WHAT A BRAHMIN SAYS.

His Country and His Religion—View of the Eastern Situation.

[Inter Ocean Interview.]

Chicago is visited at present by a very important personage, who, though not of exalted rank, is a man who commands respect in his own country, and is of a class rarely to be met with out of it. His name is Gopal Vanayka Joshee, a native of Bombay, East India, and he is about 40 or 45 years of age, an ardent Brahmin, and a learned and keen-witted scholar. He was possessed of great wealth, but in compliance with the requirements of his religion he gave away his fortune and set out on a trip around the world, without means, preaching and teaching his religion and lecturing against English rule in his native land.

In an interview he said that the population of India is about 250,000,000, of whom 125,000,000 are Mohammedans, 10,000,000 Brahmins, 600,000 Christians, 80,000 Buddhists, and the rest followers of the Vedic religion. Brahminism, he says, was founded by God himself, who revealed himself to men, and, as Moses and Christ, the founders of Judaism and Christianity, heard voices from heaven. This religion was revealed only to Brahmins, who are people of superior knowledge. Brahma" signifying "knowledge." Previous to these revelations they had no religion, and the revelations were not all made at once, but from time to time. Brahminism is thousands of years old, and was preserved from generation to generation, "from the tip of the tongue." It has only recently been committed to paper, the books containing it being four in number—Rig-Veda, Yajur-Veda, Sama-Veda; and Atharwana-Veda. These books treat respectively on philosophy, science, socialism, and agriculture. They are supposed to consummate these subjects and no modern civilization has surpassed them.

The Brahmin idea of God is that He is force without form, pervading the universe, but doing nothing and undoing nothing. Everything comes into and goes out of existence as cause and effect. God is not intelligence nor wisdom nor kindness nor hatred, neither creator, preserver, nor destroyer.

The universe, the Brahmins contend, was not created, but comes of itself and is governed by itself. "As to a future state of existence," said Mr. Joshee, "as we are here, so we will be hereafter, in a different form of existence. As water is changed into vapor, vapor into clouds, and clouds into water, so we are changed. As the friction of the clouds produces electricity, so friction of souls produces brightness, which we call the brightest perfection of the all-prevading force. Death is a struggle which separates spirit from matter and transforms it into higher existence, called purified souls, whose destiny is to return to the ocean of force from which it originally emanated."

Brahmins believe in transfiguration of souls, but do not believe in taking birth in any lower form of the animal kingdom, but simply in being born again. As far as crime is concerned, the Hindoos are not criminal to the same extent as other religionists, judging of nations by percentage. The social life of the Brahmins does not differ greatly from other inhabitants of India, save that they are more cleanly in their habits and practice self-denial.

The effect of English rule and the subjugation of India is very baneful in all its bearings to the native population. It is alleged that the natives are compelled to prostrate themselves before every white face, and take off their shoes when they attend public officers of courts. If Russia should ever defeat the English on the borders of India, Mr. Joshee thinks, it would be the means of making India an independent nation. Russia would not be friendly to the Hindoos, but if the English power were overthrown by Russia, the power and aid of England could be depended on, in case Russia became tyrannical. India looks forward to the day when England will be whipped by Russia, and in case of a war with Russia, England could not rely on her native Indian troops. Should the Russians take India they would appoint native officers in the army, and in the civil service, and they will be eligible to all high posts under the government. One-half the English army in India, which numbers 60,000 men, are natives.

Intemperance is a modern vice, but its votaries can be counted by thousands. Formerly drunkenness was punished with death, but now a drunkard is an honorable man. If a man doesn't drink he is considered ignorant and not a man of letters. The English make the laws and levy the taxes, which are very heavy. Cultivators hardly raise enough to support their families, for as soon as crops are reaped they are sold at any price to pay the revenue into the government treasury. Lands are taxed irrespective of crops.

Mothers Stand by Their Sons.

[Brooklyn Eagle.]

"Mothers stand by the prisoners the best," said the warden of Sing Sing, in a desultory talk. "No matter what the son has been the mother never forgets him, and every two months when he is allowed to see her for a little while she is sure to be here with some fruit or delicacy to remind him of her love. Wives are usually devoted for a short time, but if they are young and pretty, and their husbands are in for long terms, they usually drift away after a few visits. Fathers seldom or never come here, for a father is the last one to forgive the disgrace which the son has brought upon him. This is but another illustration of the undying nature of a mother's love."

The Critic Defined.

[Norristown Herald.]

"What is a literary critic?" asks a cotemporary. A literary critic, inquisitive sir, is generally a man who tells another man how to do something he can't accomplish himself.

The Latest Figures.

[Detroit Free Press.]

They have been making new figures on the coal supply, and it is now believed that it will take 11,000 years to exhaust the supply, even if you don't sift your ashes.

Washington Hatchet: Humor is the anvil upon which to crack a smile.

The Chicago Man's Nice Definition.

[Brooklyn Eagle.]

A witness who was testifying to the disposition of his wife before a Chicago judge cautiously described her as a woman of "marked vivacity." Every since Socrates discovered Xantippe the "vivacity" of women has been accepted as the best explanation of the humility of most men.

"How's Your Liver?"

In the comic opera of "The Mikado" his imperial highness says:—

"To make, to some extent,
Each evil Liver
A running river
Of harmless merriment."

A nobler task than making evil livers, rivers of harmless merriment no person, king or laymen, could take upon himself. The liver among the ancients was considered the source of all a man's evil impulses, and the chances are ten to one to-day that if one's liver is in an ugly condition of discontent, some one's head will be mashed before night!

"How's your liver?" is equivalent to the inquiry: Are you a bear or an angel to-day?

Nine-tenths of the "pure-cussedness," the actions for divorce, the curtain lectures, the family rows, not to speak of murders, crimes, and other calamities are prompted by the irritating effect of the inactivity of the liver upon the brain. Fothergill, the great specialist, says this, and he knows. He also knows that to prevent such catastrophies nothing equals Warner's Safe Cure renowned throughout the world, as a maker of

A running river
Of harmless merriment."

A Merced, Cal., dispatch says: Laborers in the employ of C. H. Huffman, who were engaged in hauling dirt from the banks of Bear creek, about one mile from town, discovered yesterday what appeared to be human bones. Upon examination the bodies of three persons, apparently Indians, were exhumed. They were about twelve feet from the surface and from appearances had been there a long time. They were all lying on their sides. Bows and arrows and a stone mortar were found with each body. The bodies, with the exception of one skull, crumbled to pieces on being exposed to the air. One body was seven feet in length and had enormous jawbones and teeth. The latter are in a good state of preservation. The discovery of the bodies excited much interest.

Owing to the depression in the silver mining industry the newspaper business is evidently on the wane in Nevada. Of the fifteen counties in the State, only thirteen are represented by newspapers, and six by only one each. The counties unrepresented are Churchill and Roop.

SAINT LOUIS, - - - MISSOURI

This great Tonic has been introduced to the people of the Mississippi Valley for the past thirteen years with unbounded success and popularity.

There is nothing of the kind extant that equals it as a stimulant, an aperitive, or anti-dyspeptic. It is particularly adapted to malarious districts and as a

Preventative of Chills, is not surpassed.

It is endorsed by the best chemists as the most efficacious, strengthening Tonic this country has ever produced, the value of which will be recognized by all who may use them.

Private citizens of Arizona visiting St. Louis have expressed their convictions that it is peculiarly adapted to the wants of that Territory, and needs only a trial to insure its speedy introduction there.

Orders addressed to THE WEST INDIA MANUFACTURING COMPANY will be promptly executed. dec 13-tf
