Nashville Union.

THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 19, 1862.

Take the Union!

It has a far larger circulation than any other daily newspaper that has been published here for years.

It is the official newspaper of the United States for Tennessee.

It is the official newspaper of the State of Tennessee.

It gives the latest news from the Military Department South, and later than any other paper.

It has immediate communication with the Military Headquarters, which no other paper here has.

Tennessee was made disloyal by force; a counteracting force will make her loyal.

If the authorities attempt to levy a tax on crinoline, the ladies would raise a war hoop immediately.

That was a capitol class meeting yesterday—the leader was evidently at home in the business.

South Carolina has now in the field 39,274 soldiers, 22,000 of whom are for the war. The excess at this time over the State's quota is 4,064.

Men commissioned of God, who can preach, and won't preach, ought to be made to preach the word, instead of treason.

The New York Seventh Regiment is encamped near Baltimore. The officers have petitioned the military managers for a chance to see active service.

Why does the present policy of England concerning the war in this country, resemble a woman purchasing a cheap dress? Because she is hesitating between cotton and wool.

It is estimated that the property destroyed by the rebels since the war commenced—to prevent the same from falling into Union hands—amounts to over 100,000,000. And the end is not yet. Singular infatuation.

A FEMALE TEAMSTER.—On Friday, a teamster attached to an Ohio regiment, recently confined at the hospital in Nashville with the measles, was discovered to be a woman. She hails from Gallipolis, Ohio, and first joined the regular army, when her sex was discovered, and she was rejected. She was then employed as a house servant, at 75 cents per week, when she engaged as a teamster to an Ohio regiment, at twenty-five dollars per month. She is represented at about 18 years old, and made rather a handsome boy.

How long? Oh, how long, before the noble, the down-trodden, the patriotic people of East Tennessee shall be free? How long before the government shall extend protection to those, of all most worthy? We want to see East Tennessee—the land of the brave—delivered from tyranny. We want to see the flag of the United States established upon the top of the mountains, exalted above the hills, and the loyal men flow unto it?

The planters are beseeching General FITCH, who is in command at Memphis, to protect their crops from the cotton burners and tobacco destroyers of BEAUREGARD'S army. Now that the rebels have lost all hope of maintaining their ground in the West, the planters will not consent to impoverish themselves needlessly. This coton burning and destroying by rebel soldiery will do the Confederacy more harm than either Europe or the North. It is a counter-irritant which will help prodigiously to bring Southern property-owners to their loyal senses.

A MUSICAL LUNATIC.—A German named METZER, residing in West Rutland, Vermont, a man of high education and highly respectable connections, has recently been engaged in the production of a national air. He is said to have produced a piece of remarkable merit, which is about to be produced at the Academy of Music, at New York. But this effort, it is alleged, has affected his reason, and on Saturday he passed through Albany on his way to his home in charge of his friends, entirely bereft of his reason. He imagines that the Governors of all the States are interesting themselves in making his air a thing of national popularity.

The proof-reader on the London Times receives an editorial salary, but has to forfeit one guinea for every typographical error, even a turned letter, in each day's impression; if he has marked an error on the proof, the compositor who neglected to correct it pays the forfeit.

Communication.

"What Hast Thou Done?"

Women of Nashville, to a rebel women, like yourselves, your Maker once propounded the question, "What hast thou done?" You need not be humiliated by the reproduction of the response. You, however, cannot have forgotten that because of her rebellion, man, instead of God, became the ruler, and her sorrows were greatly multiplied.—Instead of every thing pleasant, as in the garden, thorns and thistles were brought forth. Instead, with heaven-erected face, plucking fruit from the trees in the garden, in her humility, she was doomed to "eat the herb of the field," and in her immediate family she saw a murdered son, and in his murderer beheld a fugitive and a vagabond Rebel women, beware!

The editor of the Union has been charged with unprecedented severity, whereas, when compared with his secession predecessors, he has been gentle as a young dove. For example, one of the city papers in August, 1861, said, "Henceforth there is to be no conciliation and concession in our policy towards treason and traitors." This paper has been comparatively lenient toward treason, and persuasive to traitors. The same paper said, "Forbearance has been practiced, until it ceased to be a virtue." We say, forbear even yet, rather than hang all the traitors in the State

"Hereafter the authority of the Confederate States must be respected and the laws obeyed."—Patriot.

We might with much greater propriety say, hereafter the authority of the United States must be respected and her laws obeyed; but we are not Dictator, and consequently leave the power where it belongs.

"Men in Tennessee who still cling to the Union and sigh for the reinstatement of its authority, must expect either to change their views or their place of residence." In opposition to the Patriot, we simply advise such to remain at home. Those, however, who cling to the Southern Confederacy, are referred to the Patriot for a precedent rule of action.

"Enemies cannot be tolerated in our midst." Pro contra distinction to this we tolerate them by the thousand, and permit them daily to assemble at some dozen or two grape-vine offices in the city.

"We must have thorough unanimity at whatever cost."

This was one of the many days of the Patriot's desperation. "Thorough unanimity" is important to us, but as a part of humanity and one of a great nation, we prefer to consider the cost, and can afford to be abundant in mercy.

Communicated.

NASHVILLE, June 17, 1862.

Editor Nashville Union:

A wealthy stock raiser of this county, during the reign of terror that existed here during the rebellion, subscribed twenty-five thousand dollars to assist the Southern Confederacy in carrying on a war between the Southern Confederacy and the Government of the United States. He gave a check for said amount the following day, and took Confederate Script payable after ratification of peace between the so-call'd Southern Confederacy and the United States.

Is this not aiding and abetting? Is this not sedition and treason, and punishable according to the laws of the country? We would suggest to the military authorities in as much as the Government of the United States have a large number of mules here which they wish to have pastured, that they have them sent out to the gentleman's extensive pastures, as he has by far the best in Davidson county.

THE CAPTURED FLEET.—The collection of sailing crafts of every description, taken by Uncle Sam since the commencement of the war, has increased to very respectable dimensions, and now is being enriched by several prizes of the first class. The following list of prizes is believed to be very nearly complete, excepting, of course, vessels of war, gunboats, &c., taken or sunk in the various conflicts:

Steamers,	14
Ships,	9
Barks,	16
Brigs,	13
Schooners,	110
Sloops,	11
Total,	167

Because sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefore the heart of the sons of men is fully set in them to do evil.

We suggest the foregoing as the theme of the next lecture to the theological class at the Capitol.

AN OLD "FAST MAN."—The twelfth Earl of Pembroke has lately died in Paris. He was a "fast man," though 72 years old, and left the finest stable of horses in Paris. Most of the horses will be bought by the Emperor. He married a Sicilian princess, but having no children, his estates and titles descend to his nephew, a lucky boy, twelve years old, the son of the late Lord Sidney Herbert, of Dea.

Jenny Lind is giving charity oratorios in London to immense houses, at a guinea a ticket. To be able to draw from $10,000 to $15,000 from the pockets of the rich, and to put its equivalent in bread into the mouths of the poor by an hour's bird-like warbling, is certainly a gift to be most devoutly thankful for.
