THE OREGON KIDNEY TEA.

Read the following testimonials, not from persons 3,000 miles away, whom no one knows, but from well-known and trustworthy citizens of Oregon, whose names, written with their own hands, can be seen at our office:

INDEPENDENCE, Or., Dec. 13, 1879.

Both myself and wife have been for some years afflicted with disease of the kidneys, and had tried many remedies without obtaining any permanent relief. About three months ago, we were induced to try a package of the OREGON KIDNEY TEA, which has apparently entirely cured both of us, as since taking it two weeks we have felt no symptoms of the disease. We can heartily recommend it to others similarly afflicted, as we believe it will do all that is claimed for it. M. L. WHITE.

ASTORIA, Or., Dec. 28, 1879.

I take pleasure in testifying to the merits of the OREGON KIDNEY TEA. For the past three years I have been suffering from kidney troubles, and during the time have tried nearly every kind of kidney medicine in the market, almost without any relief. Having heard that the Oregon Kidney Tea possessed wonderful properties, I purchased a package, and from the first dose obtained relief, and by the use of the one package feel completely cured.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

The Maritana-Campbell concert season was successful financially.

The Star Dramatic Troupe, which has been playing on the Sound under the management of Mr. Lindsay, returned to this city last evening.

It is significant that Barton Hill and Willie Simms did not return to Portland with Bandmann, though advertised as members of his company. They probably learned that "John Maguire is again in managerial harness."

The charge of ungentlemanly conduct, made by the Telegram against the usher of New Market, is uncalled for. When a man comes to the theater on the opening night with reserved seats for the second performance, and, of course being unable to obtain the seats, publicly tells the usher that he "will have his seats, or take it out of his hide," it is high time for the said usher to assert his right to exemption from insult. The facts have been explained to the carping critic, and a correction is due from the Telegram.

On last Tuesday evening, at New Market Theater, before a crowded house, was inaugurated the much-heralded, long-expected "engagement extraordinary of the eminent tragedian, Mr. Daniel E. Bandmann, supported by a powerful and carefully selected dramatic company." And truly the rendition of the opening piece, "Narcisse," was an "extraordinary" performance. It is a play of the French school, and Mr. Bandmann appears in the title role. While the gentleman has a good physique, fine stage presence, and is easy and natural in his movements, he has a serious fault in his tendency to "rant" in his best scenes. At such times his foreign accent is so broad as to almost render his words unintelligible. Miss Louise Beaudet is a very pretty, pleasing little actress, but with scarcely force and experience enough for the arduous position of leading lady. Miss Georgia Woodthorpe, who is well known to the Portland public, made her appearance as Madame La Pompadour; but, while the young lady shows marked improvement and rendered her lines in an effective manner, it would require an "extraordinary" stretch of imagination to picture her as the brilliant and fascinating Pompadour, who ruled France by her beauty. The third lady of the company, Miss Kate Chester, has no control of her voice. The gentlemen composing the "powerful and carefully selected company" are an "extraordinary" lot—of "powerful" bad actors. Mr. F. Doyle, the leading man, is possessed of a weak voice, and is utterly devoid of animation. Mr. Edgar Walton, a sombre-looking gentleman with an accordion voice and one gesture, is not likely to become a favorite in Portland—at least unless he requires less assistance from the prompter in future. This remark applies with equal justice to the majority of the other subordinates of this "powerful and extraordinary" troupe. While all due allowance is made for the mishaps usually attendant upon opening nights, there is no excuse for the carelessness of the management in failing to provide scene-shifters, thereby causing the numerous "breaks" in the working of the stage, and compelling the audience to submit to such long waits between acts. The curtain did not rise until 8:30 o'clock, which was another source of complaint. In some respects, there has seldom been such a thoroughly comic performance given at New Market—even in its palmiest days of prosperous under Maguire's management—as was witnessed last Tuesday evening. The condition on Wednesday evening was a slight improvement.

"No Trouble."

Anna B. McMahan, of Quincy, Ills., communicated the following to the Woman's Journal under date of May 15th:

It is a compliment of the highest order, though an unconscious one, when men speak of a woman's "knack." A knack for doing the family dressmaking or millinery somehow generally belongs to that member of it who is either the most unselfish or the most industrious, or who has that sort of a conscience which is not content unless whatever is to be done is also done in the best possible manner. A knack for household decoration and artistic surroundings belongs to the woman who has sufficient love for the beautiful to give such matters a good deal of attention—to devise new combinations and study effects.

"True case in writing comes by art, not chance," and is quite as true of most things as it is of writing.

This idea was amusingly illustrated in a little incident which came under my observation during the past week. It was on the occasion of the annual meeting of the Board of Directors of one of our hospitals. Five gentlemen and twice as many ladies had assembled and listened to the reports for the year. The ladies had done all the work, and through their Secretary and Treasurer made accurate and comprehensive reports. At the close of the meeting I overheard the following interesting conversation between two gentlemen:

"There's one thing we ought to have done," said one; "we ought to have given a vote of thanks to Mrs. A. for her excellent report."

"An admirable report! admirable!" exclaimed the other, with enthusiasm; "but it's no trouble for her to do these things; it comes natural. She just loves it."

I happened to know that this gentleman had been within the hospital walls just once during the year, and I also happened to know something about this same report which was "no trouble."

Twice each month during the twelve Mrs. A. had attended the business meetings and had kept detailed reports of the transactions. From these she had now compiled a mass of statistics—how many patients had been cared for, how many were pay patients, how many supported by the county, how many were objects of charity—the greatest number at any one time, the smallest number, the average number, the amount of money that had been raised and from what sources, the directions in which it had been expended, the nature and extent of repairs and improvements to the property. The principal benefactions were acknowledged in fitting terms, and a comparison presented between the past and present condition of the institution, former reports having been examined for the purpose. These disjointed facts were combined into a connected narrative, the whole representing the labor of two or three days, because the lady "just loved" her work too well to do it less faithfully.

But the particular interest of the story lies in the previous history of the hospital management. Five years ago the building was erected and opened under the control of twelve trustees, all gentlemen. Having a considerable amount of public money at their disposal, they did very well for the first year. Soon after, these funds being no longer available, they began to find it difficult to raise money; enthusiasm waned; for months at a time they could not hold a meeting for lack of a quorum, and finally, before the end of the third year, without a dollar in the treasury, they called in twenty-five ladies, and under the designation of Executive Committee surrendered the property and begged of them to take the entire management. Since that day they have given themselves no concern further than an attendance at the annual meetings to hear the reports of their "Executive Committee" and to re-elect it.

Is it not a confession of the superior executive ability of the feminine sex that the undertaking which these gentlemen found so onerous as to cause its abandonment, is now conducted in such manner as to be "no trouble?"
