Cruelty to Animals.

As cruelty should not be shown towards the human species, neither should it be indulged towards the animal tribes. "I ever thought," says Judge Hale, "there is a certain degree of justice due from man to the creatures, as from man to man; and that an excessive use of the creatures' labor is an injustice for which he must account for. I have therefore always esteemed it a part of my duty, and it has always been my practice, to be merciful to my beasts; and upon the same account I have declined any cruelty to any of God's creatures, and, as much as I could, prevented it in others as a tyranny. I have abhorred those sports that consist in torturing them; and if any noxious creature must be destroyed, or creatures for food must be taken, it has been my practice to do it in a manner that may be with the least torture or cruelty; ever remembering, that though God has given us a dominion over his creatures, yet it is under a law of justice, prudence and moderation, otherwise we should become tyrants and not lords over God's creatures, and therefore those things of this nature which others have practiced as recreations, I have avoided as sins."

Children should be early prohibited from tormenting insects, lest it should degenerate into insensibility, and they become inattentive to every kind of suffering but their own. We find that the Supreme Court of judicature at Athens thought an instance of this sort not below its cognizance, and punished a boy for putting out the eyes of a poor bird that had unhappily fallen into his hands. And Mr. Locke informs us of a mother who permitted her children to have birds and insects, but rewarded or punished them as they treated them well or ill.

The following circumstance, it is said, occurred at Abo in Finland. A dog, who had been run over by a carriage, crawled to a door of a tanner in that town; the man's son, a boy of fifteen years of age, first stoned, and then poured a vessel of boiling water upon the miserable animal. This act of diabolical cruelty was witnessed by one of the magistrates, who thought such barbarity deserved to be publicly noticed. He therefore informed the other magistrates, who unanimously agreed in condemning the boy to this punishment:—he was imprisoned till the following market day; then, in the presence of all the people, he was conducted to the place of execution by an officer of justice, who read to him his sentence—"Inhuman young man, because you did not assist an animal who implored your assistance by its cries, and who derived being from the same God who gave you life; because you added to the torture of the agonized beast, and murdered it, the council of this city have sentenced you to wear on your breast the name you deserve, and to receive fifty stripes." He then hung a black board round his neck with this inscription, 'A savage and inhuman young man;' and, after inflicting upon him twenty-five stripes, he proceeded—'Inhuman young man, you have now felt a very small degree of the pain with which you tortured a helpless animal in its hour of death. As you wish for mercy from that God who created all 4[illegible] live, learn humanity for the future.' He then executed the remainder of the sentence.

DENTISTRY.

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES!

IT has frequently been said that more people would have their teeth attended to if the prices for dental operations were not so high, but that "as they are now, they cannot afford it." This may be the case, as many people neglect their teeth altogether. And in order to test the truth of the statement, I will, for the next

THREE MONTHS,

(and longer if the experiment is successfully followed) fill teeth (the only remedy for decay) either with pure tin or gold foil, for a

Discount of 37 per cent from FORMER PRICES.

Now is the time to get your teeth filled; let no one who has decayed teeth neglect them till they are past help. If any one should doubt the truth of the above statement, let him apply to the office of DR. I. D. KILBOURNE,

MEDICAL REFORM.

That a great change has within a few years been brought in the practice of medicine, no one will probably deny. It is well known that the study and learning which has been for ages lavished upon the use of mineral poisons, as medicine, have failed to answer the reasonable expectations of the public. The old physicians have abandoned the use of the knife, and have found it necessary to reduce the quantity of medicine given to perhaps one-fifth of that original dose; but, so diminishing the quantity does not improve the results, such a change has never answer the demands of suffering mankind.

A change was required which should dispense with all poisonous drugs, and substitute a system of innocent medication, which would harmonize with nature, and remove diseases, without the risk of injury to the constitution. For the accomplishment of this object, many talented and learned men have zealously labored, and a great reform has been brought about. Among the champions in this reform, we believe all are willing to yield the palm to Dr. R. Greene, the founder of the "Boston Indian Medical Institute."

Dr. Greene, after studying the various systems of medicine, and making that they had not the basis of nature, turned his attention to the study of Nature's Laws—spent several years in travel, and received much useful information from those "Children of Nature"—the "red men of the forest," whose habits and system of medical practice he thoroughly investigated, and which has greatly assisted him in the development of a system, having nature for its foundation, and science for its superstructure.

About ten years ago, Dr. Greene located in Boston, when the success of his treatment was brought more fully before the public, and his sphere of usefulness enlarged. His Allopathic friends viewed his success with a jealous eye, and his practice was animadverted upon in one or two of their medical journals, in no very dignified terms. That he was successful in all ordinary diseases was admitted; but they were slow to believe that he was able to cure Cancers and scrofulous diseases. To convince them and the public of his success, he published facts in regard to cures of such cases, giving the names and residence of such persons who were willing to have their name used, so that any one could be satisfied of their truthfulness. He also preserved specimens of cancers as they were removed, that they might be examined by the doctors, or by the public. Several hundreds of these cancers, some of enormous size, were accumulated, having been put up in glasses, where they have since remained on exhibition at his rooms, 30 Bromfield Street, Boston, to which the public have free access.

These incontrovertible evidences of success brought out the press in his favor, and drew around him a large number of friends who were interested in the common cause of humanity. The business at the office so increased that it became necessary to relieve Dr. Greene from the details of his practice, in order to make his services available to a larger portion of those applying for treatment. For this purpose, and by the advice and cooperation of influential citizens, an organization was formed under the name of the "Boston Indian Medical Institute." Not that the practice was crude like that of the Indians, but based upon the Indian system, or natural principles, harmonizing with natural laws, and avoiding the use of poisonous drugs. Under this organization the Institution has become the most popular Medical Asylum in the country, where patients are daily received and successfully treated for all the various ills of the human family. But few people have an adequate idea of the extent of business done at this Institution, or the number of cures effected, although nearly all are familiar with the fact of frequent remarkable operations being performed with the most favorable results. Such results are not without their lesson. They speak hope to many sufferers, and the basis of such hope is a firm one, for it rests upon experience, and upon facts.

Consumption has been treated with a success unexpected by the patients and their friends; and the results in numerous cases of Scrofula, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Heart Disease, Dropsy, Female Complaints, Diseases of the Stomach, Bowels, and Kidneys, Rheumatism, and various other diseases, give confidence to those conversant with the fact, that cures are effected at the Institution which have baffled medical skill elsewhere.

Facts like these cannot be resisted, and this practice must necessarily take precedence in the minds of the people.

Many clergymen, sisters, and other professional gentlemen, have visited the Institution, and expressed their entire approbation of the system of practice, and expressed a desire that the facts connected with this treatment should be made known to the world.

The Institution, whose Card is here appended, is now placed upon a firm basis, and is an honor to the city of Boston, and one to which her citizens can point with pride, in view of the vast amount of relief it has afforded to sufferers throughout the Country, and the confidence with which the invalid may look upon the results of its practice in the future.

REUBEN GREENE, M. D. } Physicians.
ISAAC HOWARD, M. D. }

Established for the successful Treatment of Diseases upon Natural Principles.

The Electro-Chemical Baths, together with Dr. Greene's improved Medication, have been adopted in this Institution, and have proved the most successful remedies in the hands of a great variety of diseases.

All persons having cancers, or those afflicted with complicated diseases, should avail themselves of the personal attention of the physicians at the Institution, where proper treating rooms are provided.

A personal examination, when in person is preferable; but all the complaints from of diseases, except in an aggravated and complicated case, are successfully treated with medicines which can be sent to any part of the world, with full directions, as a very correct knowledge can be obtained from a description of the symptoms. The "Indian Arcana," a newspaper published by the Institution, a copy of which will be sent free when requested; also, Dr. Greene's "Instructions," or a course of Indian Medicine, may be had at the office for 12 cents, or by mail on the receipt of four postage stamps.

Consultations upon all diseases free of charge at the office, or by letter on the receipton of a postage stamp.

All communications should be directed to DR. R. GREENE, 30 Bromfield Street, Boston, Mass.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

From the Boston Daily Bee.—"The practitioners of Dr. Greene at the Indian Medical Institute, have met with that success which might be expected from unlike whatever attention is paid to the treatment of long standing diseases so frequent in the sojourners of this country."

Tues. Bee of the Boston Daily Herald after speaking of the success at the Indian Medical Institute in the treatment of the most obstinate cases, says: "We have seen from our own observation, that the cures have been complete, and after they were supposed by their friends and friends to be beyond the reach of medical aid."

Dr. Greene's Indian Remedies prepared at the Boston Indian Medical Institute, are under wonders in curing the cases which have long been considered incurable, and are which have baffled the skill of the regular physicians, which have never failed to effect relief.—Evening Gazette.

The Indian Medical Institute, 30 Bromfield St., Boston, is a place star in the firmament of medicine, and the "Arcana," published by the association, a lively and what is more, a reliable paper.—Sunday Morning Herald.

We have among our exchanges a neat little paper, called the "Indian Arcana," published by the Boston Indian Medical Institute. It advocates the doctrine that nature's remedies are the true remedies for man. The natural system of medicine, is defined to emanate all other systems of medicine.—Christian Messenger, Irvington, N. J.

IMPORTANT MEDICAL REPORTS.—Some of the most important cures ever made by any system of medicine, have been effected in the treatment of diseases upon the Indian system, as applied in a medical manner by Dr. Greene and the associates at the Indian Medical Institute. And only are the common ailments of a chronic character, but even complaints, which have long been considered incurable, such as Scrofula, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Consumption, Female Complaints, Dyspepsia, Heart Disease, Diseases of the Stomach, Bowels, and Kidneys, Rheumatism, and various other diseases, have been cured by the Indian Medicines. Such cures are the strongest evidence of the efficacy of the Indian Medicines. Certainly, the public are fast coming to the conclusion that Dr. Greene's Indian Medicines are the best in the world.—Boston Herald.
