HY DUNNLETS.

A Letter from Hyrum.

Dear Fellers:—

I see by the papers that Judge McCarty is not taking a vacation this summer, that Nick is in New York, that Lawson has saved the aurora borealis for Sweden, and that Thaw is still in jail. It's a great world we live in, brothers.

I guess I'm missing a lot showing the boobs how to stretch a line for the rattlers up in this country, but when I finish, the papers will flash the big red headlines and announce that "Hyrum Dunn, another graduate of the Bancroft-Calvin school, has made good and is now collecting fares of which the company comes in for a fair proportion." I guess that'll be the candy all right, all right.

An' with that thought in mind, I could stand the lonesomeness without that next day feelin' if only you fellers an' Bert Hawley was here with me.

Ah, when I light my tallow dip at twilight, and snuggle into my little bunk, a copy of "De Profundis" before me with which to put the dear old number 23 on the tail of the evening hours, I think of you fellers whirling about the busy paves, I see a composite foamy quivering tub of suds diminish as the day grows nearer, and then I go to sleep and dream I am an aeronaut alighting in that tub, and all the night is beautiful.

I wish you'd write me in full just what kind of a make-up the boys will wear this fall, as I expect to go out in society a bit as soon as the snow flies, and I don't want to stack up like a rumble, after I've got the folks up here thinking I'm all to the mustard.

Best regards to Adam Snyder.
Your old room-mate,

HY.

At midnight, in Chicago once, an Irish policeman overhauled a sleep-walker who was promenading the principal thoroughfare clad only in his night robes. When the officer had awakened the unfortunate man, placed him under arrest, and was hustling him off to the station, the sleep walker exclaimed with indignation:

"Surely you are not going to lock me up?"

"Surest thing you know!" airily responded the bluecoat.

"Why man, I can't be held responsible for the predicament you find me in! I am a sonambulist!"

"Sure, it makes no difference what church ye belong to," sharply returned the officer; "ye can't parade the streets of Chicago in your nighty."

A school teacher, one day during the hour for drawing, suggested to her pupils that each draw what he or she would like to be when grown up. At the end of the lesson one little girl showed an empty slate. "Why," said the teacher, "isn't there anything you would like to be when you grow up?" "Yes," said the little girl, "I would like to be married, but I don't know how to draw it."—Life.
