GRAY HAIR RESTORED TO ITS ORIGinal Youthful Color, Baldness Prevented.

"London" "Hair Color Restorer."
"London" "Hair Color Restorer."
"London"—No Dye. "Hair Color Restorer."
"London" "Hair Color Restorer."
"London" "Hair Color Restorer."

It is the only known restorer of color and perfect hair dressing combined. Delicately performed.

Compounded in strict conformity with modern Vegetable Chemistry. It is not a dye, does not soil the skin, soil hat, bonnet, or the finest linen. It will restore gray hair to its original color, promotes a luxuriant growth of new hair on bald heads, removes all dandruff, itching, scurf, &c., from the scalp, rendering it perfectly healthy, keeps the hair soft, moist, gives it a glossy and beautiful appearance, highly perfumed, and as a dressing it has no superior.

STILL ANOTHER CERTIFICATE.

I hereby certify to the wonderful effects of the "London Hair Color Restorer and Dressing." My hair was very gray, and through its use it was soon restored to its natural color, and the hair, which was before dry and harsh, and falling off, now became soft and glossy, ceasing falling; the dandruff disappeared, and the scalp lost all the disagreeable itching, so annoying before, and at this time it is fully restored to its original dark color, and I cheerfully commend its use to all who are desirous of having a beautiful head of hair.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 26, 1865.

It was thought, sometime ago, that the Prince Polignac, a rebel General, had been lost, together with the vessel he sailed in from Texas, in a gale off the coast of Mexico. This was a mistake. He has turned up in Paris. A correspondent of the N. Y. Herald, writing from that city on the 7th inst., says he arrived some weeks previous to that date, and states that he abandoned the rebel cause because he was "satisfied that it was hopeless." The correspondent adds that Dr. Gwin is also of the opinion that the rebellion has "gone under."

Off for Texas.

A recent telegraphic dispatch reported that Jeff Davis, a few days after the surrender of Lee, departed from Danville Va., for Greensboro, N. C., with the intention of making his way to Texas, where he said, he would gather up his Confederates and make another stand, declaring at the same time that he would never abandon the country. A later dispatch from New Orleans asserts that he actually crossed the Mississippi River at Tensaw Bend, on the 16th inst., under covering of the shades of night. If this be so, we may as well bid Jeff good bye. He has left the country for the country's good.

No More Bounty for Enlistments.

It will be seen on reference to the following order that the Government will not hereafter pay a bounty for enlistments.

HEAD-QUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF THE CUMBERLAND,
NASHVILLE, TENN., April 24th, 1865.
General Orders No 24.

The following Telegram is published for the information of all concerned:

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 22nd, 1865.

The call for troops made December 19th, 1864, under section one of the act approved July 4th, 1864, and by virtue of which all the men enlisted as soldiers became entitled to certain bounties, having been filled so far as required, and the recruiting of Volunteers in several States having been discontinued, the Secretary of War directs that no bounty be allowed or paid for any Volunteers enlisted after the receipt by you of this order.

If men offer to enlist after receipt of this order, let them understand they must do so without bounty.

(Signed) J. B. FRY, Pro. Mar. General.

In accordance with above order no bounties will be paid U. S. Disbursing Officers for Recruits enlisted within this Department since the 22nd inst.

By Command of Major General Thomas.

From Chattanooga.

Correspondence of the Nashville Union.

CHATTANOOGA, April 21.

Perhaps no town in Tennessee, Nashville not even excepted, has, during the last year, exhibited greater signs of healthy improvement, and a more praiseworthy spirit of progressive development than this fortress-bound city. I remember my impressions of the place when I first visited it a little over a year ago. The surroundings were emphatically forlorn and crestfallen, and the whole place strikingly suggestive of dreary desolation, neglect and decay. Now, all is changed. The streets are macadamized, and kept in the best possible condition. Business of every kind is in a flourishing condition; neat and tasteful residences are springing up, and meet you in every direction; churches and schools are crowded Sundays, and week days young ladies in the most expansive crinoline and the very latest style of hats, promenade the principal thoroughfares and affect new fangled, Parisian airs, while swarms of gay and festive young men, incipient shoulder-straps, Quartermaster's clerks and fashionable dilettanti jostle and jog you at every corner.

Chattanooga supports a neat little daily paper—the Gazette. In the absence of Hood—that gentleman is one of the big guns of the State Legislature and will be going to Congress one of these days—it lacks the vigor and spiciness which his presence would be sure to inspire, still it is readable and does very well as a news medium.

There is a very large amount of imported reading matter sold here at the far famed Van's News Depot. Charles Dickens in his "American Notes" gives a lively description of the rush and scramble usually seen in American hotels at meal hours, but that is a small matter compared to the rush made to Van's for the Nashville UNION as the train comes in each morning. Speaking of Van, that gentleman may be considered as the very embodiment of the progressive and enterprising spirit of the town. The business that flows through his hands is immense, for his energy and enterprise are not confined to one branch of industry, but extends to several, while his integrity and Union-loving sentiments are known and read by all men. Almost every town has its specially prominent man, of grand, progressive ideas, and sweeping capacity for going ahead in great business movements. Chattanooga is not an exception, and its hero is emphatically Van—the whole-souled Van.

I'm sorry I can't be complimentary of every thing in the place. There is an institution here known as "Bishop's Varieties." Something in the burnt cork and minstrel line. Amusements are very good when not abused and converted into positive indecency and obscenity. This is why I object to the institution in question. To pander to a low and corrupt taste, the management allows representations on the stage that should not be tolerated in a civilized community. It is to be hoped that a reform will be effected, or otherwise, that the military authorities will take measures to abate the nuisance.

Taken in all its aspects, however, Chattanooga is a flourishing and progressive little city, and its future greatness is already reflected in its present advancing strides. CURBER BELL.

SURGEON GENERAL'S OFFICE, WASHINGTON, April 25.—Hon. E. M. Stanton: I have the honor to report that the Secretary of State is convalescing rapidly. Mr. Frederick Seward speaks more distinctly this morning and is better.

Very respectfully, etc.,
J. K. BARNES, Surg. Gen.

BALTIMORE, April 25.—Joseph Shaw, editor of the Westminster (Carroll county) Democrat, was mobbed and the materials of his newspaper establishment destroyed on the night of the murder of President Lincoln, on account of his disloyal sentiments. He had been warned by the people but returned again yesterday to Westminster. Last night he was again waited upon by a delegation of citizens, who knocked at his door. He appeared and was ordered to leave the place forthwith. He then fired upon the crowd, wounding a young man named Henry Bell. Upon this the enraged citizens fell upon Shaw and killed him upon the spot.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 25.—Telegraphic communication with New Westminster, British Columbia, is now complete. The news of the assassination of President Lincoln was received at Van Conver's Island and British Columbia with every evidence of sorrow. The English residents closed their business and united with the Americans in observing the obsequies on the 19th inst. The local papers appeared in mourning and everywhere the deepest sorrow was manifested.

NEW YORK, April 25.—A constant stream of people have been passing through the room where the remains of the President are ever since yesterday afternoon. They pass at the rate of eight per minute. At midnight the German singers, numbering about one thousand voices, chanted dirges throughout the night. Though the long line of citizens, anxious to view the remains, was kept moving, early this morning it seemed undiminished, and substantially daylight was lengthened greatly, extending from Warren to John street, on Broadway on the west side of the City Hall, while there was another line of greater length running through the street or east of the Hall. Places of business were closed, while the upper stories of every building along the route of the procession were occupied by anxious spectators.

The procession is now moving with the remains to the Hudson River Railroad Depot. It is one of the most imposing and impressive spectacles ever witnessed in New York—indeed, perhaps, it was never equalled. There are no vehicles in the line of procession, and it moves with an awe inspiring solemnity to the mournful music of the various bands. The military are out in full force. There is also a very large number of civic societies, &c.

One of the Festoons in front of the City Hall took fire this morning, causing great excitement as the cry of fire was made. The presence of mind of an officer, who promptly tore down the burning drapery, saved a rush in the crowd, which would probably have caused loss of life.

The crowd in Broadway was so great it was found necessary to run chains around the space through which the procession was to pass in the park.

The number who viewed the remains is estimated at one hundred and twenty thousand.

BUFFALO, April 25.—Three propellers started out this morning but are in the ice in the sight of the harbor.

NEW YORK, April 25.—The World's Washington special says: Advices received here to-day direct from Raleigh state the conference between Sherman and Johnston took place at Chapel Hill, some fifteen miles west of Raleigh. Johnston's army, composed of about 30,000 men, including Hampton's and Wheeler's cavalry, lay thirty miles from the city on the road running to Charlotte. The Hon. J. C. Breckinridge, the rebel Secretary of War, was present. He participated in drawing up the already published memorandum of terms of capitulation. During the conversation he freely admitted the failure of the rebellion, and in alluding to the constitutional amendment said it was directly the legal way of abolishing slavery. He predicted its ratification by more than two thirds of the States. It was understood that during this conference, which lasted two days, Jeff. Davis was at Hillsboro' and in telegraphic communication with Breckinridge at Johnston's headquarters. The men of the rebel army, with the exception now and then of some officers, were anxious for peace and desired to go home. Throughout North Carolina there have been most earnest exhibitions of loyalty. When our forces entered Raleigh the two papers there, the Standard, edited by Holden, and the Progress, were found to have been such strong Union sheets for some time past that the r publication was in no wise interfered with. They continued their regular issue. No public or private property was molested by our troops, and the citizens, including large numbers of ladies, appeared on the streets. Business was not even suspended. The news of the President's assassination reached Raleigh last Wednesday. That night a very large meeting of citizens was held, at which resolutions were passed denouncing the deed and expressing sympathy for the nation and people. The size of the meeting surprised the soldiers, who stood aloof from it. Gov. Vance skedaddled before our troops entered the place. The report of his capture is therefore untrue. When this intelligence left Raleigh it was the opinion in the army that the terms of Johnston's surrender were unconditional submission. Among Generals of high rank no others were known or even hinted at.

CINCINNATI, April 25.—The remains of President Lincoln will arrive at Columbus on Saturday. The City Council, City Officers and large numbers of citizens will go up on Friday to participate in the ceremonies.

Orders were received yesterday to forward immediately to the front all troops in camp in Ohio and Indiana.

NEW YORK, April 25.—The Herald's correspondent says that Maj. Gen. Halleck issued his official order assuming command at Richmond as successor to Gen Ord, on last Saturday. Gen. Ord goes to South Carolina to supercede Gen. Gillmore. Just previous to Ord's relinquishment of command at Richmond, a circular was issued by his direction, informing those paroled officers of Lee's army who desired to leave the country, that passports and passage to Halifax, N. S., would be furnished them on application at the office of the Provost Marshal of his Department.

NEW YORK, April 25.—It is said the exchange of 5,000 Union soldiers at Darien, Georgia, which it is supposed has taken place by this time, will leave scarcely any of our men in the hands of the rebels, while there still remain in the hands of the Government, 6,000 or 7,000 rebel troops, beside these, those that are paroled under terms of Lee's surrender.

The Herald's Washington special correspondent says Johnson regards it as of the utmost importance that Secretary Seward remain in the Cabinet.

The Tribune's Washington special says it is the opinion of well informed gentlemen that Jeff Davis will be able to reorganize a force of about 40,000 perhaps, in Texas, with which he will move into Mexico in the event of his being pressed by the Union armies.

The Mexican minister had a very lengthy and it is said most important private interview with the President to-day.

Gen. Ortega has been sent for and is on his way here from St. Louis. His arrival is hourly expected, and circumstances imparting additional significance to to-day's audience.

The Tribune says from a gentleman who has just arrived from Havana we learn that serious, though guarded, apprehensions exist there of an insurrection among the slaves. It is said large deposits of arms have been found, and that several negroes have been arrested. The plot is said to be intended to raise the slaves all over the island, and the Government is fearful of an outbreak, notwithstanding its premature discovery.

Andrew Johnson and Jefferson Davis.

The country will remember the courageous impromptu speech in the United States Senate, which Senator—now President—Johnson rose and delivered in immediate reply to Jefferson Davis, when the baffled rebel chief took his farewell and sought to demonstrate the inability of our Government to execute its properly constituted will upon the people of all the States. Senator Johnson then stood alone. The conspirators had resorted to every method known to them for the purpose of bending the inflexibility of his resolution to stand by his country, but when they found they had only failed, they visited him with open derision and contempt. He charged them with it at the time, and has left it upon record that he felt its temporary effect, although only to resist and not to yield to its sting.

Since that striking scene in the Senate chamber, when the predetermined chief of the rebellion was boldly confronted, answered, and denounced by the Tennessee Senator, great changes have taken place. Well may we use the language of the poet in referring especially to the changed relations of the two actors in that scene, and speak of the "whirligigs of time." Davis has been, and we suppose still continues to style himself, the President of a rebel confederacy, which notoriously has no existence to its name. Johnson is today President of the United States whose sacred authority he stepped forward to defend against Davis and against traitors everywhere. And it may be that, as Chief Magistrate of the nation, he will yet be summoned to execute punishment upon the leaders in rebellion whom but four years ago he solemnly and patriotically warned of the consequences of his threatened treason. The former is a fugitive, with his countrymen formed into a body of voluntary police to pursue and capture him; the latter is the Executive of the nation, upon whom would devolve the duty of visiting the last punishment denounced by the laws upon so great a criminal.

The contrast between the positions of these two men, who separated with such pregnant words on the floor of the Senate, is too striking not to provoke more than a passing remark. It is one of those lessons in the history of justice which is too impressive to be forgotten. The man who was jeered at by the knot of recreants that crowded around to intimidate the sturdiness of his patriotism now has it in his power to speak their doom, unless a kinder fortune shall pilot them into the dreary paths of an ignomous exile. He who stood fast when all around him wavered, now beholds the braggart calumniators of his country and himself fleeing in every direction for their lives, outcasts and fugitives, abandoned by the people whom they have so fatally deluded, hating one another, and, above all, dreading the swift sureness of that retributive justice whose decrees no man or set of men can outrage with impunity. There is certainly contained in this history a lesson in favor of the truth and the right.—Boston Post.
