THE KNOXVILLE WHIG.

Knoxville, Tenn., December 13, 1865.

To the East Tennessee Loyalists.

FELLOW CITIZENS: In my message to the Legislature, the first week in October, I urged the importance of conferring upon the FREE PEOPLE OF COLOR the privilege of testifying in courts of justice. I stated this fact: that as our laws now stand, a free colored man may be deprived of his life in the presence of an hundred colored witnesses, whose lips are sealed in the courts. I urged that our juries and judges would be intelligent men, the exclusive judges of the weight of testimony, and as such, they would take into consideration the character of the witness, both for honor and intelligence. I had three reasons for recommending this measure, and these still satisfy my mind that I was right.

1. The thing is right in itself, and the dictates of virtue, patriotism, humanity and religion, say give the colored man this showing.

2. It would do away in Tennessee, the necessity for a "Freedman's Bureau," a tribunal foreign to our Constitution and domestic laws; necessarily arbitrary, and which must be presided over, in many instances, by inexperienced military men, who have no law knowledge, and but little if any judicial experience. I knew then, as I know now, that the Government having emancipated the slaves, it would protect them by Congressional legislation, and that the "Bureau" must become a permanent institution.

3. I felt confident that the passage of such a law would satisfy the colored people and the country, and that the indiscriminate right of suffrage would not be exacted of us, whereas, if we should fail to concede to the negro the right to testify, Congress would grant it for us, and with it the right of suffrage.

A law to this effect has passed the Senate, but the chances are that it will be defeated in the House. If lost, it will be killed by the loyal votes of East Tennessee—the members correctly representing the sentiments of their constituents. This I knew when I pressed the measure in my message; but I believe the honest, patriotic people were mistaken as to their own best interests—I think so still, but time will show.

The rebels clamor for the right of testifying and voting, and Union men are ready to concede the right, on account of the color of their skin. One fact alone should settle the question as to the rebels—that is, for four years they did all they could to destroy the Government. For this they should not be allowed a voice in its affairs. One fact alone should settle the question as to the blacks—for four years they did all they could, by giving information and fighting, to save the Government. And, but for their color, the part they took in the rebellion would give them the right to testify and vote. The voice of prejudice says, hold them back. The voice of reason and justice says, take suffrage from the enemies of the Government, and give it to the friends.—If the States will not do this, Congress has the power, under the amended Constitution, to do it, and will and ought to carry it out. As to the powers of the National Government, what shall be the relations between itself and those who have been in rebellion against it, and between itself and those it has made free in order to put down the rebellion, and save its own existence, so much is conceded by all who advocate reorganization on any plan, from the President's experiment down to the fireside suggestion, that there is no necessity for claiming more than is conceded.

If in restoring the governments of the revolted States, the National Government may say that rebels who take a prescribed oath may vote; that others more guilty of treason shall not take this oath, and shall not vote; then it enacts a law regulating suffrage. And if it can enact such a law, there can be no limitation on its power, under the amended Constitution. It can say that some white men may vote and others may not; it can also say that some black men may certify and vote, and others shall do neither. Even rebels will acknowledge the correctness of the doctrine of Alexander Hamilton, in that he has affirmed—"EVERY GOVERNMENT OUGHT TO CONTAIN IN ITSELF THE MEANS OF ITS OWN PRESERVATION." The same Federal theory stated above, was enunciated by Abraham Lincoln, when he declared that—"THE PARAMOUNT IDEA OF THE CONSTITUTION IS TO PRESERVE THE UNION."

This theory is sound, and I hold that our nation contains in itself the means of its own preservation, and these means should be put forth by the men in authority. I, for one, deny that eleven States of this Union, and millions of its people, may renounce the authority of the Government; and, by an appeal to some dody its power; and, on the failure in the trial of arms, resume the power they had so violently renounced, and hold and exercise it in defiance of the nation. The States, whether in rebellion or otherwise, do not possess absolute, uncontrollable sovereignty. The National Government does, and it can, make war, and make peace. The States are political bodies, existing under the Constitution, and subordinate to the sovereign power of the nation; permitted by it to exercise such functions as are pointed out—by such as the punishment of crime, the administration of justice, and to regulate municipal affairs, and for other purposes, having the power of taxation.

The National Government may govern the seceded States with or without the forms of State elections. If it chooses to have elections, it has the right to prescribe the qualifications of electors; and it may make suffrage limited or universal. The seceded States have no such rights until they come up to the requirements of the National Government. The revolted States have destroyed their separate governments. As communities of people, as States bounded by geographical lines, and having certain limits, the rebel states are in the Union, and have never left it, but as governing powers, they are out in the Union, for as such, in their efforts to overthrow the Union, they have themselves been destroyed. And the National Government is bound by every tie, political and sacred, to hold and control the rebel States in a manner that will secure the safety of the loyal people in those States, and of the whole nation. The Government cannot allow itself to be destroyed by hostile votes any more than by hostile armies, and if an abuse of the elective franchise under the Constitution becomes the means of endangering the Union, safety must be sought in the adoption of the maxim enunciated by Hamilton and Lincoln, already quoted.

In the Southern States the recent elections have shown that men who had damaged the Union most received the most votes. The repudiation of the Federal debt and the payment of the rebel debt, are alike popular with the men now engaged in re-organizing the government of the Southern States.—The restoration of slavery is hoped for, and it is looked to in the voting and conversation of the original rebels.

The National Government will hold the South by military power, as it ought to do, until the people have so far come to themselves as to heartily repent of the guilt and spirit of the rebellion, and afford proof of their repentance. Every consideration affecting the interest of the country, and the happiness of generations yet unborn, requires that the rebels shall not be restored to power. And if we are hasty in anything, let it be in doing justice to the friends of the National Government. If we delay in anything, let it be in giving pardons to leading guilty rebels, and power to the organized enemies of the National Government.

I have deemed it my duty to say this much by way of explanation to the loyalists of East Tennessee, and by way of letting them know what is to come upon the country, by what I believe to be the necessary legislation of Congress. And in order to reach them, I will publish this brief address in the Union papers of East Tennessee. I have no selfish objects in view. I have no purpose to run for any office after my term of service expires; and, until then, if my life is spared, I shall do my duty, without looking to the effect of my acts upon my popularity.

W. G. BROWNLOW,
Governor of Tennessee.

November 30, 1865.

CHANCERY COURT—MARYVILLE.

John P. Bowen, Adm'r of Hugh Jones, dec'd, vs. Henry Sesler and Julius C. Fagg.

IT is alleged in this bill that the defendants are non-residents of the State of Tennessee, or so absond or conceal themselves that the ordinary process cannot be served upon them, or attachment having been levied upon their individual lands and town lots in Blount county: It is ordered that publication be made for four successive weeks in Brownlow's Whig, notifying said defendants to appear at the next term of said court at Maryville, on the fourth Monday of December next, to make defense to said bill, or the same will be proceeded with ex parte.

CHANCERY COURT—SEVIERVILLE.

M. A. Rawlings, Adm'r of the estate of L. W. Burns, dec'd, vs. James P. Catlett and others.

IN this cause it was ordered by the court at the October Term, 1865, that publication be made in Brownlow's Whig for four successive weeks, notifying all the creditors of the estate of L. W. Burns, dec'd, to appear at the next Special Term of the Chancery Court for Sevier county, to be held at the court-house in Sevierville, on the third Monday of March next, and become parties defendant to said suit, or they will be deprived of their collection of their said claims.

M. P. THOMAS, C. & M.

Attachment.

Keebler & Co. vs. E. McB. Timoney.

THE PLAINTIFFS, ON AFFIDAVIT, says the defendant is indebted to them, and is about to remove himself and property from the State, and having obtained an original attachment against the estate, made returnable before R. D. Jourolmon, a Justice of the Peace for Knox county, Tenn., and the same having been levied on his property: It is ordered by said Justice that the defendant appear before him at his office in Knoxville, Tennessee on the 9th day of June, 1866, or the same will be proceeded with ex parte. It is further ordered that this notice be published for four successive weeks in Brownlow's Whig.

R. D. JOUROLMON, J. P.

John Hornberger vs. E. McB. Timoney & Co.

THE plaintiff, on affidavit, says the defendants are indebted to him, and are about or have removed themselves or property from the State, and having obtained an original attachment against the estate of the defendants made returnable before R. D. Jourolmon, a Justice of the Peace for Knox county, and the same having been levied on their property: It is ordered by said Justice that the defendants appear before me at my house in Hawkins county, the 29th day of January next, or it will be proceeded with ex parte. It is further ordered that this notice be published for four successive weeks in Brownlow's Whig.

R. D. JOUROLMON, J. P.

Attachment.

Green T. Lee vs. J. N. and Alvis Gully.

IT APPEARING FROM THE AFFIDAVIT of the plaintiff in this cause, that the defendants are indebted to him and so absond or conceal themselves that the ordinary process cannot be served upon them, having obtained an attachment against the estate of the defendants made returnable before Thos. C. Miller, a Justice of the Peace for Hawkins county, and the same having been levied on their property: It is ordered by said Justice that the defendants appear before me at my house in Hawkins county, the 29th day of January next, or it will be proceeded with ex parte. It is further ordered that this notice be published for four successive weeks in Brownlow's Whig.

THOMAS C. MILLER, J. P.

Attachment.

William Mason vs. Benjamin Gundy.

IN this case the plaintiff having sued out an attachment against the defendant for the sum of three hundred and ten dollars, and it his attachment was levied on 3 tracts of land in Claiborne county, belonging to the defendant, and upon return of the same, the proceedings were postponed by me for six months, the defendant is therefore notified to appear before me at my house in Clairborne county, on the 8th of January next, to defend said suit, or judgment will be rendered therein. It is ordered that this be published for four weeks in Brownlow's Whig.

JACOB MYERS, J. P.

CHANCERY COURT—TAZEWELL.

BILL FOR DIVORCE.

John Hicks vs. Sarah Hicks.

IN THIS CAUSE IT APPEARING that the defendant is a non-resident: It is ordered that publication be made in Brownlow's Whig, for four successive weeks, notifying the defendant, Sarah Hicks, to appear before the Chancery Court at Tazewell, on the 1st Monday in December next, then and there to defend said suit, or it will be heard ex parte.

TO PHYSICIANS.

THE advertiser, a practising physician of Kingsport, Tenn., has for many years enjoyed a widely extended and lucrative practice in one of the richest and most pleasant agricultural districts of East Tennessee; but being admonished by the approaching infirmities of advancing age, desires to change his present location for one in which his practice would be confined to more contracted limits. He proposes to sell his home, consisting of a good dwelling-house, office, &c., on a few acres lot, pleasantly situated in the midst of the village—to a physician desiring to enter at once into a good and paying practice among a well-to-do and generous people, the present is an opportunity rarely to be met with. A good bargain on the most accommodating terms, will be given. The mail-through Kingsport has not yet been established, but any communication addressed to the subscriber at Kingsport, in the care of Mr. Wm. P. Brewer, Bristol, Tenn., will meet with prompt attention.

HAS THIS DAY EFFECTED AN arrangement by which he will be able in the future to supply all persons who may desire, from a single to a full set of teeth, on the VULCANIZED RUBBER BASE.

Being the latest improvement in our profession, and having been sufficiently tested to warrant its utility, we take pleasure in recommending it as being far preferable in many respects to any other base heretofore used. It can be used in many instances where all other materials fail. No one need, therefore, despair. Call on me, give me your work and I will demonstrate these facts.

Remember that a full set of teeth on this method cost only half what they would on gold, and yet preferable in all respects.
