HON. GEORGE BROWN.—This gentleman has been dangerously ill with cholera. We are gratified to learn that he is now convalescent. Judge Brown has been attended in his illness by Dr. John M. Boyd of this city.

It will be seen by an advertisement in another column that Dr. Roback, of Cincinnati, O., (whose Stomach Bitters and Scandinavian Remedies have achieved a world wide reputation, solely by virtue of their intrinsic and unequaled merits) has sold out his entire business to the enterprising firm of Prince, Walton & Co., who will continue the business at the old stand, Nos. 56, 58, 60 and 62 East Third street, Cincinnati, O.

BETTER THAN THE IMPORTED.—The Brown Windsor and Honey Soap of Colgate & Co., New York, are superior to the imported articles. This is not mere assertion, but has been tested by long and careful analysis. This being the case, the domestic article should certainly be purchased in preference to any imported goods. American industry should always be encouraged, when, as in this case, it presents unexceptionable goods for public approval.

We direct attention to the straightforward, manly letter of the Hon. Isaac N. Arnold, published elsewhere, tendering his resignation to the President as Auditor of the Treasury for the Post Office Department. Mr. Arnold was Mr. Lincoln's intimate personal friend, and what he says of Mr. Johnson following in the footsteps of his predecessor is of the deepest importance.

PURE BRANDY.—The infamous practice of adulterating Brandies having become so common that a genuine article is the exception, it is of VITAL IMPORTANCE to those requiring it for family use and invalids that it should be of undoubted purity and efficacy.

We are pleased to notice that old and popular Wine Importers, Buninger & Co., No. 5 Beaver street, New York, are very opportune in calling the attention of families to their "GOLD MEDAL COGNAC," of which they say that, "With a view to meeting the popular demand for a reliable Brandy in its natural state, free from alcoholic flavor and impurities, and fully appreciating the fact that it is often recommended by the medical faculty as a sustaining stimulant, when all other remedies fail, we are now bottling and selling at reasonable rates a brandy of our own importation from one of the most responsible houses in France, and known as 'Buninger's Gold Medal Cognac.'"

This standard article is sold by all of the prominent Druggists in Knoxville.

Hon. N. G. Taylor in Maine---His Reception Rather Rough.

The Kittery, Maine, correspondent of the New York Herald, furnishes the following, under date of September 4th:

This evening Col. Taylor, of East Tennessee, one of the recently admitted representatives to Congress, came to Kittery, accompanied by Col. Mann, of Portland, to address a Johnson mass meeting.—Taylor fought nobly in the Union army during the war, and suffered heavily for his loyalty. He visited Maine some two years ago, and took up a subscription for the homeless Union men of East Tennessee. The Radical faction then sounded his praise throughout the length and breadth of the State as the unqualified advocate their loaded here now are to the policy of President Johnson is one of the hardest blows they have yet received. His second coming to Maine has carried consternation into their camp. He was roughly received.

Yet Col. Taylor's "noble fighting in the Union army" was like the story of Nancy, her husband, and the bear. The man secured a safe retreat in the loft of his cabin, and left his wife to fight the bear crying the while, "Lay on Nancy! lay on Nancy!" After Nancy had killed the bear, her husband came down and cried, "Aint we brave fellows, Nancy?" Col. Taylor never smell gun-powder in the Federal army—he belonged to the Union army in no way in fact, neither would he permit his sons to join it. And we assure our Northern friends of these facts—they may not be deceived. He never belonged to any military organization, and that is known at Andy Johnson's "Bread-and-Butter-Brigade," of which he lately sold himself—soul and body—breeches and boots. How his former constituents in the Congressional district relish this military "rod" of the Union, will be properly answered at the ballot box when he again presents himself before them as a candidate for re-election to Congress.—Jonesboro Union Flag.

The New Orleans Massacre.

The report of the military commission appointed to investigate the New Orleans massacre, has at last come to light. Its details are painfully interesting, yet its chief value lies rather in its full condemnation of the statements and opinions of the loyal press than in the novelty of its statements. It gives official authority to the following facts, the evidence of which was obtained by the testimony of white witnesses exclusively:

First—That the riot was deliberately planned by the rebels of New Orleans.

Second—That Mayor Monroe was fully cognizant of the movement, and purposely kept his police back until the mob had begun their work.

Third—That the police, two-thirds of whom were rebel soldiers, sided with the mob, and perpetrated the most atrocious outrageous.

Fourth—That the conspirators and the populace were exclusively the aggressors.

Fifth—That but for the interference of the military, scenes of bloodshed and incendiarism would have followed, surpassing in horror the Gordon riots in London, or any similar outbreak.

Sixth—That the Copperhead press had been fanning the smouldering fires of treason until they spread into a conflagration.

Seventh—That Northern men are safe in the discharge of their duties only by refraining from the expression of loyal sentiments, and that even with this precaution they would not have been tolerated had the designs of the rebels been fully succeeded.

Such are, in brief, the principal results to which a special commission arrived.

In this connection, it is worthy of remembrance that Andrew Johnson, in his St. Louis speech, made the following assertion: "If you will take up the riot at New Orleans and trace it back to the Radical Congress, you will find that the riot at New Orleans was substantially planned." The slander was false, like all his other falsity has been proved by the testimony of many of the women upon whom they passed judgment. By his libel on their sons and husbands, the President has outraged the people of the loyal States, and is thus proved an accomplice after the fact with the New Orleans cut-throats. Whether he completely extended further back is for the public to judge.—Cincinnati Gazette.

BITTEN BY A RATTLESNAKE.—On Monday morning, Mr. G. W. Cook, of New Lisbon, was bitten by a rattlesnake, and is now in a precarious condition. Mr. Cook had mown some grass to feed his horse, and was gathering it up in his arms to put it into his wagon, when he felt a sting which he at first thought was that of a bee, but lifting it up again, he found it was a snake of small size, which his scythe had cut nearly in two. The snake had buried his fang deep in the back of his right hand, and before medical aid could be obtained the venom had rapidly communicated itself to the adjoining tissues. Dr. Hayes was immediately called and did all in his power in the circumstances—having Mr. Cook was doing better, with good prospect of recovery.

REMOVAL OF UNION MEN FROM OFFICE.—The removal of Union men and the appointment of Copperheads and Rebels continues rapidly. That Mr. Lincoln's appointees are responsible with Mr. Johnson in this matter is clearly given plenty of evidence. Mr. Millard Assessor of Internal Revenue at Alexandria, Va., the first Union man in the State arrested and imprisoned by the Rebels, has been turned out of office to make room for a pardoned Rebel. The removal of Union postmasters and appointment of Democrats is becoming one of the features of Mr. Johnson's administration.—N. Y. Tribune, Oct. 1.

A Speech by President Lincoln Never Before Published.

At a political meeting in Philadelphia on the 25th of last month, J. W. Forney read a speech by President Lincoln. The circumstances as he narrated them, were, that early in 1863, a committee waited upon Mr. Lincoln for the purpose of presenting to him certain resolutions which had been unanimously adopted by the Union League of Philadelphia, demanding at the hands of the National Convention his renomination for the Presidency; that the speech of Mr. Lincoln was taken down by the reporters in full, but never published; that the reporters notes had been preserved by him (Forney) and he deemed it a fitting occasion to give the document publicity. The report of the speech is as follows:

I suppose all men are more or less selfish, and I do not suppose that I am an exception to the rule. I very freely acknowledge that this manifestation—of which I heard some time ago, and which is now formally presented to me—of the confidence of the Union League of Philadelphia, is very grateful to my feelings. If it should extend to the presentation of what is similar to it by the whole nation, it would by its comparatively greater size, be still more grateful to my feelings. When this is said, so far as personal and selfish considerations are concerned, all is said that is pleasant to me in the light of being here four years more. It is a situation which has been to me one of painful anxiety and toil far beyond anything I had ever before conceived of. Having said this much in regard to the mere selfishness of the matter and personality of the matter, I will state briefly what I suppose to be the duty of every true man in the country, myself included, and that is to do whatever he can that will best advance the great cause of saving our country. Now, I shall shrink from nothing that shall appear to me to be required of me for that object. I shall not shrink from another man's nomination for the Presidency with any greater hesitation than I would from my own. If it shall be made to appear in any way that the elements upon which the salvation of the country is to depend can be better combined by dismissing me, the country can have no difficulty in getting rid of me. On the contrary, I need not hesitate to say here that, if it shall appear that the best way of concentrating and consolidating the forces upon the salvation of the country is to depend on using me further, I can say I do not shrink from it. Now, I do not know, that it is best to publish this; but after what has been said to me, I could not avoid making it public. It is easy to misconstrue. It is easy to say I am in the field openly for the Presidency—canvassing for it. I hope I am not; I do not think it is good for the country that it should be so construed and understood. I am sure, here to-night, in the presence of you gentlemen and the Almighty, that there is not one act that I am conscious of having done that looked to this end for myself—that looked to any personal end. I think a man should, in times like these, so keep himself as to be conscious that whatever he has done in this high position, and especially in these extraordinary difficult times, he has done only for the good of the country. I am sure I have done no more than this, and I am sure that I will try and remain so. This is not a very long speech but I have nothing more to say.

Johnson's Love for Soldiers.

John T. Drury, a resident of Columbia City, Whitely county, Indiana, was one of the two hundred thousand brave men who went forth from Indiana at the call of their country to help put down the slaveholders' rebellion after a long term of faithful service he was stricken down by a rebel democrat bullet, at the battle of Chickamauga, and left on the field for dead. When our troops retreated, the rebels took him prisoner, cut off one of his legs, and sent him back to our lines crippled for life.

He returned home, and to enable him to earn a living for his wife and child, his friends procured his appointment as Post Master in his native town. Last week, without any notice, President Johnson removed him, and appointed in his place a wealthy Copperhead, who had always been a bitter enemy of the government which Drury sacrificed so much to maintain.

This is the love our President has for the soldiers. We have no doubt the removal of John T. Drury will add thousands of votes to the Union party in Indiana this fall.—Elyria, (Ohio,) Democrat.

ANSWER AND CROSS-BILL OF A. DOE.

A. N. Pate, et al., vs. Joseph W. Rudolph, et al.

IT APPEARING TO THE SATISFACTION of the Master from the allegation of the cross-bill of A. Doe, filed in this cause, that the cross-defendant, N. D. Pate, is a citizen of the State of Georgia, so that the ordinary process of law cannot be served on him. It is therefore ordered by the Clerk and Master at his October Rules, 1866, that publication be made for four successive weeks in Brownlow's Whig, notifying said respondent to appear before the Chancellor at a Chancery Court, to be held for the county of Jefferson, at the court house in Dandridge, on the first Monday after the fourth Monday of October next, to plead, answer, demur, or otherwise make defense to said cross-bill, or the same will be taken for confessed and the cause set down for hearing ex parte. CHANCERY COURT—DANDRIDGE.

PETITION TO SELL MADE PARTIES.

Hannah A. McBee vs. Adam H. McBee and J. P. Mathis, et al., vs. Adam H. McBee.

IT APPEARING TO THE SATISFACTION of the Clerk and Master from the return of the Sheriff upon the subpœna in answer to the case of the petition of J. P. Mathis, et al., vs. Adam H. McBee, that respondent M. Boe is a non-resident of the State of Tennessee, so that the ordinary process of law cannot be served upon him: It is therefore ordered by the Clerk and Master, at his September Rules, 1866, that publication be made for four successive weeks in Brownlow's Whig, notifying said respondent to appear before the Chancellor, at a Chancery Court to be held at the court house in Dandridge, on the first Monday after the fourth Monday of October next, then and there to plead, answer, demur, or otherwise make defense or the bill will be taken for confessed and the cause set down for hearing ex parte. A copy of the order.

DIOSMA CRENATA. BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.

Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic, their taste bitterish, and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.

Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs, producing Diuresis, and like other similar medicines, exciting Diaphoresis, when circumstances favor this mode of action.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections, and Dropsy.

HEI-MBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU

Is used by persons from the age of 18 to 25, and from 45 to 65, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; But certainly in children.

In Affections Peculiar to Females,

The Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in
