HER LIFE IS AT STAKE.

Selecting a Jury to Try Ellen Nelson for Murder.

The spectacle of a woman on trial for her life brought a throng this morning to Part II. of the Court of General Sessions.

The woman was Ellen Nelson, who watched eagerly the selection of a jury to try her for killing Sam L. M. Post, who tired of her and was about to leave her forever.

MRS. ELLEN NELSON.

Ellen Nelson had lived with S. L. M. Post since five years ago, when he deserted his wife and child for her. She lived at 100 West Twenty-eighth street.

Post was once of the firm of Post, Gordon & Roberts, insurance brokers. Fast living ruined him. He became finally cashier for Owen & Phillips, 32 Liberty street.

He decided to leave the Nelson woman and return to his wife. To that end he rented a room in West Twenty-fourth street and on the evening of Feb. 18, last, he went with a young friend, Nathan Michaels, to Mrs. Nelson's house to get his belongings there.

While young Michaels waited in the parlor he heard angry words in a bedroom and then a pistol shot. Then Post ran out with his hands on his abdomen, crying, "You made a bull's eye of it this time."

The woman followed with a pistol in her hand, and as Post crouched behind a door she fired three more shots at him.

David Kellar, a jeweller at 24 John street; Wesley M. Burke, a furniture dealer, and Isaac Tobias, a travelling agent, were accepted as jurors.

RHETT'S TRIAL STILL ON.

Despite the heat, the fourth day of the trial of William B. Rhett, the young Southerner charged with abducting and abusing Polly Morris and Katie Flynn, opened this morning in Part III., General Sessions, with a large crowd of spectators present.

Young Rhett sat as usual between his counsel at his side.

Katie Flynn's direct examination, began yesterday afternoon, was continued. She is a pretty eleven-year-old little girl with auburn curls.

Her testimony was in the main a corroboration of the story given by Pollis Morris.

She corroborated Polly Morris's testimony yesterday as to the details of their second meeting with Rhett.

On the night of Rhett's arrest, Katie said, five girls met him at the Pennsylvania ferry in Jersey City. She was among them. On the boat coming over a woman told the girls not to accompany Rhett.

When the boat reached the slip Katie and two other girls ran away because some boys who had followed them threatened to tell their parents.

Then Mr. Grady cross-examined Katie in detail, trying to break the force of her testimony by comparing it with that given in the Police Court. He succeeded in obtaining some small contradictions.

"Katie, did you ever steal a pocketbook belonging to Mamie Wearid?" asked Mr. Grady.

She hung her head and replied that she had not. But after a pause of a minute she savagely blurted out: "Yes, sir."

In answer to Senator Grady's questions Katie said there was an unknown man who was in the habit of taking girls to a house in Wooster street in this city. She described the man but she was sure he was not Rhett, though her description corresponded.

May Williams, a bright-eyed little girl with golden ringlets was the next witness. She said she was ten years old and lived with her mother, a washerwoman, at 192 Montgomery street, Jersey City.

She positively identified Rhett as the man who accosted her, Katie Flynn and Polly Morris.

She saw him go away with Polly Morris and Katie Flynn on two occasions.

With Maggie McGlashey, Polly Morris and Katie Flynn she crossed the river with Rhett the night of his arrest.

A recess was taken.

BOTH HIS WIVES FACED HIM.

Young Best Pleads Guilty to the Bigamy Charge.

William H. Best, the gay young man who was recently arrested in Chicago and brought to Brooklyn on a charge of bigamy, was brought before Justice Moore in the Brooklyn Court of Sessions this morning.

Instead of standing trial he pleaded guilty and was remanded for sentence. The prisoner is an undersized young man, twenty-four years old. He is a son of Foreman Samuel D. Best, of Harlem.

Best was brought face to face with the two young women in court. He married one in 1884 and another last year.

Shot a Mad Dog.

Policeman Hickey, of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station, this morning shot and killed a mad dog in front of 223 East Fortieth street.

NOW, TUNNEL VENTILATION.

Railroad Commissioners Adopt a Plan and Order Speedy Experiments.

The State Railroad Commissioners have decided on a plan for ventilating the Fourth avenue railroad tunnel, and President Chauncey M. Depew, of the New York Central Railroad, to-day gave orders for the construction of an experimental section of the apparatus recommended.

The system recommended by the Commissioners is a modification of the plan proposed by Engineer Howard Constable, which was recently described and illustrated in THE EVENING WORLD.

Instead of a ventilating hood depending from the roof of the tunnel, to receive the exhaust steam and smoke from the locomotives, the Commissioners recommend a sort of false roof, with a narrow opening through which the exhaust smoke, steam and cinders

A V—shaped arrangement, attached to the roof of the tunnel, just above this opening, will deflect the forcibly ejected exhaust to either side, and into the chambers formed between the false roof of the tunnel.

A forced draught of air through these chambers, in a direction opposite to that in which the train is moving, is expected to conduct the objectionable exhaust to a convenient opening.

The experiment will be made in one of the side or local tunnels, between Fifty-sixth and Sixty-seventh streets.

The consideration of the apparatus will consume considerable time, but will be pushed ahead with all possible speed, as the Commissioners are anxious to demonstrate the practicability of their plan.

The railroad company will bear the expense of the experiment.

BAD EXPLOSION IN YONKERS.

Two Laborers Fatally Burned and Five Prisoners Suffocated.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

YONKERS, June 17.—A terrific gas explosion took place about 2 o'clock this morning in an excavation in front of the Yonkers Police Station.

Several laborers were at work repairing the gas main which leaked, and had dug a hole about twelve feet deep.

The explosion was caused by a lamp used by the workmen igniting the escaping gas.

Michael Quinlan and Jere Malone, who were working in the hole, were nearly roasted to death, and Thomas Meany and Daniel Cuningham were blown ten feet away.

The explosion also put out all the gas-jets burning in the station-house. There were five prisoners in the cells in the basement, and when Roundsman Cosley went down to take them to court at 6 o'clock this morning he found them all unconscious and the place filled with gas.

The officers must have forgotten after the explosion to relight the jets which had been burning in the basement.

The prisoners were Patrick O'Brien, Frank Morgan, Patrick Mansfield, Thomas Meany and John Ryan.

They were all sent to St. Joseph's Hospital, and it is believed that at least three of them will die.

Quinlan and Malone, the two laborers were also sent to St. Joseph's where their condition is said to be critical.

Unregistered Doctors in Trouble.

C. H. Post of 384 Sixth avenue and Ernest Dollman of 584 Ninth avenue were held at the Tombs this morning for practising dentistry without registration.

SHOT DOWN HIPPOLYTE.

A report was brought to New York by First Mate Bishop, of the steamship Alvo, which arrived to-day, that President Hippolyte, of the Haytian Republic, was shot and killed by the insurgents at Fort-au-Prince June 3 or 4.

Mate Bishop says that a vessel which had been at Port au Prince put into Nassau, June 6, with the story of the revolt, the murder of Hilguind and other events already well known here, and the captain of the vessel stated that Hippolyte had been killed by the bullet of an insurgent.

The story of Hippolyte's assassination had received no further confirmation when the Alvo sailed for New York.

LOST CASH, VOICE, HEARING.

Wonderful Story Told by David Dudley Field's Young Collector.

In the Tombs Court to-day was told the story of a young man, hitherto reputable, who lost $340 in cash and checks, was rendered deaf and speechless, and shows signs of having been assaulted. All this, as he informed Justice Taintor in writing, took place in the purlieus about Chatham square.

Robert Malley, twenty-two years old, was a collector for David Dudley Field, the eminent jurist.

Monday, Malley writes, he went up to Lenycroft's, on Forty-fourth street, to make a collection. About 2 o'clock p. m. he started down on the Third avenue elevated. He had $140 and a check for $200 in his pocket. He got off the train at Chatham square and entering a saloon bought a glass of beer.

He did not return home that night and his father became alarmed, as Robert was not a dissipated young man. A search was made, but no tidings were received.

The police were then asked for assistance, but Roberts's father still continued his search, and last night found his son, but great was the father's amazement to perceive that his son was deaf and speechless.

The young man informed Justice Taintor in writing that he lost all knowledge of events after taking that glass of beer Monday afternoon. He had a dim remembrance, however, of having been severely beaten and robbed.

His person bore evidence this morning of having been assaulted.

The elder Malley stated that his son possessed all his faculties when he left home Monday morning, and that he must have lost speech and hearing through drugs, fright or the beating he received.

Detective Price, of the Elizabeth street station, has arrested on suspicion of assaulting Malley, Patrick Bineer, of 63 Catherine street; John Leonard, of 96 Washington street; Patrick Nanos, at 24 Haight street, and John O'Toole, of Boyer street.

Maggie Williams, aged eighteen, who blushed a little when she told the Justice that she lived with a Chinaman at 19 Peel street, testified that Monday afternoon she met young Malley on Peel street; that he wrote on a wall at No. 19 that he had $300 and asked her to drink with him.

The prisoners were at the same place at the time. Yesterday morning some hoodlum books and a check were found in the hallway of No. 190. These belonged to Malleyo.

The witness did not see the prisoners attack Malley, but she thought the latter was partly intoxicated at the time.

SHE WOULD HANG HERSELF.

Florence Fox Makes Three Attempts at Suicide in a Cell.

Florence Fox, a stylishly-dressed young woman, was arrested by Officer Moran, of the Nineteenth Precinct, for creating a disturbance on Sixth avenue early this morning.

She was taken to the Thirteenth street station and locked up. An hour later Doorman Grew found her hanging by her corset strings, from the door of her cell.

She was cut down and sent to the New York Hospital.

Later she was arraigned in Jefferson market and held for trial.
