though a Whig, was elected over both the regular candidates on an anti-Papery hurrah. He had been an anti-Catholic harangueer and had been imprisoned for creating a public disturbance while acting in that capacity, and this made him Mayor. The Governor pardoned him the day before election but he was still in jail when elected. The vote stood:—Barker 1848, McCutcheon (Whig) 982, Guthrie (Loco) 1,575.

MAYOR OF PITTSBURG INAUGURATED, AND TAKEN BACK TO PRISON.—It has already been announced that Joseph Barker, hitherto known as the "street preacher," had actually been elected Mayor of Pittsburg while a prisoner in jail under sentence of six months imprisonment, for delivering immoral and indecent harangues to crowds of people assembled in the streets. It was also stated, that a telegraph dispatch had been received from Harrisburg, announcing that Gov. Johnston had pardoned him, but up to Friday morning it had not reached Pittsburg, and some doubts are entertained whether the announcement was correct that a pardon had been granted.

Friday morning being the time appointed by the charter, by the meeting of the new council and the inauguration of the Mayor, they assembled, and the sheriff brought the Mayor into the council chamber from the jail, to be inaugurated, when he was greeted with immense cheering by the friends assembled in the lobby.

The oath of office was administered to him by Judge Patton, who a few months ago passed sentence upon him. The Judge made the following remarks on administering the oath and immediately withdrew:

"I hope, sir, you will more than realize the expectations of your friends, by an honest, impartial and energetic discharge of your duties."

Mr. Barker, after having been sworn in, made the following speech:

Gentlemen of the Select and Common Councils: In obedience to the express wishes of my fellow-citizens, I have appeared before you and taken the oath prescribed by law as the Mayor of this great city.

Being placed in this high position among my fellow-citizens, may I ask your kind indulgence for a few moments, to express my heartfelt gratitude to the firemen who sympathized with me in the hour of trial.

Such sympathy and friendship cannot and shall not be forgotten or lightly esteemed, while I have a feeling heart or a beating pulse; to the citizens of Pittsburg I return my sincere thanks for their kindness to me and mine, and shall try and deserve a continuance, by a faithful discharge of my duty.

Gentlemen: On entering upon the new and untried duties of the Mayoralty, I am sensible that in order to be successful, I shall need your aid and advice. May I have it? I believe I shall, and under this belief shall bend every faculty of body and mind to advance the best interests of our growing city, knowing no party but such as keep the laws.

After the address, he handed in a list of his appointments of the officers of the Corporation, and was conducted back to jail by the Sheriff, to await the receipt of the promised pardon of the Governor.—Tribune.

STEAMER DOLPHIN SUNK—LIVES LOST.—We learn that the steamer Dolphin, Capt. Hazlet, bound for Pittsburg, with 200 tons of iron from the Cumberland River, struck a rock last Monday evening in the Ohio, just above Hawesville, and sunk immediately. We are pained to add, that this accident was accompanied with the loss of three lives, and perhaps more. We did not learn the names of the persons drowned, but a passenger who was on the boat informed us that they were deck passengers, one of whom had the mania potu. The steamer had a flatboat in tow at the time, which was the means of saving many lives, as the boat took in two minutes after she struck. The Dolphin was a stern-wheel craft, belonging to Pittsburg, and will be a total loss. She struck on the rock known as the Lady Washington Rock, it having sunk a boat of that name some years since. The hull sunk instantly, but the cabin floated off, and was secured by the crew by means of a line and made fast to the shore. The cabin passengers barely had time to get on the flatboat alongside when the hull disappeared. The bow of the boat, however, is above water, as it still stuck on the rock. The passengers saved their baggage by fishing it out of the water. The crew of the boat saved the upper works, furniture, &c., and carried them to the shore.—Louisville Courier.

☞ A daughter of Hiram Cass came to her death in Barton, Vt., by tying a strap around her own neck and around the neck of a pet calf, which ran away and choked the child.

☞ The following is from the New Orleans Picayune, of Christmas day:

BEAUTY AND THE BEAST.—At the New England Supper, as "the wee hours" approached, the following toast was proposed:

"THE STATE OF MISSISSIPPI—She has sent her best apprentice."

Judge Ballard moved as an amendment the addition of—

"And we have made him a master workman."

It is needless to say that the toast was drank with all the honors. Mr. Prentiss replied in his happiest style. He spoke with deep feeling of his attachment to Mississippi, of the honor, and chivalry of its manly gentlemen of all parties, in fact, we quite forget that beautiful polysyllable representative in his eloquent eulogium. In the course of his speech he told two of his electioneering reminiscences which "set the table in a roar." He said that six, or eight, or twelve years ago, he did not like to be particular about dates, he went to Washington thinking he was a member of Congress, but he found out his mistake and came home as fast as possible to get right. He made speeches in fifty four out of the fifty six counties in the State. He sent printed bills containing his appointment twenty-six days ahead of him. Now there was a caravan just at this time perambulating the State, and the proprietor availed himself of the gathering collected by Mr. P.'s notices.—This, by the way, said Mr. P., was quite in the ordinary course of things, as an observer of political excitements must have remarked, that a caravan of some kind or other usually follows in their wake.

"The first time Mr. P. saw the elephant was in —— county, in the northern part of the State, near the Alabama line. It is one of the most beautiful counties in Mississippi, its population chiefly from South Carolina, and though they had voted against him on the previous election, he hoped their State right notions would bring them into his support at this contest, when he did not run so much the candidate of a party as the Representative of the State whose dignity and sovereignty had been outraged in his person. At the appointed hour he found over three hundred ladies and gentlemen assembled to hear him. He was in "high feather," and began to speak with more than usual energy. The audience listened with marked attention, and he felt sure of bagging his game. When he had spoken about an hour he began to observe some of the bystanders looking over their shoulders, and this movement was gradually followed by more and more of his audience. He began to think he was growing dull, and endeavored to rouse himself up to more animation, but it was no go.—He at length looked in the popular direction, and there, to his horror, just coming over the hill, was the elephant, dressed in his scarlet trappings and oriental splendor, with a boudah on his back, occupied by the musicians, and in the rear came a long line of wagons and cages. A foolish piece of vanity not to be outdone by the elephant came over him, and he continued to talk, appealing to the people in the name of the State, their patriotism, &c., &c.; but all in vain. A few well mannered persons remained, but evidently they were retained only by their politeness.

He found it was no use. So he said: "Well ladies and gentlemen, I am beaten; but I have the consolation of knowing that it is not by my competitor. I will not knock under to any two-legged beast, but I yield to the elephant." To be sure, he was at first provoked by the preference shown to the beast above himself, but on reflection he was inclined to think the people were right. A Bengal tiger or an India elephant was an animal to be seen once in a lifetime but politicians they could see every day.

He said, however, he had his revenge a few days after. He found that he must come to some understanding with the caravan. So he agreed with the proprietor that at Holly Springs he would address the people under the great awning for one hour, and then he would give way to the monkey and the clown. He hoped this would not be charged on him as "bargain and corruption." At any rate, it was honestly carried out by both parties. Between himself and the caravan, a large assemblage was gathered under the immense awning. One of the cages was converted into a rostrum. He heard a sound which resembled a growl, and learned that the hyena was his nearest listener. There were large augur holes in the top of the box, for the admission of air. He commenced speaking, and when he reached the blood and thunder portion of his speech, he ran his cane into the cage and called forth a most hideid yell from the enraged animal, at the same time he gesticulated violently with the other hand. The effect was electric; he called down the house in a perfect tempest of enthusiasm. From this time he had it all his own way.—He hurled his anthemas at his foes, and enforced them by the yells of his neighbor. The hyena was good for a hundred votes, and he thus converted a mischief into a profit.

Mr. P. here attempted to draw a moral, but as that is always the dullest portion of a public speech, we omit it.

FLITTING FANCIES.—There is a hidden fountain of thought and feeling in my soul, which for years I have been vainly trying to pour forth; thoughts of brightness and beauty—of love and hatred—life and death—down, far down in the hidden caverns of the heart. Like a subterranean stream, it is there; rushing onward, and onward darkly and fearfully, but without an echo. Strange and mysterious forms are lingering beside it—tempests of awful blackness sometimes hover over it, till my whole being is shaken with their power.

Anon, the storm is hushed—and forms of radiant loveliness are there—scattered pieces, which memory has gathered in some brighter home, to fill us with sad yearnings for what I have lost. Snatches of old melodies come over me, familiar, yet unlike aught of earth. Gentle tones that seem like a stream of remembered music, and glimpses of friends that were with me in some other and happier land. This is not the commencement of my being, for my soul is filled with a dim, faint image of another existence; it is no vain dream that has been over me, picturing sketches of another life; it is even so—I have existed before, and my heart yearnings are for those who once loved and are lost. It is they who sit beside me in my lonely hours, invisible, yet ever near, they who wander with me in dream-land, and whisper of a time when we shall meet again.—Goethe.

☞ One of the very best speeches of the present session is that of Mr. SCHENCK, of Ohio, in defence of Mr. WINTHROP, from the attacks of Giddings and others, with reference to his appointment of the Committees of the last Congress. It is a complete vindication of Mr. WINTHROP and his Committees, from all that the illiberality and malignity of the Free Soilers have laid to their charge. The speech is short, and our readers will be glad to see it in full—as we intend they shall, next week.

☞ We are requested to say that the Committee appointed at a meeting of the Plattsburgh Volunteers to prepare a petition to Congress, will meet at this place, to-morrow. The Town Committee that have not reported, are requested to do so by that time.

☞ Hon. NOBLE S. ELDERKIN, Speaker of the New York House of Representatives, is a native of this town. His present residence is in St. Lawrence County.

☞ The "Advocate of Progression" is the title of a democratic paper, which is to succeed the "Whitehaller," at Whitehall, N. Y.—Wm. A. Hotchkiss, Publisher.

☞ The Boston Chronotype has been discontinued, for want of support.

☞ The advertisement from the Patent Office (in another column)—owing, perhaps, to the changes in the name of our paper—was sent to the Free Press, Middlebury, instead of Register. The Free Press was discontinued some years since, and has no successor, other than our paper—which had the Government advertising under HARRISON. It was then called the "People's Press."

Prof. Webster Indicted for Murder.

The Grand Jury of Suffolk County have found a true bill against Dr. Webster. The indictment was presented to the Municipal Court, on Saturday last.

The indictment, (says the Boston Bee,) contains four counts, in all of which Prof. Webster is charged with murdering Dr. Parkman, on the 23d of November. In the first count the deed is alleged to have been done with a knife; in the second with a hammer; in the third with his hands and feet; and in the fourth by some means to the jury unknown. These cover all the ways in which Dr. Parkman, from the evidence given in, might have been killed.

At one o'clock Saturday afternoon, Dr. Webster was brought into the Municipal Court, and notified by the clerk that the grand jury had found a bill against him for the murder of Geo. Parkman.

He was then ordered to be committed to the Commonwealth's jail, to be kept in safe keeping until the final order in his case.

The Courier says the trial will not probably be had before May or June.

Another wonderful cure of Scrofula effected by BRANDT'S INDIAN PURGATIVE EXTRACT.—A bottle of which has been given to a little child. Positively three small bottles of Sarsaparilla that was ever used.

MR. W. T. Walters—Dear Sir: I take pleasure in informing you that the four bottles of BRANDT'S PURGATIVE EXTRACT which I have used, have had the desired effect. For more than a year I was prostrated with that most of all diseases, Scrofula, in the glands of my neck. So severely was I affected by the many tumors and running sores, that my general health was thought to be much that I was the victim of consumption. No medicine has been purchased of me during the time I was afflicted with the disease, and I feel assured that I was the victim of consumption. No medicine I have purchased for my child of three years old, and I feel assured that the use of the most skillful physicians for two years, and other friends, and I spent much of my time as a Surgeon and Sailor, and all to no benefit whatever. But now, I am rejoiced to be able to say, that by the use of Brandt's Purgative Extract I am restored to perfect health, and I derive great confidence recommending it to my friends as a certain specific for Scrofulous affections, and all impurities of the blood.

The following is from the New York Evening Mirror, May 25, 1848:

"WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY.—A name of the Panacea advertised for the cure of human ailments does it none in which we have more confidence than Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. We received it as one of Nature's very best remedies—simple, safe, pleasant to take, and almost certain to cure all human and pulmonary affections. We have witnessed its wonderful effects, because that it is regarded as hopelessly desperate, and we can honestly, and we do, commend it as one of the best medicines in the world."

The following is from a very respectable source.

BOSTON, NOV. 25, 1846.

Mr. S. W. Foster—Dear Sir, Although averse to placing my name before the public in the newspapers, I tender this testimonial voluntarily, and you are at liberty to make use of it as you may please. In the fall of 1845, I took a violent cold, which brought on a severe cough that took hold upon my lungs. I had a pain in my breast, I raised no phlegm, but spitted blood, and was reduced so low that I was confined to my room, night and day, and was thought by my friends to be in a decline. I had tried many things, but without any benefit, and was given up by my friends and physicians, when I was advised to try Dr. Wistar's Wild Cherry Balsam, and after having taken five bottles I found myself nearly or quite well, and to this date, I think, I have present health. I shall be happy to give further information to any one who will call on me.

Respectfully yours,

SEVERE SPRAIN CURED.

STOCKBRIDGE, CO. June 7, 1849.

Gentlemen,—In the month of January last I sprained my ankle, the pain was so severe I was confined, and I know who has suffered from a sprain. I applied diffrent things all without relief, until your Liniment was recommended. It relieved the ankle, and the pain soon ceased, the swelling went down, and in six days I was entirely well. I would recommend to the afflicted to procure and not to be without it.

From the distinguished Gen. E. Hodskington, M. D., Greenville, New York, as to the virtues of Cutbeth's Sarsaparilla, and the Shaker

FLUID OF VALERIAN.

Greenville, Green co., N. Y., 1

Nov. 18, 1848. 5

Messrs. E. Brinley & Co.—

Dear Sirs: You have I believe, the Proprietary of the Shaker Fluid Extract of Valerian, and Cutbeth's Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla. From my experience of the value of the Fluid Extract, having used it within the last two or three weeks, in my capacity as Assistant under Dr. Hodskington, of the Jefferson County Lunatic Asylum, Mass., I feel anything to be without it in my practice.

I have written a bottle of the medicine to Dr. John Eby, of the place, who informs me that he gives it a trial; it has done so, and is more enthusiastic in its praise. The same is true of Dr. J. B. Houghton, who is now using it in his family. As to the Sarsaparilla, my community are aware of its efficacy in the treatment of this article. But from my knowledge of it, and the effects I have seen, I feel equally following their use. I consider it my duty as a Physician to do so, and I remain

Truly your obt. servant,

GEO. E. HODSKINGTON, M. D.

LIVERWORT, TAR & CANCHALAGUA

Probably no article has ever enjoyed a wider popularity in all diseases of the Lungs than TAR. In the shape of PAIN WATER, FOR FUMIGATIONS, and PLASTERS, it has been used almost from time immemorial. LIVERWORT, too, has been universally regarded as one of Nature's choicest herbs. But it was reserved for Prof. ROGERS to discover the art of extracting, by a new chemical process, their peculiar virtues, and combining them in a sure, safe, and delicious manner, so as to present a preparation unrivalled for its concentration, energy, simplicity and innocence. This he has done in his syrup of LIVERWORT, TAR AND CANCHALAGUA. The cures it has made in Pulmonary Diseases which it is effecting daily, are astonishing even Physicians themselves; and were they not among our own friends and neighbors, whom we see every day, they would be almost beyond belief.

☞ OF CANCHALAGUA, we intend to speak particularly another time.

CURE OF SEVERE COUGH AND CONSUMPTIVE TENDENCY, WELL ATTESTED.

CHESTER FACTORY, MASS., Oct. 16, 1847.

Dr. Bradley—Sir—Having been attacked some two months since with a severe affection of the lungs, attended with a severe cough, that was likely to become fatal, my friends expressed their opinions freely, that I was fast going down with the Consumption. I purchased of Messrs. Root, Briggs & Co., a bottle of Bradley's Hoarhound Balsam, and found immediate relief—I have now finished the second bottle, and call myself well. It is but two weeks since I commenced taking the Balsam, yet I have gained five pounds in flesh, and the affection in the lungs appears to have wholly vanished. I cheerfully recommend the medicine to others that have any kind of disease of the Lungs.

I remain yours truly,

ALEXANDER FRANCIS.

Dr. Bradley—Sir—We have witnessed the effect of the Hoarhound Balsam on Mr. Francis, and do not hesitate to recommend it to others of like disease, &c.

Yours truly,

ROOT, BRIGGS & Co.

Plattsburgh Volunteers.

SECRETARY OF STATE'S OFFICE, Montpelier, Dec. 12th, 1849.

At the recent session of the General Assembly a resolution was adopted, requiring the Secretary of State "to ascertain the "names of all the survivors of those who "volunteered their services to repel the "British in their invasion of Plattsburgh "in 1812, who have had no compensation "for said services, and also to ascertain "the amount of services, so rendered, and "the amount of moneys paid by them, and "report to the Legislature at its next session," and also a resolution requesting "such volunteers" to furnish to the Secretary of State, previous to the first day of September, 1850, the information contemplated in the foregoing resolution, by "transmitting to his office such evidence "as they may be able to obtain in the "premises."

Enquiries having been addressed to me from various parts of the State as to the proper construction of the resolutions and the mode of furnishing the information therein named, I thought it advisable to make publication of the following directions, name y:

In all cases where volunteers were organized into a company, some officers of the company should make out, and forward to the Secretary of State, a list or roll of the company, containing the names, the term of service actually rendered, and the amount of moneys paid out by them respectively.—The accuracy of the roll, and the fact that no compensation had been received for such services and expenses, should be verified by the affidavit of the officer, and also by the affidavit of each officer and private as to his own services, so far as such affidavit can be procured.

In cases where volunteers were not organized into a company, each volunteer should make out and forward to the Secretary of State, a statement of his services and expenses, verified by his own oath, and the affidavits of one or more witnesses, if such witnesses can be procured.

The resolutions are construed to embrace volunteers, although they were not able to arrive in season to be actually engaged in the battle.

Newspapers in this State will confer a favor upon the Volunteers by publishing this notice.

BROOKS & BROTHER'S AXES and JOINERS TOOLS, for sale by Oct. 30. R. I. FULLER.

FOR SALE.

The house and two home lots formerly owned by President Davis, afterwards by Moses Cutler, and at present by the subscriber. The lots, together, have about two hundred feet of front upon the street leading to Weybridge, and the same upon the street leading to Bridport.

The main building is fifty feet, on its eastern front, and forty five in its southern, and is in good repair. The barn, wood-house, well and out-houses are nailed with it by a covered way. Much expense has been laid out upon this situation.—which, being in full view of the College hill and buildings, and over against the Academy Green, must improve with these public improvements around it which have long been contemplated. A moderate outlay would adapt it to comfortable and agreeable occupation by two genteel families. For a family with boarders, its position and the capacity and number of the rooms, offer unusual advantages. The smaller home lot—about 80 feet front and 183 feet deep—would be excluded from the purchase if desired, and a large deduction made for the purchase money.

Possession given in May. Some furniture adapted to the domical might be bought with it—also a valuable young cow.
