The First Purse at North Bergen Won by an Outsider.

20 TO 1 PUT UP AGAINST HIM.

Ma Belle Heads Off Duke John—Badge Beats Saunterer.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

GUTTENBURG RACE TRACK, Jan. 5.—The track at North Bergen was in first-class condition to-day. Under the soothing influence of a huge iron roller the stony lumps had crumbled away to dust and the warm sun had brought moisture enough out of the earth to put the ground into soft and springy shape.

The programme was an excellent one and the racing promised to make full amends for the close up of yesterday. The enemies of the track will no doubt be surprised to learn that racing was continued to-day.

The attendance to-day was large and the weather fine.

In the first race the talent made Flambeau a red-hot favorite over the field. He was heavily played all around the ring. Considerably money went on Aunt Jane, who was supposed to be a good thing.

The race went to Insight, a rank outsider, who won, with Bonnie King and Adalgisa colt heads apart next.

Brooklyn was the favorite in the second race, and this time the talent succeeded in landing the money. Rosa G. colt was second choice, but was just beaten out a head by Hinlex, the third choice.

Ma Belle was a red-hot favorite in the third race and she won, but it was a close shave, as Duke John, a 7 to 1 shot, ran her to a head. Mabel, second choice, was third.

BULKELEY STAYS IN OFFICE.

Connecticut's Supreme Court Sustains His Demurrer.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 5.—The Supreme Court unanimously sustained the demurrer of Gov. Bulkeley, the hold-over Governor, in the quo warranto suit of Morris, the late Democratic candidate.

The Court says that the declaration of the result is an indispensable adjunct to the choice of Governor, as it furnishes the only authentic evidence of an election. Judge Morris has not been declared elected by the House.

The courts can take judicial notice of the fact of an election, but never of the result of an election or of who is elected until some declaration is made.

The decision continues Bulkeley in office. It does not say that Morris was not elected, but does say that in the present situation Bulkeley is Governor de jure and de facto, thus apparently upsetting the contention of the Senate.

Merwin can only come into the case if Morris is declared not elected.

The Court holds that the General Assembly has not yet lost its power to act in the matter.

DIVES IN DANGER.

A Legal Crusade Is to Be Inaugurated Against Them.

District-Attorney Nicoll Will Prosecute the Proprietors.

Frank Stevenson Furious at the Exposure of "The Slide."

Kelly and McCormick Have Closed Their Assignation Annexes.

District-Attorney Nicoll is thoroughly in earnest in his announced intention to prosecute all dive-keepers.

The exposure of the many dens of vice by THE EVENING WORLD has opened the eyes of the public prosecutor to the fact that there are many festering plague-spots in the city which need excision by the sword of Justice.

The prosecutions will in most cases probably be for keeping disorderly houses. In such proceedings it is necessary to prove ownership by the defendants to secure convictions, and District-Attorney Nicoll says that this is the most difficult thing to do.

Though he refuses absolutely to discuss the means he will use to adequately punish the proprietors of these dives and to wipe the dives out of existence, it is believed that should he fail to prove ownership in the disorderly house proceedings, he will, through the Grand Jury, secure indictment after indictment for the many and flagrant violations of the Excise laws by the proprietors of these dens until, tired of the successive prosecutions and fines or imprisonment which will result, they conclude to give up their nefarious calling.

"It seems that there are much worse places than McGlory kept," said the District-Attorney.

"I am willing to be placed on record as saying that I will break up these places—big ones first, then the little ones. I will do it if I have to do the work my self."

Mr. Nicoll proposes to proceed against one of the biggest and most notorious of the dives first, but which he has selected or when he will begin his work of cleansing the city he will not say.

FRANK STEVENSON'S MR. HYDE.

The Dive-Keeper in a Frenzy Over "The Slide" Expose.

A madder man than Mr. Frank Stevenson after he read THE EVENING WORLD yesterday could not be found in the city.

Decent people were horrified when they read the description of the doings in that pesthole of iniquity at 157 Bleecker street, known as "The Slide," of which Mr. Stevenson is the proprietor, and wondered why such dives were allowed to exist.

Mr. Stevenson, however, was angry because he knew that public opinion would be aroused against him and other dive-keepers by the faithful and accurate descriptions given by THE EVENING WORLD of the dens kept by him and the other outlaws of New York. He realized that it was only a question of time when he and others of his ilk in this city would find their occupation gone.

Mr. Stevenson sat in the barroom of his other dive at the corner of Third and Thompson streets when THE EVENING WORLD containing the account of the goings on in his Bleecker street place on Saturday and Sunday nights was handed to him.

It was not the statement therein made that Mr. Stevenson was entitled to be called the king of divekeepers that made him mad. As he aimed to excel all others in conducting that sort of a place he gloried in the reputation, but he did not like to face the consequences the publication entailed.

He jumped from his seat, pounded the table, and raved, ranted and swore such oaths that it made one's flesh creep to hear them.

Mr. Stevenson is never a mild-mannered man, and looks anything but like an angel. Yet, when he worked himself up to such a pitch of fury and gave vent to such a string of profanity, the change from his ordinary demeanor was as sudden and almost as startling as the transformation of the gentle Doctor Jekyll into the murderous Mr. Hyde.

MAD AND AFRAID, BUT NOT REPENTANT.

Mr. Stevenson was mad, but not repentant. His Bleecker street sink was open as usual last night. There was no music, however, and the immoral exhibitions which are the attraction on other nights were suspended for the time.

Those who disport themselves there and disgust others became disgusted themselves and went home early. For the first time in 7 years this den was shut up before 5 o'clock in the morning.

CAREY WELCH DRAWS THE COOK AGAIN.

The door to Mr. Carey Welch's "Hole in the Wall," on Fourth avenue, near Twelfth street, was wide open last night.

The musicians were at their places, the floor was waxed for dancing, men and women sat at the tables drinking, and every preparation had been made for the usual nightly orgie.

Mr. Welch's is a worse dive than was Billy McGlory's, which has been suppressed. Billy McGlory is in prison, but Mr. Welch refuses to accept Billy's fate as a warning. It will fare badly with him if convicted, as he is an old offender.

He was formerly the proprietor of the "Golden Horn," on Thirteenth street, near Third avenue, which was broken up by the police. Mr. Welch takes a peculiar pride in being an outlaw.

MR. JIM SULLIVAN'S DIVE ALSO OPEN FOR BUSINESS.

Mr. Welch's former partner, Mr. Jim Sullivan, who now keeps the dive known as Farley's Hotel, 78 Third avenue, was also doing a rushing business last night. There is an assignation room in the rear of his barroom. Music is furnished by a piano. The same class of women who frequent Welch's visit this resort in droves.

KELLY AND M'CORMICK CLOSE THEIR ANNEXES.

Warned by the fate of McGlory and the exposures in THE EVENING WORLD Mr. "Honest" John Kelly and Mr. McCormick, his

FLOWER'S MESSAGE.

A Businesslike Paper Sent to the Legislature To-Day.

The Governor Shows the Need of a New Apportionment.

Secrecy in Electrical Executions Should Be Abolished.

Constitutional and Statutory Revision Recommended—The State's Finances.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

ALBANY, Jan. 5.—Gov. Flower's first annual message was transmitted to both houses of the Legislature immediately upon the organization of the Senate and Assembly. The document follows:

It is a cause for congratulation, the Governor says, that all branches of the State government are, for the first time in eight years, in political accord. The state is in a condition of prosperity; is practically out of debt; the taxes are low.

ENUMERATION AND APPORTIONMENT.

The paramount duty before the Legislature, in the Governor's belief, is to provide for an enumeration of the inhabitants of the State, preparatory to a reapportionment of Senate and Assembly districts. The message says:

If there was needed direct proof of the injustice of the present legislative apportionment, it is furnished by the returns of the Federal census of 1890. Defectives say that enumeration was, especially in the city of New York, it shows an increase of population in the State since 1875 of nearly 1,000,000 inhabitants, or 25 per cent.

Yet the same apportionment now exists for the 5,997,853 inhabitants of the State as was established in 1879 for the 4,608,958 persons enumerated in the census of 1875. If the apportionment based upon that census was a fair one it is certainly a very antiquated and unfair ratio of representation now when applied to the present population.

CHANGES IN THE POPULATION.

There have been great changes of population in the State since 1875. In a third of the counties there has been an actual decrease in the number of inhabitants. The city of several counties which are now entitled to more than one member of Assembly, namely, Oswego, St. Lawrence, Livingston, Washington and Wayne.

In other counties, and especially in those which contain the largest cities of the State, the increase in population is very noticeable. In Erie County it is 64 per cent.; in Kings it is 64½ per cent.; in Lewis it is 52 per cent.; in New York, 40 per cent., in Westchester, 41 per cent., and in Monroe, 40 per cent.

When it is considered that the total increase in the State is 27 per cent. these figures show that there has been a radical readjustment of population since 1875, and that the apportionment garment, which may have been a very good fit then, is now very much of a misfit.

PROPER REPRESENTATION DENIED.

The denial of proper representation is a discrimination against those growing sections of the State. It tends to dwarf their prosperity and to shackle their liberties by narrow and illiberal legislation. It gives undue legislative influence to communities where progress seems stayed and population is diminishing. It retards municipal reform and encourages undue income interference with the affairs of our large cities. It permits to a section without representation. It has authorized a minority of the people to make laws not desired by the popular majority, and it has continually nullified the expression of public sentiment expressed emphatically at the polls in each election of State officers.

A popular majority of nearly 50,000 this year is barely able to control the Legislature by reason of the inequitable apportionment.

INEQUALITIES POINTED OUT.

In Kings County 62,000 people on the average are represented by one member of Assembly, while in Hudson County the same number of persons are represented by two members.

In New York 100,000 people elect three representatives to the Assembly, while in St. Lawrence County 85,000 people have the same voice in legislative action.

The 45,000 people in Washington County have two members of Assembly, while the 322,000 in Erie County have only five, that is, the ratio in Washington County is 1 to 22,500, while in Erie it is 1 to 64,000.

Cattaraugus County, with 60,000 inhabitants, has two members of Assembly. Monroe County, with three times as many inhabitants, has only one additional Assemblyman.

ON THE FEDERAL CENSUS BASIS.

It was estimated last year by the Special Committee on Enumeration and Apportionment, appointed by the Assembly, that if the 128 members of Assembly were apportioned among the counties on the basis of the recent Federal enumeration Erie County would have seven members instead of four, Monroe would have four instead of three, Kings would have eighteen instead of twelve and New York would have thirty-three instead of twenty-four. It is impossible to be accurate in figures, but it is certain that the representation of these counties of their rightful representation cannot be disputed.

NONE DEFENDS THE PRESENT SYSTEM.

The mere statement of this evil would seem to be sufficient for its immediate remedy. So far as I am aware, the present apportionment is nowhere defended from the charge of unfairness. The only defense which has been offered for the failure to take the preliminary step for its correction, viz., the passage of an enumeration bill, was that offered in the minority report of the Assembly Committee last year, which was to the effect that no enumeration bill having been enacted in 1885, the Legislature is, therefore, absolved from further responsibility for the performance of this obligation until 1895. Such a construction, however, is too preposterous to argue.

PLAIN CONSTITUTIONAL VIOLATIONS.

The enactment of the present legislative apportionment and the present Congressional apportionment were both violations of the Constitution and therefore void if that construction is the true one, for the former was enacted in 1879, four years after the enumeration was taken, and the latter not till 1889, three years after the Federal enumeration. It is respectfully suggested that if the Legislature were still disposed to maintain this strained construction of the constitutional obligation, it must in consistency regard the apportionments of 1879 and 1889 as void and the election of its own members without authority of law.

PARTISAN OBSTRUCTION REMOVED.

So untenable is such a position that one is forced to the conclusion that the reluctance to provide for an enumeration has been based upon the unworthy motive of seeking to retain partisan advantage. The political complexion of the present Legislature, however, removes the possibility of such a motive as an obstacle, and, I hope, insures the prompt passage of an Enumeration bill, preparatory to a reapportionment of Senate and Assembly districts.

CONGRESSIONAL REAPPORTIONMENT.

Gov. Flower is equally emphatic in his utterances regarding the apportionment of the Congressional districts. He cites the figures of the last census, and the fact that upon the basis of those figures, with no change in the number of representatives allotted, the unit of Representation should approximate 176,000 inhabitants. In the Governor's own words:

Notwithstanding an increase of nearly 3 million in the population since 1882, our State has only the same representation in Congress and in the Electoral College that she was given ten years ago.

The injustice of that action I shall not discuss here. I do permit me to suggest that it should not be aggravated by the refusal now on the part of the Legislature to equalize the population in the thirty-four districts. As it is stand now they are grossly unequal in population. One contains 125,000 inhabitants, another 255,000—a difference of 130,000.

Nine of the present districts do not come within 25,000 of the proper ratio, and two do not come within 50,000. Eighteen are more than 10,000 out of the way, and not over five of the twenty-five districts given are within 5,000 of the ratio.

These figures show a broad field for equalization. Equal districts are desirable as offering the most actual representation, and the maintenance of New York's influence in Congress depends largely upon how closely her Congressmen represent the sentiments of her people.

Moreover if the state is not redistricted by the present legislature the existing districts must continue to send Representatives until at least the beginning of the fifty-fourth congress in 1895, for the next general election of Congressmen, they meet November 8 in 1894. If no reapportionment is made this year the present districts will be grotesque in their demarcations from the true ratio long before 1895.

STATE FINANCES.

The State debt has been reduced during the past fiscal year by the payment of $100,000.

NO DELAY IN ALBANY.

Senate and Assembly Promptly Organized for Business.

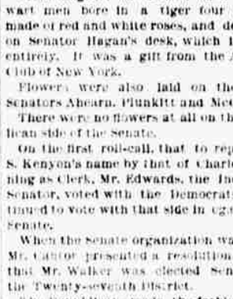
Dr. Edwards Casts His First Votes with the Democrats.

Walker Seated as Senator from the Twenty-Seventh District.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

ALBANY, Jan. 5.—At the last moment the Republican Senators have given way. Yesterday, at Tom Platt's office in New York, they appointed a committee to wait on the independent, Edwards, of Chautauqua County, and try to win him back to act with them. But Edwards would not be won.

So, when the Republican Senators met in the Kenmore half an hour ago, Senator Erwin told his brethren that they might as well go in and help organize the Senate, as he had what might be called the official message from Edwards that he would act with the Democrats.



SPEAKER BUSH, OF THE ASSEMBLY.

Thereupon they decided all to attend and at 11 o'clock most of them were in their seats.

Finally all were present but Senator Saxton, who is kept at home by his wife's illness.

At the same time the Democrats were holding a meeting of their own. They were a good deal more nervous than the Republicans, for they had to guard against an ambush.

They could not tell what awful danger might be hidden in the most innocent-looking motion.

John S. Kenyon, the Republican clerk of the last Senate was behind the desk, ready to call the roll, Republican style, if he would be allowed.

Eleven o'clock came and none of the Democrats were in their seats.

All the Republicans were ready.

It began to look as though not they but the Democrats were about to absent themselves.

It was 11.20 o'clock when Lieutenant-Governor Sheehan let the gavel fall.

The Chamber was crowded in every part. Richard Croker and Edward Murphy, jr., sat in the doorway on the right-hand side.

The very first work of the body showed that the Republicans had surrendered, for clerk Kenyon was allowed to call the roll. If he had not promised to do this in the Democratic style he would not have been allowed behind the desk.

Then in groups of five the Senators were sworn in and signed the official register.

It was evident that there would be no excitement over the preliminary organization.

It was while the Senators were being sworn in that the florists got in their fine work.

Great laughter was caused when two stalwart men bore in a tiger four feet long, made of red and white roses, and deposited it on Senator Hagan's desk, which it covered entirely. It was a gift from the Anawanda Club of New York.

Flowers were also laid on the desk of Senators Ahearn, Plunkitt and McClelland.

There were no flowers at all on the Republican side of the Senate.

On the first roll-call, that to replace John S. Kenyon's name by that of Charles R. Dunning as Clerk, Mr. Edwards, the Independent Senator, voted with the Democrats and continued to vote with that side in organizing the Senate.

When the Senate organization was effected Mr. Cantor presented a resolution declaring that Mr. Walker was elected Senator from the Twenty-seventh District.

The Republicans made the feeblest kind of a resistance and Walker was seated by a strict party vote of 14.

Mr. Edwards voted against the seating of Walker.

The officers of the Senate, as nominated in caucus and elected to-day, are: Jacob Cantor, of New York, President pro tem.; Clerk, Charles T. Dunning, of Orange; Sergeant-at-Arms, Adelbert Talmadge, of Otsego; Stenographer, James M. Ruso, of Albany; Postmaster, John E. Leach, of Cattaraugus; Post-office Messenger, James Carroll, of Albany.

The Democrats also decided this morning upon the following: Doorkeeper, Joseph Jerge; Assistant Doorkeepers, Samuel J. Brown, T. C. Townsend, Thomas O'Rourke, James Burke; Assistant Postmaster, Charles E. Buck; Janitor, John F. Matia; Assistant Janitor, George Van Ausdale; General Clerks, J. B. Madden, Charles A. Earle, Peter McRory, Thomas L. Hughes, Peter Brady and Benj. F. Congdon.

After Walker had been sworn in Senators Brown and Erwin and Senators McCarren and Coggeshall were appointed committees to notify the Governor and the Assembly that the Senate was ready for business.

The following notices of contests were given:

By Mr. Roesch—That of Harvey Arnold against Senator Van Gorder in the Thirtieth District.

By Mr. McCarren—C. Fred Lamont against Senator Richardson, in the Thirtieth District.

By Mr. McClelland—Michael F. Collins against Senator Derby, in the Sixteenth District.

By Mr. Ahern—Edward H. Hoyt against Senator Donaldson, in the Eighteenth District.

The renomination of Edward Hannan, of Troy, to be Commissioner of Public Works was confirmed.

So was the nomination of Wilbur F. Porter, of Watertown, to succeed H. F. Allen as Commissioner of Claims.

BUSH ELECTED SPEAKER.

He Urges Assemblyman to Remember They Are the People's Servants.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

ALBANY, Jan. 5.—At 11 o'clock Clerk Defreest called the Assembly to order. Roll was then called and members elect were sworn in by Secretary of State Rice, and then each one signed the Constitution.

At 12 o'clock Rev. T. O. Marvin offered prayer. On motion of G. H. Bush the House then proceeded to the election of a Speaker, each member rising in his seat and announcing his choice.

The result as announced was: Dr. Robert P. Bush, 65; James W. Husted, 55.

Clerk Defreest declared Bush duly elected and appointed George H. Bush and James W. Husted a committee to conduct him to the chair.

The Speaker, on assuming the duties of office, said:

"GENTLEMEN OF THE ASSEMBLY: To be elected to the very responsible position as Speaker of the Assembly of New York is an honor which more than fills my political ambition.

"I thank you heartily for this expression of confidence in my ability. It shall be my constant endeavor to conduct the business appertaining to the office to which you have elevated me so that you will have no occasion to regret your choice, and the varied interests of our great State shall be properly cared for.

"I ask the assistance of each one of you to make the session of 1892 such a profitable one that it may serve as a model for succeeding Assemblies.

"You have up to this time, since the holding of the primaries last Fall, been representatives of a party, and the contests have been heated and in some instances bitter. You must forget all this and remember that you are now sworn servants of the people of the State, and it is your duty to deal with all interests justly and impartially.

"Old members understand the importance of preparing the matter they wish to present for legislative action early, and I urge it upon all of you so that work of committees may be promptly commenced and thoroughly performed in order that at the time of the session shall not be wasted and that an early adjournment may be secured."

Charles R. Defreest, was then elected clerk by vote of 66 to 56 for Charles A. Chickering.

The following officers were then elected, being the nominees of the Democratic caucus last night:

Clerk, Charles De Freest, of Rensselaer; Stenographer, Thomas Hassett, of Steuben; Sergeant-at-Arms, Michael B. Redmond, of Cohoes; Doorkeeper, Edward A. Moore, of Richmond, with F. D. Fitzpatrick, of Oneida, and K. N. L. Nievens, of Sullivan, as assistants.

The Market Continues Buoyant, with Prices Advancing.

WALL STREET, TUESDAY, Jan. 5.—The activity and buoyancy in the stock market were unabated this morning. Speculation ran largely to the specialties, many of which scored sharp advances on purchases for local as well as for out of town account.

New York, Susquehanna & Western preferred rose 3¾ points on reports that the Company will shortly declare a dividend. Chicago Gas and Rocking Coal 2¾, Distilling & Cattle Feeding and New England 2½, Rock Island 1⅞, Pittsburg & Western preferred 1¾, Iowa Central and Louisville, New Albany and Chicago 1½ and Big Four 1 per cent.

The New Jersey Central dividend of 1¼ per cent. for the quarter is payable Feb. 1.

There was considerable realizing again this afternoon in certain parts of the stock list, and this tended to check the upward tendency of prices. The reaction was unimportant except in the case of New England, which fell from 49⅝ to 47.

Missouri Pacific sold down 1½ per cent., Northern Pacific preferred 1⅜ and the other active stocks ¼ to ¾ per cent. Among the speculative issues Susquehanna & Western preferred fell 2¾ to 44.

In the final transactions Chicago Gas rose to 78⅝, the highest point yet reached, and the general list rallied in sympathy.
