Gov. Thomas. Our readers will recollect that we gave an account a week or two ago of a most disgraceful fight between the two Loco Foco Governors of Virginia and Maryland. Since that time we have met with the following card from Gov Thomas of Md. in the Baltimore Republican:

Messrs. Editors—Seeing that an article, which appeared originally in the Richmond Star, is being copied generally by the newspapers as an authentic account of a paltry affair in which I was reluctantly concerned at Staunton, it is due to myself to say that it does me injustice. Being, however, entirely certain that the force of what I am now reluctantly compelled to make public cannot be in the least degree diminished by misrepresentations of a miserable and contemptible assault, made where it was foreseen I would not be permitted properly to chastise my cowardly assailant, I shall not be deterred from the course, long since marked out for myself, to engage in a newspaper controversy of any kind. If my character for manliness needs the aid of a contest as to the merits of a scuffle in a crowd, it is not worth preserving.

The painful and humiliating affair in which I am involved demands, and shall receive, a much more serious treatment. Measures will be taken and pursued, uninfluenced by fear, favor, or affection, to unveil, in a becoming manner, every fact and circumstance necessary to establish the true character of all concerned in bringing about and dissolving my ill-fated marriage. When every thing has been disclosed, I have a perfect confidence that prevalent misapprehensions, which my long silence has afforded opportunity to create, as to propriety of my conduct in the most interesting and delicate relation of life, will be corrected and removed. FRANCIS THOMAS.

ANNAPOLIS, May 5, 1843.

☞ The following story is going the rounds of the papers. We wonder in what part of Vermont the incident occured.

ECCENTRICITIES OF A MADMAN.

Mr.——, a lawyer of Vermont, doing a good business, at once became insane, and took it into his head to abandon the practice of law, and engage in basket making.—He was at first a very awkward hand at this employment, but by dint of perseverance, he soon became very skillful, and could weave a basket as he had to make a powerful argument at the bar. He followed the business about six months, when taking a new notion into his head, he abandoned it for that of chair bottoming.

The material used in this occupation was bark, which he stripped from the trees in summer, when it peels most easily. Having come home one day covered from head to foot with mud, he was asked where he had been, that he had got so thoroughly bedaubed. He answered, that he had been in a neighboring swamp after elm bark, of which he exhibited a strip about forty feet long.

'Do you remark this?' said he triumphantly.

'Yes; but how does this account for your being so muddy? It isn't usual to find mud on the top of a tree.'

'No but you may sometimes, find it in the bottom, though. I'll tell you how I found it. I cut the bark near the root of the tree, and then stripped it upwards, expecting it would come to an end and break off, and run itself out after a while. But it hung on like a sut in chancery—and I stripp and strip, and it run up forty feet and as strong as ever.—Thinks I to myself, there's no use in pursuing the thing any further, and so I'll enter a nolle prosequi. But not to lose benefit of what I had done—that was the point he was aimed. I wished at least to save costs—but pshaw! I forgot—I'm not a lawyer now. Well, as I was saying, I looked at the subject to see how I could secure the bark. It was too strong for me to break off. At any rate, thought I, there's more than one way to skin a cat, as a butcher would say. If I cannot break off this bark, I can climb up by it. No sooner said than done. I sized hold of the strip, and, placing my feet against the trunk of the tree, run up hand over hand. By this method of climbing, you will perceive my back must have been downward, and nearly in a horizontal position—for I kept my hand against the tree, and my hand standing from it in an angle of nearly ninety degrees. Having arrived at the proper height, I was then in a quandary, how to get my knife out of my pocket, and how to get it open when it was out.—If I let go with one hand, I was fearful the other would not hold me. However, says I, its risk or nothing. I'll try the experiment at any rate—so I gripped powerfully, with my left hand while I took out my knife with my right, and opening it with my teeth, whipped off the bark as clean as the law would dock an entail.

'And what do you think was the result?'

'Why, you came flat on your back, of course?'

'Right gentlemen of the jury—a very correct verdict indeed. I came down flat in the mud. Never was a client laid flatter on his knees than I—and never was one so completely bedaubed with fish and mud. But thanks to the yielding nature of the soil, I saved my bones, and only brought away the mishap on my coat. I gained my cause too—which is more than I can say of all my undertakings.'

The company laughed heartily at the ex-lawyer's account of his exploit—while the latter, hanging his coat on a rail fence, and fixing the mud, for the old woman, gladly would roll on when it was dry.

He continued a while longer to follow his occupation of chair bottoming, when suddenly becoming sane again, he resumed the practice of law, and has ever since, performed laying his opponents on their backs, in a legal way, to bring fad on his own in so ludicrous a manner as that above related.—N. Y. Transc.

☞ James Watson Webb, Editor of the Courier and Enquirer, was tried at Cooperstown last week for a libel on J. Fenimore Cooper. The alleged libel was contained in a pugnant review of Mr. Cooper's "Home as Found." Judge Willard refused to let the book go to the Jury as evidence for the defence—in the teeth, we hear, of a former decision by himself! He charged very hard against the defendant. Messrs. J. A. Spencer and A. L. Jordan conducted the defence—ably we need not say. The Jury could not agree on a verdict—five for conviction, seven for acquittal.—By the way, these suits brought by Mr Cooper in behalf of "the People" for libels on himself, remind us of the client, who said he never knew how much he had been injured till he heard his lawyer state the cause in Court.—N. Y. Tribune.

Cottages.—Mr. Ellsworth, Commissioner of Patents, in his annual report for 1843, describes a new mode of building cottages, or ordinary dwellings, which has been adopted in the West. He says that the materials is formed by removing the soil, digging to the common clay, (which is almost universal, especially at the West,) mixing it with water and straw, and treading it into a mortar by oxen; from this bricks are made of 18 by 12 by 9 inches, or 12 by 7 by 5 inches, in a plank mould, and struck with a piece of iron hoop. These bricks are dried upon the ground in two or twelve days, while the foundation of the building is preparing, and prairie wood sill, or (which is better) a course of slate laid, on which the dried but unburnt brick are put up, a foot in thickness, the windows and doors being put in as it proceeds; division walls a brick wide or seven inches; roof of shingles or thatch, projecting a foot or two each way. The walls are then plastered with good lime mortar, and the second time with the same, pebble-dashed; the inside without dashing, and the house is built. This house is very cheap, is warm in winter, and cool in summer, and affords no retreat for vermin. Its walls are not damp, unburnt brick absorbing no water, which the burnt, being porous, will do. Such a house may be safely carried up two or three stories, is almost fire-proof, and nearly as cheap as a log cabin, (in some places more so,) and will last a century if the foundation be well laid.

New York Cattle Market—May 8,

Married,

At Montpelier, on Wednesday, the 17th instant by the Rev. John Godley, Prof. Calvin Pease of the University of Vermont, to Miss Martha Howes, of Montpelier.

In Hinesburgh, on the 24 inst., by Rev. O. S Hoyt, Mr. Norris L. Boynton, Merchant, to Miss Marian L. Goodyear, eldest daughter of Doct. Daniel Goodyer, all of Hinesburgh.

Died,

In this town, on the 7th inst., Mr. Nathan Seymour, a Revolutionary pensioner, aged 88 years.

At Rose Hill Oxford, Miss. on the 22 inst., Mrs. Sarah Ann Sneed, daughter of Mrs. Prudence L. Mason of this town.

In Williston, April 22nd of Dropsy, Asenet Murray, son of A. B. Murray, aged 9 years and 3 months.

"As the sweet flower which scents the morn,
But withers in the rising day,
Thus lovely seemed the infant's dawn!
Thus swiftly fled his life away!

Ere sin could blight, or, sorrow fade,
Death timely came with friendly care;
The opening bud to heaven conveyed,
And bade it bloom forever there.

Yet the sad hour that took the boy
Perhaps has spared a heavier doom,
Snatched him from scenes of guilty joy,
Or from the pangs of ills to come.

He died before his infant soul
Had ever burned with wrong desire;
Had ever spurned at Heaven's control,
Or ever quenched its sacred fire.

He died to sin, he died to care;
But for a moment felt the rod,
Then springing on the viewless air,
Spread his light wings, and soared to God."

In Jericho, March 21st., Mrs. Anna Bliss, wife of Timothy Bliss, aged 74 years. Also, on the same day and in the same house, Mrs. Julia H. Bliss, wife of Mr. Zebina Bliss, and daughter of Abel Drury, Esq., of Highgate, aged 32 years.

Thus in a single day were the father and son both deprived of their bosom companions, and left alone to mourn in this vale of tears. Mr. Timothy Bliss seemed most deeply to feel his lonely situation, for not only his companion was taken, but also his daughter-in-law, in whom his whole heart was bound up, and to whom he looked to administer to his wants and soothe his sorrows in life's departing hours. But he had not long to mourn in this vale of tears. On the 17th of April the messenger Death also summoned him away to meet his dear friends in a better world than this.—He sweetly fell asleep in Jesus, having borne the trials of life 74 years. They all died of the prevailing epidemic, and all left the consoling evidence that they had a better portion in Heaven. Mr. Timothy Bliss and wife had lived together for more than half a century, and had long been faithful members of the Church of God. Mrs. Julia H. Bliss had been a professor of religion about nine years, during which time she had walked worthy of her profession, and in her death, the church of which she was a member feel indeed that they sustain a loss.—Comm.

BULLIONS'

SERIES OF GRAMMARS,

ENGLISH, LATIN AND GREEK, ON THE SAME PLAN,

For the use of Colleges, Academies and Common Schools.

(Published by Robinson, Pratt & Co. New York.)

IN preparing this series, the main object has been, First: To provide for the use of schools a set of class books on the important branch of study, more simple in their arrangement, more complete in their parts, and better adapted to the purposes of public instruction, than any heretofore in use in our public Seminaries; and Secondly, to give the whole a uniform character by following, in each, substantially, the same arrangement of parts, using the same grammatical terms, and expressing the definitions, rules, and leading parts, as nearly as the nature of the case would admit in the same language; and thus to render the study of one Grammar a more profitable introduction to the study of another than it can be, when the books used differ so widely from each other in their whole style and arrangement, as those now in use commonly do. By this means, it is believed, much time and labor will be saved, both to teacher and pupil,—the analogy and peculiarities of the different languages being constantly kept in view, will show what is common to all, or peculiar to each,—the confusion and difficulty unnecessarily occasioned by the use of elementary works, differing widely from each other in language and structure will be avoided,—and the progress of the student much more rapid, easy and satisfactory.

These works form a complete series of elementary books, in which the substance of the best Grammars in each language has been compressed into a volume of convenient size, handsomely printed on fine paper, neatly and strongly bound, and at a moderate price. The whole series is now submitted to the judgment of a discerning public and especially to teachers and superintendents of schools, and seminaries of learning throughout the United States.

From the Hon. Alfred Conkling, Judge of the United States Court in the Northern District of New York.

Bullions' Series of Grammars—By the recent publication of "The Principles of Latin Grammar," the series of grammars (English, Latin, and Greek) is at length completed. To their preparation, Dr. Bullions has devoted many years of the best portion of his life. In the composition of those books, he has shown an intimate acquaintance with the works of his ablest predecessors; and while on the one hand, he has not scrupled freely to avail himself of their labors, on the other hand, by studious and skillful use, he has succeeded in constructing the best, decidedly the most comprehensive grammar, in each of the three above named languages, that has yet appeared. Such is the deliberate and impartial judgment which has been repeatedly expressed by the most competent judges, respecting the English and Greek grammars, and such I hesitate not to believe, will be the judgment formed of the Latin grammar. But independently of the superiority of these works separately considered, they possess, collectively, the great additional recommendation of having their leading parts arranged in the same order, and, as far as properly can be done, expressed in the same language. An acquaintance with one of them, therefore, cannot fail greatly to facilitate the study of another, and at the same time, by directing the attention of the student distinctly to the points of agreement and of difference in the several languages, to render his acquisitions more accurate, and at the same time to give him clearer and more comprehensive views of the general principles of language. The importance of using in academies and schools of the United States none but all by written and unexceptionable school books, is incalculable; and without intending unnecessarily to depreciate the labors of others as a friend of sound education, I cannot refrain from expressing an earnest hope of seeing these of extensive use in general use. They are all beautifully printed on very good paper, and are sold at very reasonable prices.

USE OUR MONEY.

With the New Goods was received a way of using money at Howard's.

THE way to use money which is received to advantage has always been one of business to its possessor, and that a way is now found out, particularly in the cities, should be a concert of being immediately for and wide, and exceedingly made known. The discovery can be real only applying at the ever Up and Down, Quick and Cheap for Cash, and No Imposition Art for debt establishment, and selecting therefrom for use and distribution such evidences of each way that for themselves may be effectual and conclusive to their imagination or in satisfying their money and worth for the one, which will bear the test of being put fully into operation all the needful and in humble departments, for it is so arranged that each at a glance may be conscious of the great money to be saved by paying the Cash for Goods directly to the People's Agent HOWARD.
