Written on hearing of the loss, (and supposed murder by the Aborigines,) of an old and esteemed friend, while endeavoring to cross the Continent of Australia, from Melbourne to the Gulf of Carpentaria, and of the organization of a pioneer party to go in search of him or his remains.

Ye who prepare with pilgrim feet
Your long and doubtful path to wend,
Rejoicing on the waste, to meet
The cares of any wondered friend,—
Ho bears with reverence ye shall bear
To where some mountain stream shall flow,
There, by its sunny bank, prepare
The pillow of his lone repose.

It shall be by a stream whose tides
Are drunk by birds at every wing,
Where every leaflet flower stirs
The earliest wakening touch of spring;
Oh, meet that he, who so caressed
All lovely nature's varied charms,
That he, her worshiped son, should rest
Within his mother's kindest arms!

What though no reverend man be near,
No anthem cost its solemn breath,
No funeral rite invest the bier
With all the hallowed pomp of death,—
Yet humble minds shall find a grave,
Their prayers then offered on the sod,
Shall render holy all the place,
And consecrate the call to God.

And ye shall stand with pensive care
The memory of the dead to keep,
In silent hours to ponder he where
My venture need is laid to sleep.

For oh, bethink in other times,
And to those happier times at I wait!
When science, life, the smile of God,
Comes lightsome o'er that weary land,—
How will the pilgrim feel the power,
Beneath the drooping myrtle's gloom,
To stand aw and mourn an hour,
And pluck a leaf from Charlie's tomb.

The Methodist Church Case Decided.

On yesterday, the Circuit Court decided the Taylor street Methodist Church case in favor of the plaintiffs, perpetuating the injunction granted by the Judge in vacation, and adjudging costs against the defendants. No one of the defendants; except Mr. C. P. Buchanan, who filed an answer disclaiming any action on his part to prevent the free use of the church property by Dr. L. D. Huston and the trustees, or any desire to prevent its free use, made any defense whatever, but, through Mr. Ira Root, one of them, announced their intention, in open court, to let the case go by default.

The petition is charged that the defendants combined and conspired together, and by means of an armed mob, forcibly took possession of the church property; and by the same means forcibly prevented the pastor and congregation from worshipping therein. Upon the announcement made by Mr. Root, the petition was taken for confessed, and the cause submitted to the Court. After the injunction was granted, Dr. Huston, the pastor, was arrested by a military order while on his way to the church, and was taken to Louisville, and thence to Nashville, but released by order of the President of the United States on bond at Louisville, and afterward by order of Lieut. General Grant unconditionally. Thus the highest executive and military authority of the country, and the civil authority of Kentucky, have decided that Doctor Huston may freely occupy the pulpit of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, on Taylor street, and we hope the question is finally settled. It is due to Mr. Buchanan to state that upon his disclaimer the petition was dismissed as to him.—Un. Rep. 2d inst.

Letter from Gen. Pillow.

From the Memphis Bulletin.

HELENA, ARK., Nov. 26, 1865.

Messrs. Editors of the Bulletin:

In your issue of the 23d inst. I find the following paragraph, viz:

"Gen. Pillow has written a letter to the authorities, complaining that the Quartermaster in charge of the Government horse corral at St. Louis, will not allow him to examine the stock there, to see if he could not identify some of those once on his plantation near Nashville, but turned over by him to the rebel Government. He insisted that if the animals had been captured, he had the right, under his pardon, to demand their condition."

I have made no application to the Quartermaster's Department at St. Louis to be permitted to examine the horse corral, nor have I complained to the authorities that the Quartermaster would not allow me to do so. I have never turned over any mules to the Confederate authorities. If I had done so, and they had been captured by the Federal armies, I surely would not have been stupid enough to have expected those mules to be restored to me. I presume the report which this paragraph was intended to place before the public originated in the following facts: When the army commanded by Maj. Gen. Carl Schurz reached Helena, Ark., my four large cotton plantations were broken up; my costly and fine improvements were burned and destroyed, and about two hundred very fine mules were taken away. Ascertaining, recently, that the Quartermaster will hold many of the mules, and that they were in the Quartermaster's Department at St. Louis, and believing that the effects of my pardon was to entitle me to the restoration of all property which had not been sold by decree of any courts under the confiscation law, I visited St. Louis and made a written application to Major General Sherman, who commanded the military division, to restore to me the mules, to assist me in reorganizing my planting interests.

Gen. Sherman referred my application to the Quartermaster. That officer's endorsement stated that if I had been pardoned by the President, I was clearly entitled to all property taken from me which has not been sold by a decree of a court of competent jurisdiction. Gen. Sherman then referred my application to the Secretary of War, and asked if he should restore the mules. The Secretary declined restoring them. There the matter ended and there it now rests. I submitted to their decision without a murmur or complaint. I thought the right course, but feeling grateful for the courtesy of the movement in restoring to me my rights as a citizen, I did not think it becoming in me to complain, nor did I do so. These are the facts of the case. The information upon which you penned the paragraph referred to was, as you must see, wholly incorrect, and as that paragraph is well calculated to create a false impression on the public mind, and does me an injustice, may I not ask you to correct it, by publishing this communication.

I am, with respect,
Your ob't serv't,
GIDEON J. PILLOW.
