CHRISTMAS BELLS

Hark! Hark! I hear a distant bell,
And now it is near—they softly ring;
What joyful things do they tell
As back and forth they swing.

Cold of night—who rings those bells?
Perhaps some doves there nestling,
Their little bosom swells,
And warm, they touch with gentle wing
Is tuneful notes, and it feels
As inspirated it would swing
Life, and make the world with peals
Of gladness—as for new-crowned King.

The midnight bells, how sweet they chime,
The welkin vibrates with their sound;
Hearts attuned they are sublime,
Spread they dread alarm around.

Now I see, from East afar
A light shines through the steeple's frame,
Brighter than the brightest star,
Fills the fane with golden flame;
There, too, I see some cherubs cling
Hold the ropes. How fair they be!
Swing the bells and sweetly sing
This is the Christ's nativity."

Every heart, join in their song
Praise to Christ, our new-born King;
Our sweetest strains belong,
His, our richest offering.

Wakes the god of day, and shines
Heart the heavens, what of glee
Wake as well? With box and pines
Flowers gay, yon house will be
And while the anthem swells
Organ's voice, all Christendom
Vibrant be as are those bells
Christ's nativity has come.
—J. William Pope.

St. Botolph's Town.

Boston or St. Botolph's Town is a port in Lincolnshire, England, on River Witham, and four miles from mouth, with a wharfage of 2,330 In the days of the Plantaganets was one of the chief British sea but the silting in of the river been an obstacle to its growth of years, almost continual dredging necessary to keep a passage to sea, even for small vessels. Its tower, St. Botolph's, is a well-known conspicuous landmark, depend upon also by mariners at sea.
