The Caledonian.

Faith and Farming.

One great element of Christianity necessarily enters into the farmer's daily duties. No man can be a farmer without faith in an over-ruling Providence. To one unacquainted with the processes of earth, the labors of the husbandman would seem folly and madness. In the spring-time, the industrious cultivator gathers the rich fertilizers with much labor and expense, and throws them around his fields. He drives forth the sturdy team, drawing the glittering plow, and guiding it with strong arm turns the matted sward. He takes the precious grain, the staff both of human and animal life, and scatters it on the ground, so thinly, that the most frugal of men cannot afford to pick it up. As if to make the destruction more complete, he draws the iron-toothed harrow over it and tramples it in the dust. All this he does without any immediate return for his labor. "Behold the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it, until he receive the early and the latter rain." If the farmer did not believe that, somehow, God would crown the year with harvests, he would have no heart to work. No work is well done if the doer doubts. Perhaps this accounts for the different successes of men. Their faith is the measure of their reward. For months the farmer toils and sees no harvest. With some show of reason the skeptic might say, 'thou fool, art thou so beside thyself that thou must throw away that which nourishes man and beast, besides thy time?' But the farmer answers, "I believe, and therefore I labor. God, rules, and I have his written promise that 'seed-time and harvest, summer and winter shall not cease.'" How blessed is the farmer's life! God and man are co-workers in agriculture. The one plants and waters, the other gives the increase. The reward, the harvest, is the end of all labor. The grass, the rye, and some of the fruits of the orchard and garden, are already ripe for the harvest. God is good, and gratitude should swell the farmer's heart. We repeat it—faith and farming are inseparable.—Springfield Republican.

WHAT CAN BE DONE ON ONE ACRE OF GROUND.—The editor of the Maine Cultivator published, a few days ago, his management of one acre of ground, from which we gather the following result:

"One third of an acre of corn usually produced thirty bushels of sound corn for grinding, besides some refuse. This quantity was sufficient for family use and for fattening one large or two small hogs. From the same ground he obtained two or three hundred pumpkins, and his family supply of beans. From the same bed of six rods square he usually obtained about sixty bushels of onions; these he sold at one dollar per bushel, and the amount purchased his flour. Thus, from one third of an acre and his onion bed, he obtained his breadstuffs. The rest of the ground was appropriated to all sorts of vegetables for the summer and winter use—potatoes, beets, parsnips, cabbage, green corn, peas, beans, cucumbers, melons, squashes, &c., with fifty or sixty bushels of beets and carrots for the winter food of a cow. Then he had a flower garden, also raspberries, currants and gooseberries, in great variety, and a few choice apple, pear, plum, cherry, peach and quince trees."

CHANGING PASTURES.—A milk dairyman near Boston has his pasturing in four lots, and enumerates the following among other advantages in the division. More stock can be kept by one eighth on a given number of acres, by keeping on each one week at a time; when the fourth is turned into the grass is fresh and large (and so of each field through the season); the cattle are quiet and peaceable, much more so than when kept uniformly in one lot. His experience makes him a believer in the old saying, "A change of pasture makes fat calves."

ORDER of NOTICE of SETTLEMENT.

BENJAMIN BUNDY'S ESTATE.

STATE OF VERMONT, Caledonia District, ss.

GREAT IMPROVEMENT IN MECHANICAL DENTISTRY!

DR. KILBOURNE

HEREBY announces to the public that he has purchased the right to use Dr. Blandy's new method of inserting ARTIFICIAL TEETH by the CHEMICAL PROCESS. This method is far superior to all other now in use, and is used and highly recommended by the most eminent dentists in the United States. There has long existed a void in Mechanical Dentistry which scientific men have studiously endeavored to supply, but without success, until about two years since Dr. Blandy, one of the Professors in the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery, discovered this process of making sets by chemistry, and published it to the world, since which time over one hundred of the most skillful Dentists in the large cities are now using it, almost to the exclusion of all other methods.

Among the advantages which this process has over all others, are 1st, an absolutely accurate fit to the mouth, thereby rendering it firm retention a matter of course.

2d—By this mode the teeth and plate are united in one solid piece, and no sharp corners are left for the lodgement of food, as in other methods, thereby considerably enhancing comfort, a property which it retains unimpaired as long as it is worn.

3d—The ease and comfort with which it is worn—requiring no time to get used to it—will strongly recommend itself to those who are suffer the intensity of wearing artificial teeth. By this process also the mouth and cheek where they have sunken away can be fully restored to their original relations and fullness.

Lastly, by this method the teeth are not liable to, as is the case with those which are made in the usual way, and a source of great annoyance to those who have teeth inserted by the old methods of gold or silver plates. In fact as to its superiority, DURABILITY and BEAUTY, I challenge for it a comparison with any known process for inserting artificial teeth.

And lastly, but not least in these final claims, it can be made seven CHARGE than sets by the old method, thereby putting it within the reach of persons of all means.

Persons in need of whole or partial sets of teeth are invited to call at my office and examine the work; and if desired they will be refunded to persons in this village and out of it, who have in a public way expressed themselves in this way by myself.

DR. KILBOURNE is the only dentist in this county who has the right to, or does use this valuable process. Teeth will be inserted in the usual way, on gold or silver plates as formerly, if desired by the patient, and on reasonable terms.
