DR. COLEMAN'S PRIVATE DISPENSARY.

THE attention of citizens, strangers, and others visiting Nashville, requiring medical aid, is respectfully called to this office, No. 21 Deaderick street, second floor, between Cherry and the Square.

Dr. COLEMAN is an old practitioner of medicine; his almost unlimited experience and flattering success for many years past, in the treatment of PRIVATE DISEASES, has induced him to devote his undivided attention to all diseases of this nature. Many cases of the most inveterate character have promptly yielded to his improved method of treatment.

Primary, Secondary, Tertiary and Hereditary Syphilis, Gonorrhœa, Gleet and all diseases of the genital and urinary organs, meet with no recitation to his remedies.

A female irregularities and functional deranges ments of the Womb, and the diseases arising from debilitated and ill managed parturition.

Every case of Abdominal Rupture, also of Piles, and Prolapsus of the Rectum, and most cases of Fistula, can be cured by a process nearly painless. If either of the latter cases is undertaken by Dr. Coleman, a cure is generally warranted, as a careful examination always permits the necessary information of success or failure by his improved method of operating.

Persons at a distance may apply by letter (enclosing fee) stating their symptoms of any acute specific disease, can be cured, in most cases, by the abortive method, in forty-eight hours.

Strict confidence, prompt attention, and moderate charges, will govern him with his patrons.

☞ No mercury used in the treatment of venereal disease, as he believes (in most cases) it produces a worse disease than that it is given to cure.

SUNDAY MORNING, SEPT. 7, 1862.

[CONFIDENTIAL.]

CAMP DUMONT, NEAR EDGEFIELD, Tenn., Sept. 3, 1862.

S. C. MERCER.—Sir: Enclosed find official report of mine and also of Captain ATTKISSON, and a list of killed, wounded and missing, belonging to a detachment of the 50th Indiana. If convenient, please insert the same in your paper.

I am, &c.,
HORACE HEFFREN, Lt.-Col.
Comm'g Detach. 50th Ind. Vols.

HEADQUARTERS DETACH. 50TH REGT. INDIANA VOLS., NEAR EDGEFIELD, August ——

Col. JOHN F. MILLER.—Sir: In accordance with a direction from his Excellency, Governor ANDREW JOHNSON, I took a portion of my command, consisting of parts of Companies C, E, I, and K, being a detachment of 50th Regiment Indiana Volunteers, on the 19th of August, for the purpose of making a reconnoissance to Gallatin and the Tunnels, eight miles beyond. I left a portion of my command at Edgefield Junction, Manscoe's Creek, Drake's Creek, Saundersville, and Pilot Knob. I left more men at each place than had been usual until a couple of days previous. The whole force which accompanied me was about one hundred and seventy-six. When within about three miles of the place, I threw out skirmishers, under Captain ATTKISSON, and kept the pike with the main body. I arrived at Gallatin about five o'clock, P.M. driving out MORGAN'S pickets, and capturing six, whom I had every reason to believe were of his force.

I divided my men into squads, placed out pickets, and ordered all citizens to be arrested and held for the time being. Leaving Captain MILLER in charge, I took with me Lieutenant MARSH and six men, and started for the Tunnel, about seven miles distant. I found the trussle one mile from south tunnel burned. A new one, however, can be easily erected. The tunnel had been arched by timbers and wood in its construction, and this had been fired and was still burning in the middle. We penetrated as far as possible (for the heat and smoke drove us back), and found that from six to ten feet of rock had fallen on the track from above. The upper or north tunnel was uninjured.—We then returned to Gallatin. I became satisfied that a general raid was intended on all the bridges from Nashville to Gallatin. I hastened with my prisoners, now some one hundred and thirty, back towards Pilot Knob, expecting to meet reinforcements I had sent for before dark, but they came not. About day-break I heard firing in direction of Saundersville, where I hastened as fast as possible, leaving the guarding of Pilot Knob bridge under Captain MILLER and fifty men.

When within about three-fourths of a mile of Saundersville, I saw large volumes of smoke ascending, and ordered a hurried advance. Just as I was in the act of throwing out skirmishers the enemy appeared on our right. I ordered Captain ATKISSON's command forward to the right, and Captain ROUSE's to follow me on double-quick along the railroad. Captain ATTKISSON's men, and ROUSE's, soon engaged the enemy, about 150 strong, all of whom were mounted, some on the horses taken from the train at Gallatin. So sudden was our onset that they fled. We killed two and wounded eight, as we afterwards learned, and also released fourteen prisoners they had taken at Saundersville. They had burned the trussle and attempted to burn the stockade. We lost no killed or wounded. Halting here a few minutes, I pushed forward for Drake's Creek, two miles distant, where a stockade had been built, and there I left Capt. ROUSE and about seventy men and some twenty prisoners, and pushed on for Manscoe's Creek, distant four miles, arriving there about eleven o'clock—the men having had nothing to eat for near twenty-four hours.

I took a hand-car and started for Edgefield Junction, two miles distant, to see if I could get any supplies or a train to take them to the various posts, having first ordered Captain ATTKISSON with his command forward to the Junction, where he arrived near noon.

Finding I could not obtain supplies, I proceeded to Nashville for them, and got a train, which, when near the Junction found the fight raging at that place, and it returned. In the meantime, Captain MILLER was attacked by a very large force at Pilot-Knob, and two of his force killed and three wounded, and bridge burned. None escaped but the Captain.

Captain ROUSE was called on to surrender, but refused, and the enemy retired. Capt. ROUSE evacuated the Post after night and has yet made no report.

A large force attacked Lieut. JOHNSON, at Manscoe's creek, where I had left about sixty men. All the officers being taken I am unable to submit any report, except that two of our men were killed, and six escaped, the balance missing. This bridge was also burned.

About the same time Capt. ATTKISSON, at Edgefield Junction, was attacked by about one thousand, under MORGAN'S personal command, and after fighting near three hours repulsed them with a loss of 25 killed and 50 to 75 wounded, among them Lieut. JAMES SMITH and Adjutant MILES, of MORGAN'S Staff. Several large stacks of hay and grain, near by, were fired by the enemy, and the men had a two-fold enemy to contend with, as their clothes frequently caught fire. Heroically, nobly, gallantly, did they fight the elements and the enemy, and maintain the dignity of American arms and Indianas' honor. Noble sons of a noble state, they should be properly rewarded. I will make Captain ATTKISSON'S Report a part of mine, (which is hereby submitted, marked, "B." I also submit herewith a list of killed, wounded and missing, marked "C."

I have the honor to be, &c.
HORACE HEFFREN,
Lt. Col. Com'g Det'm't, 50th Ind. Vol.

CAMP DUMONT, August 22d, 1862.

Lieut. Col. H. Heffren:

SIR,—I herewith submit to you the following report in regard to the part enacted by my command on the 19th and 20th August, 1862, as directed by you, at Edgefield Junction.

On the 19th, I left my pickets out and a camp guard, and accompanied you to Gallatin with the residue. After marching nearly all night, and the next day until near noon (and the men having no rations), when we arrived at Manscoe's Creek, I pushed ahead, by your order, with a portion of my command, to the Junction. Several of my command were so wearied that they stopped under some shade trees, about one-fourth of a mile from the stockade at the Junction. I arrived at the stockade a few minutes after you did, and had gone to the creek to wash about three minutes after you left, when we were attacked by about one thousand to twelve hundred men of Morgan's band, commanded by him in person.

The battle commenced about noon. I had only twenty-one men at the stockade, which had not yet been completed. There were some fifteen stacks of hay and grain about twenty steps from the stockade, which were fired by the enemy. The heat was intense, and often the clothes of the men were on fire. Twice the enemy charge on horseback to the door of the stockade, but were repulsed. In the second charge, adjutant Niles, of Morgan's men, and Lieut. James Smith, were killed. Niles was brought inside of the stockade, and properly cared for, and Smith was taken to the house of Adam Payne, near by, by my orders, where he was properly cared for. Both were afterwards buried respectably by my men, in decent coffins which I procured at Goodlettsville.

The enemy, after about two hours' fighting, attempted to burn the bridge, but we repulsed them, and obeyed your orders to hold it until resistance could be of no avail. They then retired about four hundred yards and dismounted, and made a charge on foot, near to the door of the stockade. The men had no water, and some of them had their clothes on fire; but yet they fought on and fought terribly, pouring the death-dealing bullets into the enemy's ranks, so terrible was the resistance, that the enemy broke and fled.

From all that I can learn, about twenty-five were killed and some fifty to seventy-five wounded. I herewith submit a list of the names of the garrison of the stockade.
