ended meanwhile, a larger force of muscovites may enter East Prussia. His success or failure in the west will then determine the kaiser's fate. But so long as the odds are not more than five to one, the Germans can be counted on to dispose of the Russians very handily.

HELPING COTTON

The cotton trade is undoubtedly in a bad way. But so is copper and many other trades. We cannot see why bond issues should be legislated for any particular industry, unless all are helped.

Now and then, the southern democrat in congress gets a trifle sectional. It is a habit they are living down in gratifying fashion; but a habit still strong in them, on occasion.

Whether the government could or should step in at such a time is a moot matter. A growing American element is inclined to think it can and shall. But while the legality and wisdom of such procedure are in doubt, it would be well not to show too much favoritism.

Perhaps, after a beating or two more the czar will take to drink.

Neither Joffre nor Von Kluck appears to be in the Stallings class.

Now that the Boers have decided to fight under the British banner, the kaiser lets the cat out of the bag. It was he formed the plan by which "Bobs" won the Boer war.

Incidentally, in declaring and enforcing prohibition all over his empire by a stroke of his pen, the czar has the American prohibition party backed off the map.

It may yet develop that the kaiser has up his sleeve a siege gun that will shoot from Ostend to Dublin.

SENTIMENT VS. SENSE

The Montana Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage embraces, to our personal knowledge, many noble women of model characters, some of whom are undoubtedly sincere. But this association has reprinted, in sober good faith, and scattered broadcast, an article from The New York Sun, which appears to us to be about as good an argument for suffrage as ever was printed. The article drags in "Mother." Our mothers are always available for penny-a-line ten-twent'-thirt' playwrights, moving picture artists and tin-selled campaign orators. When any cause lapses, mother and the dear old starry banner are called upon. But in most of their class of sentiment, there is very little sense. Read this bit from The Sun, laid before you by the Montana Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage as an argument:

> Our Mothers, you whom we honor tomorrow, because of us you have won no fame in the public arena. You have played the game of life for higher stakes; self-abnegation and self-sacrifice have been your lot. They were the portion of the Christ in whose footsteps you have followed. Your goal has been spiritual achievement, not worldly success.
> Tomorrow your sons and daughters, careless and strong and young, will arise in the gates and call you blessed. When the church bells ring throughout the land fold your worn hands and breathe a prayer for us all, your children. We need your intercession sadly, for many of us have come a bitter distance since we learned to whisper at your knee, "Our Father, Which Art in Heaven." Some of us have tasted the dregs in the cup. * * *
> Oh, Mothers, our Mothers, what have you not endured for us, in your bodies, in your hearts, and in your souls? As we pause to pay tribute to you there rises a lump in the throat and we cannot see because our eyes are bl'nd with tears. The ground upon which we are standing is holy ground. Your halo is the connecting link between earth and heaven. Do not discard it for a wreath of dusty laurel leaves. Blessed are you among wo nen today, for of all women you have chosen the better part.

Now, to an argument like this, there is always one cogent reply: That "Mother" was what she was, not because she did not vote but in spits of the facte that she did not vote. Mother could have been happier and sweeter and here lived far longer, if she had had a vote. For not a few of us remember mothers who suffered deeply as the direct result of man-made laws—selfish, one-sided, all-for-one-sex laws—which woman will wipe off the statute book, when she gets the ballot.

The dear old Mother argument is out of date. It implies that we who favor suffrage either had no mothers or did not appreciate them. You will find, if you look into this fight, that most men who favor suffrage do so because they remember the deal "Mother" got under the present made-for-man system.

On the Spur of the Moment

By ROY K MOULTON.

The Fall Housecleaning.

The beds are piled up in the barn and pa sleeps in the sink.
Us kids sleep in the bathtub, which is pleasant, I don't think.
The kitchen range is inside out, the carpets upside down,
We've got the fiercest lookin' house, I guess in this man's town.

For 'most a week our pa and ma ain't said a pleasant word.
I shouldn't be surprised at all if a divorce occurred.
Pa says it is a doggone shame and makes him mighty sore.
It seems to him the gol dum house was clean enough before.

We're camping out and eatin' all our meals now standin' up.
It's been a week since we have had a real clean knife or cup.
Pa says what is the doggone use of diggin' in like sin,
When in a week, the house will be all dirtied up ag'in?

Us kids get licked three times a day
if we need it or not.
It's dangerous to stand around in almost any spot.
The hired girl resigned her job when ma had just begun.
Housecleanin' is hygienic, but it surely ain't no fun.

Some Peace Casualties.

We lamp the following in the news of the day:

"James O'Keefe, a janitor, was burned last night when a bowl of hot soup spilled on him when he bumped a man carrying the liquid while wrestling with a fellow roomer."

"James F. Yates volunteered to move a neighbor yesterday. When the wagon was loaded with furniture Yates got on to ride to the new home. On the way the branch of a tree struck the piano and pushed it over on Yates. He was injured about the back and neck."

"While ringing a bell standing upon the upper platform of a windmill at a charivari party at the home of a newly-married couple, Alva Moore was shot in the breast by some unknown celebrant."

"Haste to close his desk in his office resulted disastrously for John C. Boepple. Boepple said he pulled down the roller top of his desk with his left hand, but neglected to remove his left hand from underneath it. An examination revealed that several small bones on his right hand had been fractured."

Oh, peace and neutrality, where is thy boasted security?

Signs of the Times.

The children are not so very particular after all. They will probably be sat'sfied with American-made toys.

Apparently nothing decisive will happen to Turkey until Thanksgiving.

South African Boers donate all the tobacco used by English soldiers in Europe. It wasn't so back in 1899-1901.

Help the Stomach Digest Your Food

When the stomach fails to digest and distribute that which is eaten, the bowels become clogged with a mass of waste and refuse that ferments and generates poisons that are gradually forced into the blood, causing distress and often serious illness.

Most people naturally object to the drastic cathartic and purgative agents that shock the system. A mild, gentle laxative, positive in its effect and that will quickly relieve constipation is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, sold by druggists at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle. It does not gripe or cramp, but acts easily and pleasantly and is therefore the most satisfactory remedy for children, women and elderly persons. For a free trial bottle write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 451 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.—Adv.

NATURALIZED CITIZENS BETTER STAY AWAY FROM CONTINENT

Washington, Oct. 14.—Considerable concern was manifested at the state department today over the status of American citizens, both native and naturalized, who were caught in belligerent countries by the outbreak of the European war and drafted for military service because they or their fathers were born subjects of such countries.

This has occurred in countries with which the United States has no naturalization treaties and has called forth a warning, issued to foreign-born elements in the United States by the department against visits to Europe at this time.

HORRORS OF THE WAR TOLD IN LETTER TO COLVILL

A tiny cross-section of the horror which is Europe is described in a letter received today by H. C. B. Colvill. The letter was sent by a relative of Mr. Colvill, living in a little village near London. Though far from the seat of war, the little hamlet has been whirled into the terror and tragedy of the conflict. Like other quiet, removed towns throughout Europe, the ordered ways it has followed for centuries have been twisted by the death-grapple of the European powers.

The author of the letter writes that she is caring for a Belgian woman and her two little daughters, all refugees from the war-swept land. The three are the only survivors of a family that was typically large before the war broke out.

All of the children save the two little girls have been killed, and the father is listed as missing.

The girls, both mere infants, have had their hands cut off by the German invaders, the writer says. The mother is crazed by grief over the loss of her children and the mutilation of the two babies and by anxiety for her husband.

Other families in the English village are caring for other refugees, the letter says. Almost every family has its guests, and conditions there undoubtedly are typical of conditions throughout Europe.

Makes Face Young— Tightens Love Ties

A fretful expression, a wrinkled face and a faded complexion, do more to drive the male members from home than is commonly supposed. It was one of my greatest difficulties to appear smiling, fresh and elegant when my dear ones were with me. But I have overcome all that. I have changed my mental attitude and I now find it second nature to look cheerful. Due partly to this, partly ot a remarkable treatment recommended by a friend, my appearance has so improved I look fifteen years younger than before.

A simple face lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half-pint witch hazel, proved a wonderful wrinkle-chaser. I still use this occasionally. To renovate my complexion I purchased an ounce of ordinary mercolized wax at my druggist's and before using this up, a marvelous transformation had taken place. It was like removing an unsightly mask, revealing a new face, a youthful complexion of distinctive delicacy, clear, white and velvety. I merely applied the wax like cold cream before retiring, washing it off mornings. Ten days' treatment sufficed.—"Aurilla" in Clubwoman.—Adv.

HOW RIVAL ARMIES LINE UP IN THE EAST

This map shows the position of the warring armies in Germany, Russia and Austria. In the north the Russians claim to have won a sweeping victory near the river Niemen. In the extreme south the Russians claim to be defeating the Austrians in Galicia. Between these two points there has not been much fighting during the past few days.

SNAKE CHARMER LURES BOY OF 19 TO RUIN

Chicago, Oct. 14.—Clarence McCormick, a Missouri farmer boy, aged 18, and Mrs. Ruth McCullough, a snake charmer, for love of whom McCormick shot and killed Irvin Mellott, started tonight back to Ottumwa, Iowa, to stand trial for murder.

McCormick was inspired by the charms of Mrs. McCullough, to join her street show. Mellott, son of a wealthy family, lured by the excitement of the traveling show, had just become its owner and McCormick was to act as a barker.

To get money to wed Mrs. McCullough, who was to get a divorce, McCormick shot and killed Mellott. McCormick and Mrs. McCullough then walked to Hedrick, Iowa, stole a ride on a freight train to Monmouth, Ill., and came to Chicago on a passenger train.

They were arrested today just after they had spent the last of the money taken from Mellott. McCormick exonerated Mrs. McCullough.

BROTHERHOOD OF ST. ANDREW.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 14.—Delegates representing local chapters of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, the great laymen's organization of the Episcopal church, have gathered here in large numbers from all sections of the country for their 20th annual national convention. The sessions were formally opened today and will be continued over next Sunday.

MUNSTERBERG'S HEAD SOUGHT BY ENEMIES

Boston, Oct. 14.—Nothing less than the official head of Hugo Munsterberg, professor of psychology at Harvard, will please some of the alumni, who have been irritated by the activity of the brilliant scholar in his pro-German cause in America.

Dean Briggs has received at least written demand that the Harvard authorities dispiace the professor immediately on pain of losing a great bequest already placed in the writer's will.

The man to name this condition is Clarence Wiener, formerly of Philadelphia, but now head of the Wiener news agency, 64 Strand, London. He was in Harvard in 1896 and 1897, and was on the staff of F. D. Grant in Porto Rico as captain after the Spanish war.

Munsterberg said tonight that he had offered his resignation to President Lowell.

"I sent my resignation to President Lowell so that there might be no embarrassment in the matter and the faculty be left free to act without having to consider my feelings," he said.

Harvard has always allowed her professors the widest latitude in discussing public questions. But there is unquestionably considerable feeling among Harvard graduates that he has overstepped the bounds in his patriotic outbursts. So far no formal movement has been tackn to oust the professor.

Several of the Harvard magazines have contained letters and editorials objecting to the outspokenness of some professors. The Harvard Monthly in its current number criticised Dr. Eliot for giving his views. There was some talk of muzzling the instructors by censoring their utterances, and the Harvard Crimson had an editorial objecting to such a procedure.

Many suggestions were made to the governing body of the college that interviews and articles be censored, but Dean Briggs said the college had never interfered with a free and open expression of opinions upon public matters by the professors and never would.
