WELL, IT'S HERE AT LAST.

The Long Promised Cold Wave Strikes Manhattan Island.

Jack Frost is out in all his glory to-day, and he pinched the ears of pedestrians, frosted men's beards, quickened the color in the cheeks of pretty girls and turned the noses of high livers a beautiful blue.

The cold wave, longed and prayed for, starting Monday in Alaska, swept beautifully down the Pacific coast, leaving the Rockies and passing across Montana, Dakota, Minnesota and the great lakes, began to introduce itself in New York last night.

The mercury began to get low-spirited last evening, and by 3 o'clock this morning it was shining at 18 degrees. Sergt. Dunn assured THE EVENING WORLD reporter that the mercury would continue to drop, sure pop, till some time to-morrow, and that it would undoubtedly reach ten degrees by to-morrow night—unless!

Unless a measly, little, "low barometer," known to common people as a rainstorm, that is beginning to form away up in that positively stormy new State, Montana, should get up steam enough to catch the cold wave and spoil the fun.

But, anyway, there has been a "skimming" of ice on all the little lakes in New York from Rock and to Canandaigua for three or four days, and the outlook for the usual ice crop is good.

The Hudson is frozen down as far as Albany, and the rivers and lakes of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, and the north end of this State, are already frozen to a good thickness, and the iceman will have no excuse for mulcting his victims more than usual next July.

The zero line runs through the middle of Illinois, Indianapolis, Columbus, and would touch Manhattan, too, if the sea were not so near.

The sky over the greatest Republic is clear, except for a flurry of snow in Vermont and a nasty rain in Texas, just to show the wide diversity of our climate.

There is snow all through the northern part of this State and New England, and good sleighing is being enjoyed.

PAY DAY ONCE A WEEK.

Labor Leaders Heartily Indorse "The World's" Weekly Payment Bill.

Its Provisions Deemed Certain to Accomplish the Objects Desired.

No public measure designed to benefit the great class of wage-earners, and those who depend directly upon them for their prosperity in trade, has ever been welcomed with such unqualified and universal approval as THE WORLD Weekly Payment bill, which has been introduced in the Legislature by Senator George F. Roesch.

Since its provisions have been made public, and have become more generally understood and appreciated, messages of enthusiastic commendation have been coming in from representative labor men from all parts of the State.

It is just what has been needed, they say, for a long time, and it covers the whole ground so thoroughly, and secures so effectively the strict enforcement of its provisions, that it fills every requirement that could be suggested, and it would be difficult if not impossible to improve upon it.

Petitions are already being circulated in all central localities, among the wage-workers, asking the Legislature to pass the bill just as it stands, and it is probable that the united support which is given to the measure by the hundreds of thousands who will be its beneficiaries will have its due effect upon the law-makers at Albany.

The point which is regarded with special favor by those who have had experience with similar measures that have proved ineffective after they have become laws, is the mandatory clause of the bill.

This provides that the factory inspectors of the State shall at once bring complaint against any corporation which neglects to comply with the provisions of the act for a period of two weeks after having been notified that such steps will be taken.

A great many laws have produced no visible results, because proper means of enforcing them have not been provided.

In the present case the difficulty has been practically solved, for any employee in a factory or corporation where the law is being violated can call the attention of the factory inspectors or their assistants and deputies to the fact, and immediate steps can be taken to make them comply with the law.

In a word, if the bill passes in its present form, it will absolutely secure the payment of weekly wages to every employee of a corporation within the State.

Another provision of the bill, which is regarded as one of its most admirable features, is the prohibition against the assignment of future wages. This not only prevents a very common evasion of the law as practised in those States where such legislation has been enacted, but it will do away with a very serious source of injury to the employees themselves, and tend to foster more economical and provident habits among those who earn even the smallest wages.

In Massachusetts there is a Weekly Payment law, which has been in successful operation for two years past. It was not secured except after a bitter fight with the corporate interests of that State, some of which contested its passage for several years.

THE WORLD'S bill includes all the strong points of the Massachusetts law, and many more besides. When it is passed an army of usurers and extortioners, who live and grow fat upon the wages of the workmen in the big factories and in the mines, will find that their occupation is practically gone.

The first hearing in the Legislature on the bills for the weekly payment of wages is set down for Jan. 30, and the friends of THE WORLD's bill should turn out in full force in its support.

WORK FOR THE FIREMEN.

Four Lively Fires in Quick Succession This Morning.

Wind rattled the shutters of Mr. L. Keyser's bedroom, in the second story of 110 East Sixtieth street, so loudly early this morning that Mr. Keyser got up to close them. As he threw up the sash the lace curtain was blown against a gas-jet and caught fire.

Mr. Keyser tore it down and stamped on it. Then the carpet began to burn and next the bed.

Then Mr. Keyser roused the household and ran downstairs to summon help.

Before he reached the street two frightened servants yelling fire from the window had sent Policeman Collins and Burnhogen running for the nearest alarm-box, which is at Fourth avenue and Sixtieth street.

It would not open and Policeman Collins smashed it with his club. The engines came when the flames were bursting out of all the windows in the second story.

It is a neighborhood of cornerstone fronts and not used to nocturnal excitement of that sort. The commotion was great. The flames had licked up all there was in the second and third stories before they were put out.

The rest of the house, with its fine furniture, was soaked in water. Mr. Keyser's loss is $5,000, and the house was damaged $1,000. It is uninhabitable for the present.

Shortly after 3 o'clock a gas jet set fire to a window-curtain in Mrs. C. Alward's house, 126 East Twelfth street, but that fire was checked more successfully. It did but slight damage.

At the same hour, the occupants of the five-story building, 102 West Twenty-ninth street occupied by the family of Mrs. E. Willis, were driven from their beds by a fire that damaged the building $1,500. How it originated is not stated.

An overheated grate in a first-floor flat at 574 West Forty-second street, occupied by Isaac Heft, set the house on fire at 1 o'clock. The firemen swashed the wall and floor and put out the fire with a loss of little more than $100.

THE HUDSON FREEZING.

Rapid Formation of Ice Under the Cold Wave's Influence.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

POUGHKEEPSIE, Jan. 22.—The cold wave has entered the Hudson River valley and the mercury is dropping. It was 19 degrees above zero this morning.

Ice is rapidly forming at all points on the river, and ponds and lakes are frozen over.

NEWS OF FOREIGN LANDS.

Americans Profit by the British Boycott in Portugal.

8,000 Deaths from Cholera in Mesopotamia—Tableaux at Osborne.

(BY CABLE TO THE PRESS NEWS ASSOCIATION.)

LISBON, Jan. 22.—American mercantile houses and commercial travellers are reaping a harvest from the trouble between Portugal and England.

In Lisbon and other cities and towns American traders are displacing boycotted British merchants, and are selling more American goods than were ever before sold in this country.

The Queen Allows Tableaux at Osborne.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Society here is deeply moved in its highest and lowest circles by the fact that the Queen consented that a performance of tableaux vivants should be given last evening at Osborne, where the Court is now staying.

This abandonment of the Queen's past policy of seclusion is a matter at once of astonishment and delight to her loyal liege.

At the entertainment in question the Princesses Louise and Beatrice and the Marquis of Lorne took part, and the Queen herself, apparently greatly interested, gave many directions and made several suggestions.

Harry Marks Fined £55.

(BY CABLE TO THE PRESS NEWS ASSOCIATION.)

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Harry Marks, the former New York reporter, now proprietor of the Financial News, against whom Mr. Figg, a stock broker, brought suit for libel, has been found guilty and sentenced to pay £55 and the costs of the suit.

Quiet at the Charleroi Mines.

(BY CABLE TO THE PRESS NEWS ASSOCIATION.)

BRUSSELS, Jan. 22.—The situation at Charleroi is improving and work is being resumed in the mines. Acts of violence have ceased.

Many thousands of miners, however, are still out, refusing the conditions offered by the employers.

The troops have not been called upon to interfere.

3,000 Deaths from Cholera.

(BY CABLE TO THE PRESS NEWS ASSOCIATION.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 22.—Reports from Mesopotamia state that cholera is raging there with terrible virulence, and that three thousand deaths have occurred already.

Comte de Paris Coming to America.

(BY CABLE TO THE PRESS NEWS ASSOCIATION.)

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The Comte de Paris, on leaving Lisbon, will go to America, where he will remain two or three months.

Sneak Thieves in London Clubs.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The committees of several of the leading London clubs are greatly perturbed by constant thefts of coats and umbrellas, and have about come to the conclusion that the culprits are to be found among the members.

Spies have been employed to discover the transgressors.

FIGHTING TO STAY HERE.

Young Rammer Produced in the Supreme Court on Habeas Corpus.

James Rammer, the young German tailor, who has been detained on Ward's Island since he landed on Jan. 15, was produced by the Castle Garden authorities before Judge Barrett, in Supreme Court, Chambers, this morning, in obedience to a writ of habeas corpus.

Rammer said he had $100 in cash and $50 worth of baggage when he landed. He intended to go to his uncle in San Francisco in the near future, but for the present proposed to seek work in this city.

He charged that his detention was the outcome of a threat that if he did not buy a ticket of the agent in Castle Garden that he would be imprisoned on Ward's Island.

The commissioners on their arrival denied the allegations of the petition, and as there is a dispute as to the facts Judge Barrett ordered a reference to J. J. Noalls.

Death of Moritz Herzberg.

Moritz Herzberg, formerly the proprietor of the West Brighton Casino, at Coney Island, died suddenly at his home, 45 Downing street, at the age of forty-three years. Mr. Herzberg was engaged in the liquor business in this city and had a large circle of friends, to whom the news of his sudden death was a great shock. His funeral will be held to-morrow morning.

Late Gossip Heard in Greenroom and Box-Office.

Comment in Theatrical Circles on Thomas Crehan's Death.

The theatrical profession, notably one of the most liberal gatherings of men and women, has had a rude shock in the death of the old man Crehan in a Brooklyn Police Court the other day. The event is causing more discussion than outsiders imagine. In fact, it is impossible to pass it glossily over. Said a well-known manager yesterday: "Picture to yourself a weather-beaten old Irishman arriving in a new country with his children, settling down, resolved to make a livelihood for himself and for them. Imagine his struggles to educate them, for they are all well-educated: think of the care he has expended on them. Time passes; advancing years tell their tale with the old man; he becomes comparatively useless, a victim to habits that cause all his friends sincere pain. But the children have prospered. Ada is perhaps the most prominent actress in the United States. She owns a flat-house in Thirty-ninth street, and has it in her power to own as many more as she wants. Mrs. Oliver Doud Byron is a hardly less conspicuous figure in the American dramatic world. The son Arthur is a manager of an excellent and profitable organization; another son is well known in the mercantile circles of Brooklyn. Five dollars a week from each of these children would have given poor Crehan painful comfort. Just $5, a mere drop in their earnings. Last picture of all: the old man in a police court to be committed for inebriety. The anguish is too keen. Death is perhaps his kindest friend. It removes him from his troubles; it frees his children of a father who had become a bore, who had on several occasions annoyed them by boisterous behavior at the theatres in which they played. Extenuating circumstances, of course, but it seems to me that in 'King Lear' Shakespeare has written them a lesson that ought to sink into their hearts.

VICTIMIZED BY A DOCTOR.

Two Italians Who Made Contracts for Medical Attendance.

Two Italian laborers living at 3 Mulberry street complained to the Board of Health to-day that they had contracted with a doctor to attend their sick wives, each to pay $35 for his services.

One of them paid the amount in full and the other paid $20, and after a few visits he ceased to call any more. They had no money to pay another doctor and their wives were growing worse.

They exhibited receipts signed "S. D. Pomery, M. D."

Dr. Nagle advised them to put their wives in a hospital and sue the doctor.

The contract system is said to be common among physicians who attend Italians, the latter reporting to this method on economic principles. This is the first breach of such a contract reported to the Health authorities.

COMMISSIONER MOSS SICK.

To-Day's Meeting of the Electrical Board Postponed.

The meeting of the Board of Electrical Control, which was called for this afternoon by Mayor Grant, was postponed at the request of Mr. Hess, on account of the sudden illness of Secretary Theodore Moss.

Nothing has yet been learned in regard to the appointment of Commissioner Gibbens's successor, and speculation is still rife as to what that gentleman's real reason for resigning was.

The particular plum which is expected to fall to Mr. Gibbens lot is said to be the prosecution of the electric light, telegraph and telephone companies of the city for damages incurred in the course of taking down useless and defective poles and wires.

HE STOLE TO GET FOOD.

William Vonderleith, the Transfusion Subject, in Jail for Burglary.

Discharged from Bellevue Unrewarded and Out of Work.

While Col. Robert G. Ingersoll was delivering before the State Bar Association his masterly oration on "Crime Against Criminals," in which he declared that starvation made man a thief, and abject poverty and the failure of human charity made him the foe of society, William Vonderleith, the man who yielded up one-third of his life's blood in Bellevue Hospital that four poor creatures might live was confined in Raymond Street Jail, Brooklyn, charged with burglary and stealing a bag of carpenter's tools.

Vonderleith's self-sacrifice went unrewarded, and a week ago he was discharged from the hospital, cured of the disablement which obliged him to go to the hospital in October, but penniless, friendless and homeless.

He found a friend who permitted him to stay at his home, 72 Greenwich street, and day after day Vonderleith tramped up and down the streets in a fruitless search for employment. He is a carpenter, but he wanted work of any kind that would take him out of the list of mendicants.

He drifted to Flatbush, where he came upon a vacant house late Sunday night.

The foot, which was injured last October, and with which he was confined in Bellevue Hospital three and a half months, was very painful and Vonderleith dragged himself into the house to rest.

He found some bits of wood on the floor, and with them built a fire in the grate. He lay down to sleep on the floor. When he awoke he saw a bag containing carpenters' tools, and when he left his resting place he carried the bag on his shoulder.

Policeman Hackett met him on the street, and recognizing him as a ranger, halted him. Vonderleith was unable to give a satisfactory account of himself and was arrested.

Then he broke down completely and confessed his theft. The owner of the tools was found. He was Richard Burtlis and although he was told of how Vonderleith had submitted to bleeding at Bellevue hospital he would not permit Justice Kelly to dismiss the charge.

Vonderleith was taken to Raymond Street Jail, where he must await the action of the Grand Jury.

THE EVENING WORLD gave a full description Monday of the blood-letting at Bellevue.

While Vonderleith was confined in the hospital with his injured foot he bared his arm four times and submitted brave yet without flinching to an operation, which, each time, took from him all the blood which could be spared without killing him.

Two lives were saved through Vonderleith's fortitude—those of Morris A. Redding, who was found, Oct. 29, unconscious and dying in his room at 306 East Thirty-fourth street with the gas turned on, and George Jenssen, who blew out the gas at the Sherman House, Dec. 31, and was nearly dead when taken to Bellevue.

Redding now lives, thanks to twelve ounces of Vonderleith's blood which Dr. Cummings transferred by means of a little pump, and Jenssen got no less than twenty ounces, enough to bring him back to life, though it prostrated the generous Vonderleith so that it took him several days to recuperate. There were two other patients who failed to live, though they received twelve and sixteen ounces of Vonderleith's blood respectively.

Vonderleith never received, and was never offered one cent nor even thanked for the lives which he had given back, but was turned out into the world without a penny and without friends.

ANNOYING MRS. MACKAY.

Absurd Yarns that Are Told of the Famous American Woman.

Mrs. John W. Mackay is another of my countrywomen who comprehends fully all the minutiæ of elegant dress, and she maintains all the delicacy of her taste in toilets despite the demoralizing effect in that respect of a residence in England, says Lucy Hooper in the St. Louis Post Dispatch.

I rejoiced very much at the verdict given in Mrs. Mackay's favor lately against the editor of the Manchester Examiner, who had published malicious falsehoods concerning her. Some people have declared that it would have been more dignified on the lady's part to have suffered these falsehoods to have passed unnoticed.

Such, however, is not my opinion! Mrs. Mackay has bravely and steadily borne a series of just such attacks in the American as well as in the European press, taking no notice, though pained, as any woman of delicate and sensitive feelings must be, by such unprovoked abuse and such malicious inventions.

A lady of great personal beauty and of singular refinement of person and manner, and of nature as well, highly educated and accomplished, generous and kind-hearted to a fault, an admirable hostess and a patriotic American, she has seen her appearance and personality vilified, and ridiculous incidents and anecdotes invented about her (without even the slightest foundation of truth for these last) in a most shameful way.

Witness the story of her working to buy the Arc de Triomphe, an absurd invention that is brought forward regularly every few months in some newspaper or other, either at home or abroad, and in which there is not a shadow of truth.

Witness, too, the statement that when she gave a grand dinner party in honor of the Prince of Wales her royal guest refused to sit at the same table with the rest of the company and dinner was served for him in a separate room. That, too, was sheer invention. The Prince took his hostess in to dinner, as does any favored guest to whom such an entertainment is given, and he sat at her right hand throughout the whole repast, behaving just as any well-bred gentleman does under similar circumstances.

And despite unpleasant surroundings and position in European society, Continental as well as English, Mrs. Mackay has always remained most genuinely and enthusiastically American. Her beautiful home and her superb entertainments are always open to her own country people, and her old friends of bygone days always meet with a warm welcome at her hands. And now I think it is high time that she should take measures for opposing these continual and causeless attacks.

Reformer (to convict)—My dear friend, why did you break into that bank?

Convict—Cause there was money in it.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers are offering imitations which they claim to be Pearline, or "the same as Pearline." It's false—they are not, and besides are dangerous. PEARLINE is never peddled, but sold by all good grocers.

Baseball Rivalry Already Beginning to Assert Itself.

Jack Quinn Wants to Make a Match with Austin Gibbons.

Already there has sprung up a noticeable spirit of rivalry between the Brooklyn and New York Brotherhood baseball clubs. The management of the Brooklyn Club declare they will surpass the Giants, both in the equipment of grounds and in the article of ball put up.

John M. Ward said yesterday that the Brooklyn Brotherhood Club would be one of the strongest in the Players' League. He says he would like to see the club play the Brooklyn League (Bridegrooms of last year) for half the gate receipts. He believes the Bridegrooms of last year would come out second best.
