YOU complain of fulness and pressure after eating; your head aches, usually in front. You are subject to the annoyance of bad breath and an unpleasant taste. You are hungry even after a good meal, and you keep thin and weak. These things affect your temper and disposition, and you are none too sweet to those around you.

That's Dyspepsia

"For two years I suffered from dyspepsia, until for days at a time I could not eat a thing. I had tried almost everything, but could not get relief. I then thought I would try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and in one week I was a new man. My tired feelings were gone: I was stronger and better in every way. I believe now if it were not for this medicine I would be in a dying condition."—JOHN MACDONALD, Philadelphia, Pa., August 16, 1899.

"I was troubled with dyspepsia for over twenty years, and it got so bad I came near dying. I was then induced, as a last resort, to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and after using several bottles of it, I became entirely well, and have felt well and strong ever since. I have used it in my family the last fifteen years, during which time we have not required the services of a doctor."—I. B. WILLIAMS, Central Point, Ore., July 6, 1899.

YOU are as tired in the morning as you are at night. You do not know what it is to have sweet, refreshing sleep. You have an appetite, yet your food seems to do you no good. Your mind does not respond quickly and your memory fails you. You lack energy, the eyes droop, the head is tired and heavy. You want to do many things, yet do no one thing satisfactorily.

That's Overwork

"Last July my oldest daughter was taken sick, and I was on my feet, it seemed to me, night and day for weeks taking care of her. I had no other help than that which my husband gave me, and by the time daughter began to mend I was down sick myself. I was discouraged, and did not care much whether I lived or died. My husband got me a bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and its effects were magical. Two bottles of this medicine put me on my feet and made a well woman of me."—JANE M. BROWN, Bentonsport, Iowa, Jan. 19, 1900.

"In 1898 my daughter, after graduating, was taken down with nervous debility. She had no strength, no appetite, could not sleep, and doctors did not seem to do her any good. At last, by the advice of a friend, I gave her Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After taking two bottles of this medicine there was a decided improvement. We followed up this treatment for two months, and my daughter quickly recovered her health."—MRS. OLLIE HEMMICK, Gardner, Ore., Dec. 23, 1899.

A Sarsaparilla made of chemically pure drugs, thoroughly examined, scientifically exhausted, and prepared with the utmost care.

YOUR muscles are flabby and flat. Your shoulders stoop. You are weak, listless, and tired. You are too cold or too warm; short of breath. You are like an engine that needs more fuel. You are one day sick and one day well; yet one day's good work brings three days' weariness. You feel old and ready to drop all the time.

That's Starved Blood

"Last spring I could not walk, my feet were so swollen. I was emaciated and my blood was like water, it was so colorless and thin. Eight doctors tried to cure me, but they did me no good. A council of doctors said that I could not possibly live. Then I thought I would try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, as I had read so much about it. I took three bottles, and now I am perfectly well and weigh over 150 pounds."—Mrs. M. E. SLATER, Pulaski, N. Y., July 13, 1899.

For Biliousness, take Ayer's Pills. Take them with Ayer's Sarsaparilla; one aids the other.

YOU worry over trifles, and strange fancies, born of a disordered mind, rob you of sleep. Things which would not trouble you in the day take horrible shape at night, and you get no benefit from your sleep. Or you toss uneasily, asking for morning to come. Sights and sounds annoy you and stillness oppresses you. You complain of numbness and a prickling sensation in the limbs.

That's Nervous Prostration

"During last year I was suffering with nervous prostration. For weeks I grew worse, became thin, could not sleep, had no appetite, and was in a wretched condition. After taking several kinds of medicines without result, I took Ayer's Sarsaparilla with more than pleasing results. My appetite returned, I slept soundly, my strength and weight increased, and now I am well and strong without the slightest trace of my old trouble. Indeed, I would hardly believe it possible for medicine to bring about such a change in any person."—CLARA MEALY, Winter Hill, Somerville, Mass., December 21, 1899.

JUNKET COMMITTEE FOR THE ORIENT.

Senate Bill Would Authorize a Commission to Investigate Trade Conditions.

SENATOR COCKRELL OPPOSED.

Committee to Have $75,000 at Its Disposal — Measure Opposes the Appointment of Senators or Congressmen.

Washington, March 24.—At the beginning of to-day's session of the Senate a bill was passed authorizing the President to appoint a commission to study and make full report upon the commercial and industrial conditions of China and Japan, and appropriating $75,000 for the payment of the expenses of the commission.

The bill aroused some debate. Mr. Berry of Arkansas registered his protest against the measure, his opinion being that too many commissions were being created.

Mr. Cockrell of Missouri opposed the measure and stated the position of the Senate minority on legislation.

"The Republican party is in absolute control, and we on this side of the chamber are powerless to prevent the enactment of any legislation coming from the Republican party and deemed necessary by it," he said. "I will not antagonize this bill, although I do not agree with it in principle. I want it understood now, and understood distinctly, that hereafter absolute responsibility must rest upon the Republicans for the passage of all resolutions and bills."

Mr. Gallinger (New Hampshire) supported the bill, saying the President had strongly recommended the passage of the measure. Germany had already sent commissions to the orient to investigate trade and commerce. He said it was now proposed to send this commission to China, Japan and other Oriental countries with a view to ascertaining whether increased markets cannot be found there for the products of American farms, mills and workshops.

Mr. Hoar (Massachusetts) opposed the appointment of Senators or Representatives in Congress on commissions or on other similar bodies, and after some discussion the bill was so amended that no member of either branch of Congress shall hereafter serve under any appointment made by the executive department of the Government while holding office as such member.

Mr. Bacon (Georgia) supported the measure. The bill was passed.
