THISTLES.

—A man who was very sick while crossing the ocean describes it as a sic transit.

—A paper say the times are so bad, and payment so rare, that the girls complain that the young men cannot even pay their addresses.

—Be yourselves are. Ape to great sense. Be content to pass for what you are worth. A good nickel is better than a counterfeit dollar.

—There is nothing more deferential and insinuating than the waggle of a little dog's tail in the presence of a big dog with a bone.

—Josh Billings says he knows people who are so fond of argument that they will stop and dispute with a guide board about the distance to the next town.

—Did you come near drowning? said a man to a toper whom he saw sucking away at a julep. What do you mean, sir? Because I see you clutch at straws.

—A sweet little boy only eight years old, walked into a teachers' examination at Oswego, and bawled out: Annie, your fellow is down to the house.

—Two oysters in a gallon of lake warm fluid at a church fair are no longer called stews, but aquariums; and some people think there are too many to the water.

—March breezes says Todd to Fibbs when they met one cold spring day. So does my wife, exclaimed Fibbs, as he raised his hat and disclosed a large scar made by a potato-masher.

—A Pittsburgh church wants to get rid of its minister because he keeps wine in his cellar, and it is believed that this interferes with the conduct of divine service.

—Are we to pray for a king? wearily asks the Democratic editor; and John Morrissey replies: That depends upon what you discard—but I'd rather chance it with a steady supplication for an ace.

—A Cincinnati physican sued another man simply for calling him on a postal card. A liar, a quack, a thief, a murderer, a rascal, a ruffian, a villain, a forger, a perjurer, an ignoramus, a pretender, and a general beat.

—If you can't keep awake, said a parson to one of his sleepy hearers, when you are drowsey, why don't you take a pinch of snuff? I think, was the shrewd reply, that the snuff should be put into the sermon.

—A Western editor appeals to his delinquent subscribers by saying: This week we have taken in potatoes and pickles on subscription. Now, if you will bring us some vinegar for the pickles, and some wood to roast the potatoes, we can live till artichokes get big enough to dig.

—An Ohio editor sat down the other day and commenced a powerful editoral headed, How Shall we Rise? After writing half a column he left his chair for a few minutes, and when he returned he sat down pretty emphatically on a bent pin placed there by the devil. He soon found an answer to his question.

—There had been a discussion about the cost of a dress, and she was wrathy It all very well, she pouted, for you to expect a woman to be an angel; but I'd have you to know, sir, that I wouldn't be even an angel unless my wings could be cut goring. There, now!

—While he was sitting on the woodbox and chewing the bitter cud of reflection, a man with a brass watch chain and a three dollar set of glass diamonds, entered the car, and six of the woman lifted their satchels down and moved close up to the side of the car. Such things are not right but they will be done.

—An amusing typographical error occurred in the notice of the sale of unclaimed express goods. The company desired to inform the owners that the goods would be sold on a certain day, unless parties should claim them and pay the lawful charges. Unpleasantly the first line lawful dropped out before printing the posters, thus leaving the notice containing much truth when the owners read awful charges.

An Irishman, to whom some wonderful story was told on the authority of a penny newspaper, declined to believe it, saying he distrusted all he saw in the cheap prints. Why shouldn't you believe the cheap papers, as soon as any other? he was asked. Because, was his ready answer, I don't think they can afford to speak the truth for the money.

—Nasby, in his recent epistle on the electoral commission, doubtless expresses the anguish of the class of Democrats he represents when he says: I am equal to a great deal uv grief—I hev philosophy enuff for almost anything. I have dropt a bottle afore I hed mastered my lips at its strength, givin much, and hev seen its golden contents flow sadly away on the sidewalk lost forever. I hev busted a jug Saturday nite, after all the groceries were shut up, and I hev failed to borrow a dollar when I thot I hed a ded sure thing onto it. All these woes I hev survived, but tell one I cannot. The agony is too long drawn out. I will not stay in the Corners four years and see a Radical nigger distribit the papers that comes here, and stand and and read lottery circulars to our citizens.

The Sunday School.

ELIJAH TRANSLATED.

SUNDAY, MARCH 11.—2 KINGS ii. 7-12.

VERSE NOTES.

1, 2. God's time had now come for Elijah. The prophet's work on earth was done. For some time Elisha had been his faithful companion and servant. (See 2 Kings iii: 11.) Now that he is to leave the world, Elijah modestly desires to be alone. But Elisha goes with him from Gilgal. This is evidently not the Gilgal where Joshua encamped. Probably about twenty miles off in the tribe of Ephriam. Bethel twelve miles north of Jerusalem where was a school of the prophets. The two prophets together reach Bethel.

3 It seems to have been known among the young students that Elijah was to be taken away. Elijah himself had probably told them. But they knew not the manner in which he was to leave them. Not even Elisha knew this.

4 Again Elijah urges Elisha to leave him. But he firmly, yet with great respect, determines to stay with his master till the last moment.

5 The young men at Jericho also, are informed as to Elijah's going. They mention it to Elisha; but, as at Bethel, he bids them say not a word about it. The subject is too sacred for their discussion.

6 7 The two prophets go together to the Jordan, about six miles off. Fifty of the young men, not daring to intrude on the privacy of the scene, follow at a distance.

8 A miracle, dividing the water of Jordan. This miracle performed 555 years before. (See Josh. iii: 16.)

9. The expression in Elijah's request is the same as that used in Deut. xxi: 17, in reference to the portion of a father's oldest son.

10 Elijah promises the gift, if Elisha will keep his eyes fixed on him as he goes up to glory.

11. We know nothing of the style or character of the chariot of fire beyond what is here given. All discussion of the nature of this chariot or of the horses of fire, will be needless and unprofitable. The translation of Elijah was a miracle. Let us reverently acknowledge that God works his wonders in his own way.

12 Elisha saw it, and was therefore sure of the fulfillment of his request. The mantle (or outer garment) of Elijah falls within his reach, and he accepts it as a token that the power of Elijah is to be granted in large measure to him.

HINTS FOR STUDY.

From the events of the last lesson till those of this, Elijah seems to have remained in comparative quiet and retirement from public life, and probably in the busy care of the schools of the prophets. We find him denouncing God's wrath on Ahab's son, Ahaziah, and also on Joboram, of the kingdom of Judah. Now his work is accomplished, and God is ready to take him, sparing him the pangs of death, and admitting him at once into the upper glory.

The farewell and the request. Under the old Jewish law the eldest son received twice as much of his property as any other member of the family. (Deut. xxi: 17.) Elisha, knowing that he is to be the successor of Elijah, desires all the power which Elijah can impart to him. Well knowing the trials to which Elijah had been exposed and the need of strength for the position he is now to occupy, Elisha makes his last parting request for a double portion of the strength and energy which had kept Elijah up in all his arduous labors.

The response of Elijah shows the tender interest he feels in his last moments for his friend and successor. If thou see me when I am taken from thee it shall be so unto thee. What an inducement for Elisha to keep up the most vigilant attention.

The chariot of fire. The moment of departure at last comes. As to the nature of the chariot of fire and the horses of fire, it is useless for us to conjecture. Suffice it for us to know that God was pleased to spare Elijah the pangs of death, and to remove him from the earth in a manner both sudden and glorious.

In Psalm lxviii: 16, we have allusion to the chariots of God, and in Ps. civ: 6, to the angelic ministry of flaming fire. In 2 Kings vi: 17, chariots and horses of fire are massed for the defeat of God's enemies.

In Mark xvi: 19, and Acts i: 9, we read of our Savior being taken up into heaven. These are only glimpses we have into the unknown which lies beyond the departure of the ascended ones. In the transfiguration scene, the veil is drawn on the departure of Elijah and Moses, and all we know about their appearance and their departure is that they went as mysteriously as they came.

Elijah and Enoch were the only two human beings of whom it is recorded that God spared them the pains of death. Of Enoch the simple record is he was not, for God took him. Compare Gen. v: 21 with Heb. xi: 5.

Elisha, wonder-stricken, cries out to the ascending Elijah, not with any hope of calling him back, but perhaps to assure him that he does indeed see him as he is taken up.

SWORN STATEMENT OF A BOSTON DRUGGIST.

Gentlemen,—I hereby certify that I have had Catarrh for ten years, and for the last six years have been a terrible sufferer. I was troubled partially deaf, had burning in the head, pains across the temple, dizzy spells, weak and painful eyes, sensitive and ulcerated mouth, hard and constant cough, severe pain across the chest, and every indication of consumption. My head ached all the time. The matter accumulated so rapidly in my head and throat that I could not keep them free. Frequently at night I would spring out of bed, it seemed to me, at the point of suffocation. I would then have recourse to every means in my power to dislodge the mucus from my throat and head before being able to sleep again. For a period of six years my trouble were liberally and very much informed that I could with difficulty swallow. I finally consulted an eminent surgeon in regard to an operation on them, but at the moment postponed it. The constant inflammation and ulceration in my throat caused by the poisonous matter dropping down from my head had so irritated and inflamed my lungs that I coughed incessantly, a deep, hard cough. Meanwhile my system began to show the effects of this disease, so that I lost flesh, grew pale, and showed every symptom of an early death by consumption. When matters had reached this stage, or about six months ago, I began the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH. After using the first bottle I began to improve rapidly. The first thing noticed was that my head as I had not known it to be for years. It stopped my cough in three days, by using it as a gargle I soon relieved the inflammation and swelling of my tonsils, so that they soon ceased to trouble me. The soreness across my chest disappeared, the burning noises in my ears ceased, my appetite returned, and all secretions were completely restored, and every symptom of disease disappeared and left me in the high road to health. I ascribe the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH.

I have been three years in business here in Boston, and have seen a great deal of suffering from Catarrh, and hope to continue to do so that this is a great remedy.

I am familiar with the treatment of Catarrh as practiced by the best physicians, and have consulted the most eminent about my case. I have used every kind of remedy and treatment that have app eared during a period of six years past and have, with a drowing heart and purse, taken great care of my case, a hopeless, but concluded no relief or cure is again to be found in any of them.

Satisfied myself with SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, I have recommended it to over one hundred cases of catarrh in single cases of catarrh, and have in numerous instances received wholesale orders from parties by whom I have sold one bottle. This is the only patent medicine I have ever recommended, never having believed in them before, although constantly engaged in their sale. Very gratefully yours,

BOSTON, Feb. 25, '75. GEO. F. DINSMORE.

SUFFOLK ss. Feb. 23, 1875.

Then personally appeared the said George F. Dinsmore, and made oath that the foregoing statement by him subscribed is true.

Before me,
SETH J. THOMAS, Justice of the Peace.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENT.

Since the above statement was made I have been perfectly uninterrupted in health. I have had no return of the disagreeable symptoms that attended my former sickness, and although affected from time to time with severe colds incident to the sudden changes in our climate, they have not been sufficient to bring on a return of the disease. My general health has been excellent. I have gained twenty-five pounds and consider myself entirely recovered from a disease that a year ago seemed likely to totally ruin my constitution. Since last February I have recommended with a great many afflicted with Catarrh, and to the hundreds of cases in which I have sold it I have never seen an instance sufficient to shake the confidence I feel in Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.

EXTRACTS FROM VARIOUS LETTERS.

"I had no appetite; Holloway's Pills gave me a hearty one."

"Your Pills are marvellous."

"I send for another box, and keep them in the house."

"Dr. Holloway has cured my headache that was chronic."

"I gave one of your Pills to my baby for cholera morbus. The dear little thing got well in a day."

"My nature of a morning is now cured."

"Your box of Holloway's Ointment cured me of boils in the head. I rubbed some of your Ointment behind the ears, and the sores has left."

"Send me two boxes; I want one for a poor family."

"I inclose a dollar; your price is 25 cents, but the medicine to me is worth a dollar."

"Send me five boxes of your Pills."

"Let me have three boxes of your Pills by return mail, for Chills and Fever."

I have over 200 such testimonials as these, but want of space compels me to conclude.

For Cutaneous Disorders,

And all eruptions of the skin, this Ointment is most invaluable. It does not heal externally alone, but penetrates with the most searching effects to the very root of the evil.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

Invariably cure the following diseases:

Disorder of the Kidneys.

In all diseases affecting these organs, whether they secrete too much or too little water, or whether they be afflicted with stone or gravel, or with aches and pains seated in the loins over the regions of the kidneys, these Pills should be taken according to the printed directions, and the Ointment should be well rubbed into the small of the back at bed time. This treatment will give almost immediate relief when all other means have failed.

For Stomachs Out of Order.

No medicine will so effectually improve the tone of the stomach as these Pills; they remove all acidity occasioned either by intemperance or improper diet. They reach the liver and reduce it to a healthy action; they are wonderfully efficacious in cases of spasms, in fact they never fail in curing all disorders of the liver and stomach.
