DURYEA'S MAIZENA

TRY ONE POUND — TRY ONE POUND

Was the only "Preparation for food from Indian Corn"

That received a medal and honorable mention from the Royal Commissioners, the competition of all prominent manufacturers of "Corn Starch" and "Prepared Corn Flour" of this and other countries notwithstanding.

MAIZENA,

The food and luxury of the age, without a single fault. One trial will convince the most skeptical. Makes Puddings, Cakes, Custards, Blanc Mange, &c., without eggs, with few or no eggs at a cost saving the most economical. A slight addition to ordinary Wheat Flour greatly improves Bread and Cake. It is also excellent for thickening sweet sauces, gravies for fish or fowl, soups, &c. For ice-Cream nothing can compare with it. A little boiled in milk will produce rich cream for coffee, tea, chocolate, sea, &c.

Put up in one pound packages, under the trade-mark Maizena, with directions for use.

A most delicious article of food for children and invalids of all ages. For sale by Grocers and Druggists everywhere.

TANYARD
For Sale.

THE undersigned offers for sale his splendid Tannery, with all or the land and appurtenances thereto belonging.

I will also sell with the yard, all of the stock of leather tanned, and in process of tan, consisting of upper, sole and calf skins, all of which is nearly ready to be taken out.

I will also sell, if desired, all of my live stock, consisting of Horses, Milch Cows, a fine lot of stock Hogs, Road Carts, &c. Also, my Household and Kitchen Furniture, so as to enable the purchaser to go on with the business without delay. My place is one of the finest locations for the Tannery or Milling business in Northern Alabama. situated on a stream of water which overlooking the Valley of the Tennessee, and commanding one of the finest views west of the Alleghenies. It is unsurpassed in point of health, and has three never failing two springs of never failing fine water on the place.

There is also a very desirable place for a good steam saw and grist Mill, there being none within twenty miles of the place. The Building embracing the Tannery was built with special reference to this business, there being nothing necessary now but the machinery. The Memphis and Charleston Railroad, now being put in operation, will afford a good market for all lumber or ties that could be sawed out of ground, as the Mill would be in less than half a mile of the above road.

Any one desiring a good investment for capital in either of the above named businesses, could not do better than by addressing or personally inquiring of the undersigned, Tuscumbia, Tennessee.

Dr. Hunter of New York on Diptheria and Bronchitis.

To the Editor of the Nashville Union:

In my last letter I give a brief description of the organs of respiration, and explained the nature of the treatment of the sore throat. It may be well to add, for the guidance of those who suffer from the sore throat that, they are liable not only to the extension of their disease to the lungs, but also to that dreaded modern scourge diptheria, which has prevailed to such an alarming extent over the whole of Europe and America. It is from cases of simple sore throat that this scourge is most to be dreaded. Those who have not carefully observed the effects of disease of the throat on the general health, can have any idea of the loss of bodily vigor which a very slight disease of the fauces produces.

In diptheria the blood is impregnated with a specific poison, for which the protoxide of nitrogen is the antidote. In the treatment of this disease, therefore, the physician should first cleanse the patient by inhaling the protoxide from a suitable apparatus, and till its effects are manifested in considerable exhilaration, and after an hour's intermission children be inhaled freely to check the tendency to disorganization in the mucous membrane. Under the combined action of these remedies a few hours arrests the disease and saves the life of the patient. The oxygen of the protoxide purifies the blood while the antiseptic properties of the chlorine arrests the tendency to sloughing and gangrene. Besides these means, the throat should be washed every few hours with a strong solution of chlorinated soda, applied with a perforated syringe. Treated in this manner, diptheria is a simple disease, and will not prove fatal in one case out of a hundred.

Let us now pass from disease of the throat to the consideration of bronchitis.

The term bronchitis has hitherto been commonly applied to the diseases of the throat, and medical writers have too often confirmed the popular error. The reader will bear in mind that the bronchial tubes are not in the throat, but in the lungs. When I speak of bronchitis therefore I speak of a disease of the lungs, and not of the throat. The vital importance of this distinction, will be seen when we come to discuss its proper treatment.

Bronchitis, then, is a disease of the lining or mucous membrane of the bronchial tubes ramifying the substance of the lungs. This lining or membrane is very sensitive to every external or foreign influence, and consequently is liable to become irritated by sudden changes of weather, by impure air, by the fine particles of matter which fill the atmosphere of work shops, or float upon the wind in dusty streets, by the hundred and one causes which meet us in almost every place. The irritation, from what ever cause, leads to inflammation of the membrane, derangement of the secretion, changes the character of the secretion and sets up a train of symptoms to which we apply the name bronchitis.

In chronic bronchitis there is sometimes slight fever every evening. The patient experiences a shortness of breath on exertion, and has a slight but continued sense of oppression in the chest. The cough or expectoration may diminish or entirely disappear during the summer, but manifest themselves again on the return of winter, when the expectoration becomes increased and often yellow. Hectic fever may then supervene, with night sweats and rapid wasting of the flesh and strength, and the patient dies with all the symptoms of premonary consumption.

It is very common to meet this disease in milder form, in persons who speak of it as a "winter cough." It comes on each winter, as regularly subsides during summer, but in every successive recurrence it manifests itself in greater severity; and the recovery in the following summer is not so complete. The form of bronchitis, if neglected, will as sure to destroy life (and treated in the usual manner it is incurable) as consumption itself. The morbid secretion accumulates in the air cells which at last become so numerous, and so full of the matter which has all the qualities of pus. Hectic fever supervenes and the disease tends slowly but surely to a fatal termination.

Another form of Bronchitis is peculiar to middle life and old age. It is distinguished by the quantity and character of the matter expectorated. Usually there are two fits of coughing in the day—one on awakening from sleep in the morning, and the other in the evening. There is considerable difficulty in breathing while paroxysms of coughing last, but this passes off as soon as the lungs are freed from the vesicle secretion. The patient is able to be up, now and ever, live and attend to his duties for several years. But the countenance gradually assumes a pale bluish tint, the body wastes, the blood becomes thin, and death ensues, apparently from the constant drain kept up by the secretion from the lungs. Some patients die from exhaustion in five or six months; but we have known others to survive for as many years.

There is another form of this disease, called "dry bronchitis." The essential character of dry bronchitis consists of chronic inflammation, attended by a thickening of the mucous membrane, by which the air tubes are diminished in size, and also in the secretion of a dense, gluttonous kind of matter, of a greenish or blue white color, by which they are still further obstructed. The smaller bronchial tubes are often entirely closed, and collapse will ensue, unless a suitable size becomes sealed up by this matter. This affection is so common in this climate, that in some degree it is probable that two out of every three suffer from it. "In the most favored parts of France," says Laennec, "in by one half of those arrived at adult age will be found, upon careful examination, to present evidence of a thick-ning of some portion of the mucous membrane of the lungs.

Negro Rule for New England.

It is very evident from recent advices that the negro troops are no longer needed in South Carolina or any of the other Southern States. The work of reorganization under President Johnson's policy is progressing so favorably everywhere that the negro troops have nothing to do, so are they required there. The south Carolina is becoming one of the most peaceable localities in the whole country. We advise the President to withdraw the colored troops from that section and send them immediately to New England. The latter locality, under the teachings of the radicals, is becoming excited. The leaders are threatening another revolution and need close watching. They claim that the President should take certain steps on the ground that the military act still prevails, and we trust that Mr. Johnson will take them at their word and forthwith garrison every portion of New England with negro troops.

There is no telling what the political conspirators of the radical school may not do if they are allowed to continue their plotting and scheming. The radical Jacobins there have already threatened repudiation, revolution and every other outrage if these ideas are not adopted. Senator Sumner has even gone so far as to advocate in executive session of the Senate the impeachment of Mr. Johnson. All this shows the extreme of the New England radicals and the necessity of their being closely watched. These fanatics manifest great love and devotion for the negroes. The best thing that the President can do is to put the negro troops on duty at their very doors. We know no better way to prevent a revolution in this locality. What is done should be done immediately. The radicals are busy night and day embittering the minds of their followers, and if left alone will soon have a brotherhood well nigh more than the present number of armed slaves to keep them straight. But by the immediate withdrawal of all negro troops from the south, and their proper distribution throughout New England, all trouble may be averted, and the conspiracy is that locality nipped in the bud. Great care should be taken to place sufficient officers over the negroes over the residences of Phillips and Sumner, at such as Fanueil Hall. These are the men people are afraid of.—New York Herald.
