THE ATTENTION OF THE

THEATRICAL PROFESSION,

SINGERS AND SPEAKERS

IS PARTICULARLY CALLED TO

RIKER'S EXPECTORANT,

One bottle of which is warranted to cure an ordinary cough or cold or your money is returned. A pleasant, swift and SURE CURE for Coughs and Colds.

If taken as soon as you feel that irritation or dryness of the throat, occasioned by a cold, FOUR to SIX DOSES WILL CURE.

It won't cure a horrible sore throat in one night, nor in fact will it cure anything in that space of time. It takes at least a day or so to cure a cold, but

"IT GETS THERE ALL THE SAME."

It STOPS your COUGH almost AT ONCE, but should you stop taking it after two of three doses probably your cough would return. One thing you can always be sure of: LONG before you have emptied the bottle you will be "all O. K."

As a trial of this TRULY WONDERFUL medicine COSTS NOTHING, and as 95 cases out of every 100 WILL BE CURED, it is worth your while to AT LEAST MAKE THE TRIAL.

Price per bottle, containing a half pint (enough to cure eight people if taken in time),

60 CENTS.

Insist on having RIKER'S EXPECTORANT, and you are positively sure of cure. Do not allow any one to persuade you otherwise.

Sold by almost all dealers throughout the United States, or will be sent free of charge to any part of the United States on receipt of price, by

MET THE FATE PREDICTED FOR HIM.

An Alabama Editor Shot by a Man He Had "Written Up."

[SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.]

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 5.—The redoubtable Tom Ellis, murderer of Clara Ross, to-night met the fate that has many times been predicted for him. Detective Andrew J. Sullivan helped to arrest Ellis some two weeks ago, when he shot Detective Scarborough, and in the first issue of his incorrigible Hornet, after he got out on bail, he wrote Sullivan up in the Hornet style, charging him with all manner of brutality and cowardice. Sullivan was out of town at the time, but returned to-day just in time to find another Hornet on the streets, with another volley of the same sort of abuse. Putting a 44-calibre pistol in his pocket and telling a number of friends what he meant to do he went gunning for Ellis. He did not find him until late in the afternoon.

Sullivan was sitting in Hewlett's billiard hall when Ellis entered. As their eyes met both palmed their guns and went to work. After eight shots were fired Ellis walked out to the sidewalk and fell down, and it was then found that he was twice wounded—one ball glancing from a billiard table grazed his cheek and another went through his stomach. This wound, it is thought, will kill him before morning.

Sullivan was not hit. He gave himself up and was taken to the Florence Hotel to supper and put under guard in his room.

Ellis says he did not notice Sullivan as he entered and was twice shot before he could get his pistol out. Sullivan says Ellis was apparently about to draw and that he "just got the drop." Nobody is able to tell just how the fight happened, although the room was crowded.

Confirmed on the Floating Chapel.

At the Floating Chapel, at the foot of Pike street, Right Rev. Bishop Henry Potter, assisted by Archdeacon Smith and Rev. R. J. Walker, the pastor of the chapel, yesterday administered the rite of confirmation to twenty women. The chapel was crowded to its greatest capacity by an attentive audience. It is under the direction of the Protestant Episcopal Society for Seamen.

DEATH OF BERNAL THE BANDIT.

Story of His Murderous Career in Mexico—How He Was Killed.

[SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The State Department is in receipt of the details of the pursuit by Mexican troops and final killing of the notorious bandit Eraclio Bernal, the slayer of Leon Baldwin, for whose death his widow is now pressing a claim for indemnity against the Mexican Government. The story of the life and death of this remarkable robber is romantic in the extreme. He was born thirty-eight years ago in the State of Sinaloa, Mexico, and during his early manhood bore the reputation of an industrious and law-abiding citizen. Twelve years ago he was arrested and convicted of a crime of which he was afterwards proved innocent. Smarting with shame and humiliation he seized a desperate chance and effected his escape from prison. He then swore a solemn oath that his future career would amply revenge the wrongs he had suffered, and that if again imprisoned it would be for good cause.

He left the villages behind him and lay in hiding in the mountains until he had gathered about him as wild and lawless a band of cutthroats as ever followed a desperate leader. Bernal's great stature, perfect ignorance of fear and a rude but keen sense of justice made him at once admired and respected by the villains with whom he had surrounded himself. He set out at once upon a systematic career of pillage and violence, at first confining himself to waylaying stage-coaches, robbing the passengers and killing those who offered resistance. Growing bolder as his band became larger, he descended upon outlying hamlets and often laid whole villages under contribution, carrying off by force everything that was deemed him.

Young girls were frequently kidnapped and taken to the mountain fastnesses of the band, where they were held until heavily ransomed. His journeys were made by night, and his favorite method of pillaging a town was to select one twenty or thirty miles from his camp, and after a hard ride fall upon it like a wolf just at daybreak. After the death of Leon Baldwin Bernal's band threatened the lives of a number of Mexican mule-packers unless they would leave the service of the Americans. Several refused to do so, and were killed. Crippin Garcia and George Ayon, relatives of the dead men, started out alone in search of the outlaw's den.

They found Bernal, surrounded by a few followers, encamped on the top of a mountain. In the hope of capturing him alive they returned to the mines, where a few soldiers were stationed under Lieut. Fernandez. With twenty men Fernandez set out for the camp of the outlaws. The inhabitants of a neighboring village, Amoles, had learned, were roused, and a number of them organized and placed under the command of Juan Heraza. Under the guidance of Garcia and Ayon the little band toiled up the mountain side under cover of night. After a perilous climb among rocks and ravines they arrived near the summit, where they formed a cordon around the camp.

Catching sight of a swarthy face among the rocks Garcia fired his rifle, the signal for the attack. Bernal himself led several impetuous charges against the villagers and fought desperately for more than an hour. The conflict was hand to hand and Bernal was finally separated from his band. Having emptied his revolver and rifle he clubbed the latter and rushed at Garcia, who leveled his pistol and shot the outlaw dead.

The reward of $10,000 offered by the State of Sinaloa for Bernal's head has been paid to Garcia. The death of Bernal has greatly relieved the territorial governors of Sonora and Durango, and the mining operations of the American and English companies are being carried on without fear of molestation. This improved state of affairs has been mainly brought about through the appeals of Mrs. Baldwin, and the American residents of those provinces recognize and appreciate her efforts in their behalf.

Leon Baldwin was the cold-blooded murder of Mr. Baldwin was told in THE WORLD of Jan. 22 last. He was superintendent of a mine in the State of Durango owned and operated by Americans. One day last autumn, when near the mine, he was fired upon by a couple of Bernal's gang, but managed to get into the timber. He was not much hurt. The bandits approached the mine and parleyed with native miners. Finally they promised Mr. Baldwin not to hurt him if he would come out and talk with them. Thinking they were after money and that immunity from further molestation could be obtained by its payment Mr. Baldwin went out to meet them, and a few minutes later was shot dead by the bandits.

Mrs. Cleveland's Dead Uncle.

BOSTON, Feb. 5.—The remains of Mr. Homer F. Harmon, Mrs. Cleveland's uncle, who died on Friday, were carried to Houlton, Me., this evening. The funeral services will be held at that place, the home of Mrs. Harmon. This afternoon, at the Waverly House, Charlestown District, a service of prayer was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Sprague, rector of the Episcopal church in Charlestown. Only the relatives were present. Mrs. Folsom is here, on from New York, and Mr. Milford Harmon, of Jackson, Mich., reached the hotel yesterday at noon. Mrs. Cleveland sent a letter from Washington full of sympathy.

The Old Doctors

Drew blood, modern doctors cleanse it; hence the increased demand for Alteratives. It is now well known that most diseases are due, not to over-abundance, but to impurity, of the Blood; and it is equally well attested that no blood medicine is so efficacious as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

"One of my children had a large sore break out on the leg. We applied simple remedies, for a while, thinking the sore would shortly heal. But it grew worse. We sought medical advice, and were told that an alterative medicine was necessary. Ayer's Sarsaparilla being above all others, we used it with marvelous results. The sore healed and health and strength rapidly returned."—J. J. Armstrong, Weimar, Texas.

"I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla to be an admirable remedy for the cure of blood diseases. I prescribe it, and it does the work every time."—E. L. Pater, M. D., Manhattan, Kansas.

"We have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla here for over thirty years and always recommend it when asked to name the best blood-purifier."—W. T. McLean, Druggist, Augusta, Ohio.

"Ayer's medicines continue to be the standard remedies in spite of all competition."—T. W. Richmond, Bear Lake, Mich.
