THE EVENING WORLD to-day adds still another to the number of dives that have been closed for good. It is that of Mr. Charles Smith, of 197 Bowery, whose license, issued in the name of Josephine Smith, was yesterday revoked by the Board of Excise. Last night Mr. Smith's entire establishment was closed tighter than a drum, a solitary light being left to show how deserted was the place.

Mr. Frank Stevenson's "Slide" at 157 Bleecker street, which has been practically dead since THE EVENING WORLD'S search-light first disclosed the awful depravity of the place, has now been officially declared defunct by the action of the Excise Board in revoking the license held by Mr. John McGrew, Mr. Stevenson's dummy.

Mr. August Guidon's "French Hotel" at 235 Sullivan street was darker and gloomier than ever last night, because of an event chronicled in THE EVENING WORLD'S Sporting Extra yesterday.

Mr. Guidon saw that it would be useless for him to stand trial on the charge of keeping a disorderly house, so yesterday he pleaded guilty and threw himself upon the mercy of the Justices of Special Sessions, who promptly sentenced him to four months' imprisonment in the penitentiary, where Mr. Billy McGlory is now serving a year's sentence for a similar offense.

THE EVENING WORLD'S table now shows that two of New York's notorious dive-keepers are in the Penitentiary. Ten others with their dives tightly closed, are anxiously awaiting their fate. And all this is the direct result of this newspaper's crusade, begun and carried on in the public service.

In addition to Messrs. Smith, Guidon and Stevenson, these persons still kept their dens tightly closed last night:

Mr. Alfred Davis, "Excise Exchange," 320 Bowery; Mr. Louis Walthers, 245 Bowery; Mr. John H. McGurk, 253 Bowery; Mr. John J. McAleer, 260 Bowery; Mr. Paul McCarthy, 327 Bowery; Mr. Jim Sullivan, "Farley's Hotel," 78 Third avenue; Mr. Carey Welch, "Hole in the Wall," 117 Fourth avenue; Mr. Tom Gould, Sixth avenue and Twenty-third street, and Mr. Dan Scribner, "Pickwick," 1347 Broadway.

To emphasize the fact that his dive is shut up, Paul McCarthy last night followed Mr. Carey Welch's example and put a placard in his window which here in large letters the single word "Closed."

Mr. Tom Gould's former basement den was last night lit up more brilliantly than usual, but not for business. Inside one or two notchmen were guarding articles sold at Tom's auction yesterday and which the purchasers had been allowed to leave in the place until so to-day for their own convenience.

Other places, whose dive annexes were tightly closed last night, were Mr. Tom McCormick's, 526 Sixth avenue; Mr. "Honest" John Kelly's, 520 Sixth avenue; Mr. John Wulfers's "Universe," 22 University place; John Maher's (Frank Stevenson's), 78 West Third street; Mr. John J. Murphy's "Metropolitan," 31 Bond street, and Simon Buttner's, 204 Bowery.

Mr. Murphy's case before the Board of Excise was yesterday postponed until next Tuesday. Mr. John Wulfers's case comes before the Board Friday at 3 P. M. His back room was again lit up last night, but no women were admitted, and the few men who entered the saloon remained in the barroom.

Mr. Louis Stajer and Mr. Ignatz Buttner kept their "concert halls" wide open again last night. There were fewer victims than ever, and even the attendance of harpies was rather slim. Indeed, it was a very bad night for the latter. The terrible cold and the cutting wind that seemed to blow from every direction kept most of these unfortunates under cover.

After the theatre he began drinking heavily, and was soon in such a condition as to make it necessary for him to be carried to bed.

THINK GARZA IS CORNERED.

Fight to a Finish Expected on the Border To-Day.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 27.—The military authorities are confident of capturing or annihilating Garza to-day.

Moving in concert with the State troops, they believe they have Garza surrounded and think he will fight when they close in.

If so it will be a fight to a finish.

It is reported that Garza has been legally advised not to surrender to the United States, as he would be delivered to Mexico under the treaty, and that would be certain death.

MINISTER REID COMING HOME.

Rumors that He Will Resign the Mission to France.

The announcement that Whitelaw Reid, United States Minister to France, will return to New York next month has led to the rumor that he will resign his post and resume editorial work.

In Washington the story of his proposed resignation is generally believed, and it is said that Minister Reid has already advised the State Department of his intention to resign.

Donald McIlvaine, who is in editorial control of the Tribune in Mr. Reid's absence, said to-day that he has no information that Mr. Reid has resigned or intends to resign his post at Paris.

Some close friends of Mr. Reid affect to believe that there is no truth in the rumor.

"I know that he is expected home early in February," said one. "I understand that Mr. Reid has been granted a long leave of absence, and he will remain here attending to private business for two or three months."

ORDEAL OF HARRIS.

Tenth Day of His Trial for the Murder of Helen Potts.

His Mother's Life and Reason May Hinge on the Result.

Prof. Witthaus the Chief Witness of the Prosecution To-Day.

The reddening of the rings around the eyes of Carlyle W. Harris, his only apparent method of expressing emotion, has been more frequent and more marked during the past two days of his trial for his life.

PROF. WITTHAUS.

It is a remarkable couple, this cool, collected and self-restrained young medical student, full of intelligence and unusually well informed on physics, and the broad-faced, great-eyed woman, his mother, as they sit together in court.

The woman, faithful to her boy and indescribably tortured by the thought of the danger in which he is involved, listens, but does not apparently understand the testimony of the famous scientific experts.

She knows that their evidence bears against her boy; that the District-Attorney depends upon the findings of these learned professors to prove that her "Carl" killed the beautiful girl whom he had married in secret and refused to acknowledge as his wife and the mother of his babe.

DAILY INSTRUCTIONS TO THE JURY.

The stricken mother watches the face of her boy for any faint clue which the play of its well controlled features may express of the effect of what the scientists are saying, and when the flush comes and circles his eyes she recognizes it as a danger signal.

Then her protruding lips compress, the great eyes flash behind the thick spectacles and muttered words escape her.

Then Carlyle Harris, whose selfishness interposed against the peace of mind and happiness of his unacknowledged little wife, stretches out one of his cold, pallid hands and gropes behind him till it finds those of his mother, clenched in her lap. He presses her palms with his and strokes the hands gently, soothingly.

LUNCH AT RECESS.

"What a shame!" she ejaculates in a whisper, "to tell such things against my poor, innocent boy!"

She is in an agony of terror. Her mind has been wrought up to a high tension, and if nothing else comes of this trial, which will last at least another week or two, this poor woman will be made ill. If not worse.

A SIGNIFICANT EPISODE.

Just after one of Lawyer William Travers Jerome's complicated questions, bristling with medical and chemical lore, Mrs. Harris leaned forward and with a pathetic smile whispered to Prof. Ogden Doremus:

"I think it splendid!"

"A very bright young man indeed," replied the honored professor, with a smile.

"Yes, but he's a careless digger!" added Harris—on trial for his life.

This little episode affords a fair insight into the character of mother and son.

THE PRISONER'S ORDEAL.

But Harris fully appreciates the gravity of his situation, and this tenth day of his ordeal found him a little more pallid than on any former day, emphasizing the red spots to his remarkably elegant nose.

Well may he look as if his mind were troubled, for the chain of circumstantial evidence is being forged in a style of link that appears unbreakable. Though the chain is not yet complete, the prosecutor says that he has yet two whole days of work upon it.

The examination and the cross-examination of Prof. Rudolph A. Witthaus occupied the greater part of the day, and if there were any doubt before as to whether Miss Jay's beautiful pupil had taken morphine just before she entered into that sleep which knows no waking, the testimony of Prof. Witthaus must have set that doubt at rest.

PROF. WITTHAUS'S TESTIMONY.

"I took two jars of glass, the I had prepared for each, to the vault to which we descend by body of J. Helen Potts, said the witness simply.

"In one jar I placed, each in a jar by itself, the vital organs of the dead girl. I brought them to New York to my laboratory, and with one exception they were never out of my possession. I analyzed them all but the heart, which was stolen."

Then the savant, composed and absolutely certain on every point, related in detail the story of the tests and processes to which he subjected every part, describing each process and explaining each step so that every juror might understand and that Lawyer Jerome, himself a learned chemist, might be satisfied that the tests were correctly made.

There were scores of tests, each made with the greatest care, and showed unmistakably the presence of morphine.

THERE WAS NO QUININE.

"Was there any trace of quinine?" asked Prosecutor Weldman.

"No sir."

"Would there have been traces of quinine had there been taken into the stomach by the girl before death, a dose of quinine equal to the amount of morphine which left there traces?"

"There would."

HARRIS LISTENS BREATHLESSLY.

There was the stillness of death in the court room. Harris, leaning over the rail and inclining an ear (unique of one white, nated, hung) here with parted lips and bated breath, as if he feared to move.

Mrs. Harris looked distressed beyond measure. Her eyes turned apprehensively, appealingly from one to another, and then another question broke the silence.

"The kidney was subjected to sixteen tests for quinine and to twelve in search of morphine. "I found traces of morphine" said the witness simply.

"Did you find evidences of quinine?"

"None whatever."

The analysis of the stomach resulted in the same fashion, and morphine but no quinine traces were found.

Then Prof. Witthaus went about "proving" his findings as a pupil proves the accuracy of his subtraction by adding the quotient and the minuend for a comparison with the subtrahend.

$14,500 FOR SUNOL'S BROTHER

The Bay Colt Worth Bought for the Cloverdale Farm.

The big hall of the American Institute building was crowded with horsemen when the sale of Senator Leland Stanford's Palo Alto consignment of blooded trotters was resumed this morning. The forty nine heads sold yesterday brought $58,915, an average of $1,202.35.

Auctioneer Peter C. Kelleg mounted his stand at 10.20 o'clock to begin the disposal of the remainder, some fifty odd head.

The fact was announced in THE EVENING WORLD'S Sporting Extra last night that E. F. Olcott, President of the Central Trust Company, was the real purchaser of Baby McKeever, the full brother of J. Malcom Forbes's high-priced and speedy Arion.

Every one in the hall this morning was wondering who would be lucky enough to get Worth, the little boy brother of Robert Bonner's queen of the trotting turf, Sunol.

Worth is certainly a fine-looking animal and he was the centre of attraction this morning. The guesses as to what figure he will bring were numerous. He has been entered in the principal trotting stake races up to 1895.

Sunol's brother contained some choice selections, and it was predicted that the prices would go fully as high as yesterday. The blood of Electioneer is, of course, the most sought after.

Among the prominent equine connoisseurs present this morning were Senator Leland Stanford, J. Dunn Walton, W. H. Lockwood, of Norwalk, Conn.; H. C. Woodcutt, of Mount Kisco; J. W. Daly, A. Garside, John W. Anderson, G. J. Hurley, of Great Neck, L. I.; David Bonner, W. L. Hayes, of Cutler, L. I.; A. L. Sardy, of Knoxville, Ia.; Charles Miller, of the El Dorado Stock Farm at Rhinebeck; J. S. Ferguson, A. S. Kerser, F. A. Kerser, J. Kilpatrick, of Mount Hope; D. D. Hogg, of Meadville, Pa.; R. B. Long, of White Plains; W. Walker, Col. W. S. Chester, L. B. Hurd, Charles Marvin, John Goldsmith, G. F. McAnneny, John Daly, J. W. Shaw, Daniel Benoveller, W. H. Crawford, A. L. Strauf, Frank Mullen, R. Cadigan, of Bayonne, and ex-Alderman Henry Hughes.

The first animal put up for sale was a nameless bay filly foaled March 16, 1889, by Nephew, out of Gleune, which was finally sold to the Highland Stock Farm, of Pennsylvania, for $200.

A bay filly, foaled Feb. 18, 1889, by Alfred, out of Ada, went to the same buyer for $285.

Grace, a bay filly, foaled March 13, 1890, by Azmon, out of Glencora, was knocked down to F. Farnsworth, of New London, Conn., for $1,000.

The big hall was very cold, the bidders kept trotting about in their efforts get warmed up.

A bay filly, foaled March 21, 1890, by Benefit, out of Mayflower, went to R. C. Pettibone, of Wyoming, Pa., for $250.

A bay colt foaled March 24, 1890, by Ansel, out of Gretchen, was bought by Robert Bonner for $500.

Sabrina, a bay filly foaled April 19, 1889, by Oak, out of Signa, went to Charles Robinson, of New York, for $225.

A bay colt foaled May 9, 1889, by Norval out of Imported Bridget, was sold to J. Dunn Walton, of New York, for $400.

A bay filly foaled May 23, 1889, by Liberty, out of Alvarette, went to Robert Steel, of New York, for $380.

A bay colt foaled May 29, 1890, by Benefit, out of Addie A., was bought by E. H. Hurd, of Sparta, Ill., for $225.

Then it came World's turn, and the bidders and spectators crowded about the auctioneer's stand to pat and pet the animal.

Mr. Kellogg read the colt's pedigree and then called for bids.

E. Dunn Walton opened with an offer of $2,000. That figure was raised in bids of $1,000 and $2,000 by various buyers until $10,000 was reached, when H. H. Moore, of the Iowbridge Stock Farm, entered the contest and in bids of $500 made World retire after $14,500 was bid. Mr. Moore secured the prize.

Worth was foaled on March 10, 1890, and is a son of Sunol out of Waxana.

He is broken double and single and has shown quarters in better than 0:45.

WATER FAMINE IN BAYONNE.

Break in the Mains Causes Much Loss and Stops Business.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.]

GREENVILLE, N. J., Jan. 27.—Bayonne City is without water. The famine is the result of a break in the Jersey City main and in the lake from which Bayonne takes her water supply.

The supply was broken off at an early hour this morning and the little water that was in the city pipes was frozen before sunrise.

Private plans in all sections of the city have burst, and the residents are melting snow and using water taken from New York bay.

The shore is lined with people with buckets.

The immense standard Oil Company plant at Constable Hook is among the sufferers, and the 4,000 employes are idling idle. The city authorities are powerless to act until the breaks in Jersey City are remedied, and then it will take twenty-four hours to remedy the Bayonne breaks.

In one of the Fire Department can do nothing.

ALL'S FOR PEACE.

Chili to Make Her Concessions Public on Saturday.

How They Were Fought Through the Council of State.

War Feeling Thoroughly Stamped Out at Washington.

President May Be Asked to Take Congress Into His Confidence.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The correspondent of the Times at Santiago de Chili to-day telegraphs that the text of Chili's reply to the ultimatum of the United States has not yet been disclosed and that it will not be made public until Saturday.

The correspondent further says that Chili, relying upon the advice received from Minister Montt as late as Friday, that pacific assurances were given him constantly by Mr. Blaine, the American Secretary of State, considered that a settlement had been practically arranged, especially as Chili, through President Montt, had given counter assurance of a friendly feeling and of a desire to satisfy all reasonable demands.

Minister Montt's position, the correspondent adds, is now seriously compromised.

Fortunately for the tranquility of Chili, the entire nation places confidence in the patriotism and prudence of President Montt.

Everything in Chili remains quiet so far.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Confirmation of the news of Chili's concessions to the United States was received here with expressions little different from those called out by the first intimations that such concessions had been made.

The feeling of relief is, of course, more general and positive, and outside the ranks of a few extremists there is now absolutely no war feeling.

Among those who still ache for war there is talk of "Chili's bluff," of "delay until she is ready to fight," of "insufficient apology," and other imaginary points upon which belligerent argument may hang.

That the concessions are not made as a bluff is proved by the intelligence, unofficially received, of the spirited debate over them which occurred in the Chilian Chamber of Deputies and Council of State.

In the latter body, the reply to the American ultimatum was presented by Foreign Minister Periera, with the ultimatum itself, and for three hours there was a wrangle over the proposed note. The reply was finally approved by vote of the Liberal majority, which stood with Minister Periera against the Conservatives.

In the Chamber of Deputies, it is learned, a most friendly spirit was manifested by a large majority of members towards the United States.

The movement there to indorse proceedings towards the restitution of harmony between the two governments was led by Deputy Jordan, who spoke feelingly of the United States as the natural protector of the smaller South American republics in the matter of expounding and enforcing the Monroe doctrine.

Senor Jordan expressed his confidence in the honor and justness of the United States and repudiated any idea that the great nation to North sought in any way to humiliate the Chilians.

As to the claim that Chili's apology is insufficient, it can be stated on the best of authority that the full text of Minister Periera's note will, when given out, show that the South American republic has given up more than the first brief tidings of her retraction could possibly indicate.

Even a Congress not so disposed as is the present body to weigh facts carefully and act with dignity and deliberation could now find nothing, it is confidentially declared, upon which to base a determination towards hostilities.

In the light of new events the movement begun in the House yesterday toward presenting President Harrison for further information may be carried further.

The delivery of the special message on Monday is openly criticised as having been premature; but since the President went so far and placed himself, practically, in an aggressive attitude, it is felt that he should now keep Congress fully in his confidence. This is judged by many members to be his safest way to avoid the serious consequences really possible through what they now consider as his too hasty utterances.

The President's doubtful position and the fact that Egan, with his ability to blunder or make mischief, is still at Santiago are the worst points in the case as it stands at this writing. However, there is little fear but that all is to come out peacefully and right, since the good sense of the country is as pronounced as its patriotism, and will make its demands as strongly felt.

Administration and Egan Arraigned by the London "Chronicle."

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The Chronicle says: "If Chili's offer of satisfaction was sent under the circumstances as reported President Harrison has been guilty of a act of most disputable sportsmanship. He must have known before he published his bellicose message that Chili had done all and more than was stipulated, therefore his message was bluster and bluff.

"We confess we hesitate in coming to a conclusion so utterly disgraceful, not only to Mr. Harrison, but to the great nation that has made him the trustee of its honor and dignity. We cannot believe him capable of such a mean design, although we are not ignorant of the dirty trick his wire pullers played on Lord Sackville West.

"Mr. Hatch's appeal to Irish sympathy around Harrison's heads like a bit of Mark Twain.

"The American government needs no defence against military attacks unless it be Blaine and Egan. It is quite a delusion to suppose that England cares whether or not America builds a formidable navy or incurs burdens for the purpose of vindicating its Foulon agent in Chili. Mr. Egan is not likely to be sent as Minister to England while our police want to consult him about the murder of Lord Frederick Cavendish.

"America had better settle the building of her navy as we do, with a view to the interests of the people and not to the interests of what Artemus Ward calls the "show bizness" of the outgoing President and discredited envoy.

"President Harrison's message asserts the novel doctrine of diplomacy that a band of swaggering sailors are entitled to the same redress as is an Ambassador who has been attacked.

"America is a great country, and there is no doubt but that even this globe of ours would scarcely have room for it if it was seriously prepared to push the corps diplomatique sum doctrine thus far."

CRUSHED IN DEATH AVENUE.

Seven Freight Cars Mangle a Man Beyond Recognition.

Seven cars of a Hudson River railway freight train passed over and crushed to death at Eleventh avenue and Thirty-second street, a little after midnight this morning, a man whose body was so terribly mangled and cut up that identification will be very difficult, thus adding another to the long list of tragedies which have given to that thoroughfare through which the railroad passes the name of Death avenue.

The train was composed of fifteen cars, drawn by locomotive No. 85, in charge of Engineer Frank Meisler, who lives at 438 Eleventh avenue. The train was in charge of Conductor Thomas McMullen, of 905 Freeman street, Brooklyn.

Persons who saw the tragedy say that the man who was killed, attempted to cross the track by climbing between two cars. In some way he slipped and fell across the rails, directly in front of the wheels.

A shout was raised to the engineer to stop the train, but before it was brought to a standstill the wheels of seven cars had ground out the man's life.

The left leg and left side were torn and mangled horribly, and innumerable other cuts and bruises were found upon the body when it was finally gotten out from under the train and taken on a stretcher to the West Thirty-seventh street police station.

The body is that of a man apparently twenty-five years old, five feet nine inches in height, with short, dark hair. He wore striped trousers, a cutaway coat, dark ulster and a velvet cap. There was nothing found in his pockets that sheds any light on his identity. A nail-punch and a bunch of keys had no name attached.

Engineer Meisler and Conductor McMullen will be arrested. The Coroner will make an investigation.

IN HONOR OF JUDGE KNAPP.

Jersey City Courts Closed Till After the Funeral.

The sudden death from apoplexy upon the Supreme Court Bench, in Jersey City, of Justice Manning M. Knapp, reported in yesterday's Sporting Extra of THE EVENING WORLD, is to-day the absorbing topic in that city.

At the hour of opening court this morning Supreme Court Justices Lippincott, Paxton and Hoffman were on the bench.

Public Prosecutor Winfield eulogized the dead Justice and Judge Lippincott paid a feeling tribute to the memory of his late associate. The court was then adjourned.

A meeting of the Bar Association was announced for 4 o'clock this afternoon, when pall-bearers will be selected and arrangements made to attend the funeral, which will take place Saturday at 1.30 P. M., in the second Reformed Church, Hackensack. Revs. Drs. St. John and Demorest will conduct the services.

The body of Justice Knapp was removed to-day to his family homestead in Hackensack.

Out of respect to the memory of the distinguished magistrate the courts of Jersey City will be closed until Monday next, and the New Jersey Bar Association has postponed until next week its annual dinner, which was to have taken place to-night.

Judge Knapp's sudden taking off was a painful shock to his old associates on the Bench and to all members of the legal profession, by whom he was universally respected and honored. He was stricken down yesterday afternoon while delivering a charge to the Grand Jury.

He was in the midst of a vigorous denunciation of some Hoboken lawbreakers when, without the slightest warning, his head fell and he fell forward upon his desk unconscious. He was carried to his private room, but could not be restored. He died within five minutes.

Judge Knapp was a native of Bergen County, N. J., and was born in 1823. He was admitted to the bar in 1849 and was appointed Judge by Gov. Beele in 1875. He was reappointed in 1882 by Gov. Ludlow and again in 1889 by Gov. Green.

He leaves a widow and two children, a son, who is a lawyer in Jersey City, and a daughter, who is married and who sailed for Europe with her husband, Walter S. Clark, last Saturday on the Werra.

Mr. Abbett will appoint Judge Knapp's successor. The term of office is seven years, and the annual salary $10,000.

Vicious Stallion Kills Two People.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., Jan. 27.—Frank Brown and his wife, of South Boston, were kicked to death by a stallion yesterday. SUFFOCATING IN HIS BED.

A Man Rescued with Difficulty from a Terrible Death.

Louis Beaudet, brother of Rev. Father Beaudet, of St. Joseph's Church, was with difficulty rescued from death by suffocation in a fire which broke out at 12.45 this morning in the basement of 9 Clarkson street.

The building, which is owned by Trinity Corporation, is a tenement occupied by eight families. Mrs. John Cleary, on the second floor, was awakened by smoke and gave the alarm. All the occupants of the house, though in a panic, reached the street in safety.

Beaudet, who keeps a store on the ground floor, sleeps in a room back of his store. The fire was in the basement, directly under his room. He could not be awakened until his door was burst open, was almost smothered but revived when brought to the street.

It is known that several homeless boys were in the habit of sleeping in the basement, and had been seen warming themselves by the flames of a lamp, and it is suggested that by the upsetting of the lamp the fire was caused. The damage was small.

BLOWN OUT TO SEA.

Eighteen Men on Four Scows and a Tug Believed to Be Lost.

Street-Cleaning Dumping-Boats Caught in the Gale.

A Fleet of Tugs Sent Out to Search for and Rescue Them.

There is great anxiety among the tugboatmen to-day for the safety of the crew of the ocean tug Edwin Webster, which became disabled and drifted out to sea yesterday with the two Barney dumping boats Nos. 5 and 17. There were ten men on the tug and two on each of the scows.

It was reported at the Maritime Exchange that the Barney dumping boats Nos. 3 and 16, which had been anchored within the Rockaway Shoals, could not be seen this morning, and it was considered certain that they, too, had drifted out to sea, swelling the number of men missing to eighteen.

A fleet of tugs has gone out in search of the drifting tug and scows, but there is said to be not much hope that any of the eighteen men will be rescued, although there were several pilot-boats known to be cruising off the coast yesterday, and the drifting boats are directly in the path of the European steamships.

The tug Webster has sufficient provision and water on board to last a week, but the men on the dumping-boats had not more than a day's supplies on board, and they have already been drifting thirty hours.

The tugs Edwin Webster and the H. S. Nichols left the street-cleaning docks early yesterday morning, each with two scows in tow. The Webster had boat No. 5, having on board Charles Brumm as captain and F. Canail as mate, and boat No. 17 Olaf Dahl
