ON THEIR WAY TO LIBERIA.

A Throng of Destitute Would-Be Immigrants in This City.

Though Wholly Without Means They Are Cheerful and Willing to Work.

One hundred and eighty-six of the most pitiable, forlorn, at the same time hopeful, contented and neat-looking colored men, women and children ever seen together in New York are quartered today in the basement restaurant of Rev. Undertaker Stephen Merritt's Florence Mission, 208 Eighth avenue, quietly "awaiting developments."

They all came from a station called Muldrow, twenty-five miles northwest of Fort Smith, in the Cherokee Strip of Indian Territory, and left there last Thursday morning, bound for a land supposed to be flowing with milk and honey in Liberia. Some of them still want to go there, but others are content to remain in America.

The party arrived in New York Saturday night under the leadership of Rev. Prentiss B. Hill, who was elected the Moses of the party when the original leader, Rev. Frank Priestly, fell sick and was unable to lead these homeless wanderers to their Eldorado.

All are farming people, but the Cherokees, whose lands they rented, made life miserable for them, and when Priestly came on from Arkansas to gather a colony for Liberia they readily fell in with his scheme.

He was aided materially by George Washington, a gray-headed patriarch, who had married a Cherokee squaw, and, although he had saved up $300 or $400, was wearied of Indian oppression, and had corresponded with the American Colonization Society at Washington regarding passage to Liberia for himself and friends.

He was told that the party would have to pay their own fares to New York, at which point free transportation would be furnished them to Liberia, where every married man would be allotted twenty-five acres of land, each single man ten acres, with free rations to all for six months.

So they came on, expecting to be met and cared for and put at once on a ship. What little property they had they sold to pay their railroad fare, which netted the Kansas Railroad $1,400. They spent Saturday night in a lodging-house in West street. Nobody came to meet them, and yesterday morning they were turned loose on the street, in a drizzling rain, homeless, friendless and almost penniless.

In this plight Policeman Gillespie, of the West Twenty-ninth street station, found them and took them to his station-house. The sergeant in charge scratched his head a moment and then, as if by inspiration, said:

"Take them up to Merritt's mission."

It was done. Mr. Merritt hospitably received them, and his superintendent, Mrs. Rogers, quickly got the culinary department in working order, while her assistant secured the neighborhood for voluntary victual contributions.

Under the melting influences of a good fire and hot soup the innate cheerfulness of the colored refugees returned, the old folks gently snored and sang plantation songs, the young folks made love, the pickaninnies laughed and crowed, and nobody, save perhaps the mission people, cared whether there was such a place as Liberia or not.

This state of affairs continued this morning. The party had "bunked in" on the tables and floors over night and this morning resumed the highly artistic occupation of concealing large bowls of steaming hot onion soup.

There is only one sailing vessel plying from this port to Liberia. This is the bark Liberia, which arrived last week from Monrovia, bringing a score of unconcerted and destitute colored men who had gone to Liberia from America to seek their fortunes, and were glad to get back alive.

The Liberia is to sail March 10. She can carry only sixty adults, and twenty-four who have been waiting in this city since Tuesday sailing will be the preferred passengers on her next voyage.

Rev. Mr. Merritt said to an EVENING WORLD reporter: "I'm sure I don't know what to do. We can't turn these people out, and they haven't money to go anywhere. So far we have had no trouble in feeding them, and provisions are being sent in by the very neighbors who have been hitherto bitterly opposed to our mission."

Rev. Mr. Hill, the colored Moses of the little band, said to the reporter:

"Dis afternoon I reckon Washington and myself will go to the ship agents and the Liberian Consul and see what can be done. I don't tackey understand dis spirit of depahty yet, but which some of 'em want to go on to Liberia if dey can get dere, and dem dey don't. We hab exhausted all our money in railroad fares and don't know what to do.

"So far as I can see, dis American Colonization Society hasn't got no branch heah, but we didn't know dat, and heah we are.

"If any other opening was offered, you would you people take advantage of it?

"Would we? Foh sinah! an I'd lead 'em dere a runnin'. Just give me de chance an I'll show you a regular vacuation, a sort of a retrograde, back movement."

KILLED ON LA BRETAGNE.

Steward Selaune Met His Death at Sea Through Accident.

The French line steamship La Bretagne, which arrived from Havre this morning, brought the body of Louis Selaune, the well-known steward of the ship, who died at sea last Friday.

During that day La Bretagne was labouring in a severe gale, and the heavy sea caused her to roll very much. Steward Selaune was descending the main stairway of the saloon when he lost his balance and fell, striking on his head and fracturing his skull. He died the following day.

When the ship arrived at her pier the steward's body was removed to an undertaking establishment, and will be buried in Evergreen Cemetery.

Fire in Electric Lighting Works.

Fire broke out this morning in the basement of the Manhattan Electric Light Company Building at the southwest corner of Eightieth street and Avenue B. It was put out by workmen. The damage was slight.

Mr. Fraser's Art Lecture.

Mr. W. Lewis Fraser, Art Manager of the Evening Telegraph, will deliver a lecture on "Pencil and Graver in American Books for Two Hundred Years," on Wednesday evening at the Lodge Rooms, Maennerchor Hall, 207 East Fifty-sixth street.

The LARGE TELESCOPES in the United States in use in 1892 will be found tabulated in THE WORLD ALMANAC.

FIREMEN LOST THEIR HEADS.

No Water, and Women Imprisoned in a Blazing Building.

A Baby Caught on the Fly—Arson Suspected.

A scene which reflects discredit on some of Brooklyn's firemen, was witnessed by hundreds of people at a fire at 395 Fulton street, opposite the Brooklyn City hall, early this morning.

Several newspaper reporters were sitting in a room on the top floor of Police Headquarters at 1.30 o'clock when they were startled by the shrill cry of a woman saying that the building was afire.

Looking out of the window they saw the building was aflame. The reporters dashed downstairs and turned in an alarm. Meanwhile a crowd gathered in front of the fire.

The three lower floors of the building were occupied for business purposes.

The top floor was used as a dwelling by David Goodman, his wife, Sarah, and daughter, Mamie, aged one year; his mother, Etta and Jacob Michaelson, his brother-in-law.

The women stood screaming for help in the window on the lower side of the building, while the men occupied the window adjoining.

The crowd below yelled to the people not to jump.

It was fully fifteen minutes before an engine arrived, although there is a station in Flatbush street, not three blocks away.

Other engines arrived soon afterwards, and the firemen went to work. They raised a ladder against the upper side of the building.

The people in the windows called out that they could not get to the other window.

When the ladder was finally got into position it did not reach within four feet of the window.

Firemen went up the ladder. When they reached the top their companions below called to them to climb up.

They yelled back with oaths that they couldn't. "—— you, you're afraid," was the reply sent up from below.

While this was going on firemen were rushing about the sidewalk in great excitement.

They lost their presence of mind and cursed and swore among themselves.

Meanwhile a pipe was attached to a hydrant and the engine began to puff, but no water came.

By this time the fire reached the upper story and the people at the windows were nearly stifled with smoke.

The spectators expected they would be suffocated before help arrived.

Fireman John Ryan, of Engine 10, was the only cool head in the party.

He dashed into the hallway of the building next door and made his way to the roof.

He called for a ladder to be run up on the other side of the house.

Mrs. Goodman wrapped her baby in a blanket and attempted to let it down to a fireman.

The child slipped out of the covering and fell against a fireman, but was caught by Fireman Lester Robbins, who was standing below.

Fireman Ryan then let a rope down from the roof and the terror-stricken occupants let themselves down hand over hand.

Up to this time no water had been thrown on the fire. The new water main is all ready to be connected and the water had been shut off.

It was fully twenty minutes after the firemen reached the scene before the water was turned on.

Several streams were then put on the fire and the blaze was extinguished in half an hour.

Jacob Michaelson was badly burned about the hands and men and Goodman's baby suffered from suffocation and shock.

Both were attended by Ambulance Surgeon Dugan and removed to the City Hospital. The baby is not expected to recover.

The total loss is about $10,000. The police believe the fire to have been of incendiary origin.

Policeman Gill told Police Capt. Campbell that at 1.20 o'clock he saw a man come out of the hallway and walk across City Hall Park and disappear up Court street.

He describes the man as being 5 feet 7 inches in height, dark mustache. He wore dark clothing and a silk hat.

DOWNEY'S MEN STILL OUT.

German Framers Have Taken Sides Against the Carpenters.

The strike of the Allied Building Trades on the jobs which Contractor John Downey has in hand continues without change to-day.

There are about 1,100 men, formerly employed on the New Netherlands Hotel, the Hotel Waldorf, the new building at Fifty-first street and Broadway, and in Downey's shops on Thirty-third street and Ninth avenue, who would be idle today, even were it not a holiday.

There seems to be little or no immediate prospect of a settlement of the troubles.

Delegate Carroll, of the Electrical Engineers, moved at yesterday's meeting of the Central Labor Union, that the C. L. U. endorse the strike, but on an objection President Tasker, of the Board of Walking Delegates, asked that the resolution be tabled.

The German framers have resolved to support the cabinet-makers against whose employment as carpenters the regular carpenters are striking, and being supported by the Allied Building Trades.

Carpenters' Union No. 515, although having appointed a committee to confer with Cabinet-Makers' Union No. 7 to consider the trouble at Downey's shop and on his contracts, intimates that if does not upbraid Union No. 7 in its refusal to make common cause with the Brotherhood.

Yet Union No. 515 is of the opinion that the quarrel between the carpenters and cabinet-makers should not have occurred, as it virtually amounts to a fratricidal fight.

Union No. 7 desires it state that its members at Downey's shop are not working nine but only eight hours per day, like the members of Machine Wood-Workers' Union No. 38, and that they receive the same wages as the latter, $3.50 per day.

PUSSY CAUSED A FIRE PANIC.

She Upset a Lighted Lamp Upon Her Mistress's Bed.

It Started a Fire and Drove a Hundred Tenants to the Street.

Policeman Donnelly, of the Eldridge street squad, saw flames shoot out of the fourth-story window, just before 3 o'clock this morning, of the big brick tenement at 175 Ludlow street, and a moment later he saw a woman rush into the street bearing a cat in her arms.

The woman was in her night-clothes and barefooted. The cat was struggling desperately to escape from its captor's grasp, and made the night hideous with its yowls.

An alarm was quickly sent in, and while the firemen were on the way to the scene, Donnelly rushed up stairs, followed by several men who happened to be in a saloon close by. They saw immediately that an overturned kerosene lamp had ignited the bedding in the apartments of Mrs. Caroline Kenna, located on the fourth floor front of the five-story building.

On the way up were encountered the tenants tumbling down the flights of stairs, clothes, trunks and pieces of furniture in their wake regardless of the officer's warning that there was no necessity for alarm. But there were four frightened people in the streets, not too well clad, in a few minutes.

The firemen threw the blazing bedstead and bedding into the street and then directed a stream of water on the flames, quenching them readily, causing a damage of $50 to Mrs. Kenna's goods, which, she said, were not insured.

Mrs Kenna is a widow and her only companion is a big gray cat, whose bringing up has been solely neglected, according to Mrs. Kenna's story, as told this morning to the police.

It pussy couldn't have her own way she would fly into a cat passion and endeavor to claw the widow's eyes out. Notwithstanding Widow Kenna wouldn't take wounds for Tabby, but to punish her for her surliness the lone woman would tie the cat to the bed-post until Kitty, in a penitent mood, would meow her desire for forgiveness.

Widow Kenna's cat had one of her ill-tempered fits this morning and her mistress was compelled to get out of a warm bed to attend the unruly feline, and to the bedpost the animal was fastened with a strong cord. Pussy flew into an awful tantrum. In one of her freaks she clawed the cover off a table upon which rested a lighted lamp, which crashed to pieces on the bed. Then it was that Widow Kenna rescued the cat and rushed screaming downstairs.

As some of the tenants, who had been routed out of bed and from a sound sleep, dragged their effects upstairs again this forenoon they were heard to vote vengeance upon Mrs. Kenna, and particularly the cat.

Fire Started by a Sun-Glass.

The sun's rays streaming through a magnifying glass in the show window of Ralph Mears, optical goods dealer at 727 Broadway, started a blaze at 9.20 this morning. The fire was extinguished before it had done much damage.

RIDDLED WITH SMALL SHOT.

Milburn, N. J., the Scene of an Exciting Shooting Affair.

Young Joseph Horn Seriously Wounded and Will Probably Die.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

MILBURN, N. J., Feb. 22.—This village is in a state of high excitement today over another tragedy here which appears to be a murder. Some of the parties in the affair figured quite prominently in the investigation of the murder of old Mrs. Senior, three weeks ago.

Frank Ward, a young hatter, is in custody charged with having shot Joseph Horn, a young man of 22, at 8.30 o'clock last night, and it is said by the physicians that Horn's injuries are fatal.

Both the men are well known among the hatters here. Horn was formerly a printer, but had been obliged to quit that business by injury to his right hand. He had been employed in Herbert McCnesney's hat shop in Orange Valley.

Frank Ward was employed in the same shop. Their acquaintances deny all knowledge of any feud between the men.

The two men had been visiting friends in Milburn, and had reached the depot on their way home. Ward jostled Horn, it is said, when a quarrel ensued. Suddenly the report of a shotgun was heard and Horn fell to the ground, shouting:

"My God! I'm killed!"

Bystanders ran to his aid, and laid him on a bench in the waiting room of the depot. Physicians were quickly summoned, and found that his abdomen was filled with small shot. He was unconscious when the doctors reached him.

Ward ran away, but at 1 o'clock this morning surrendered himself to the police. He claims that the shot was fired by accident. Justice McChesney had him removed to a place of safety, many threats of lynching having been made.

Horn is married and has two children. He has been for some time separated from his wife, however. Ward is a single man.

Justice McChesney this forenoon committed Ward to the County jail to await the result of Horn's injuries.

Stabbed in Holiday Fight.

Frederick Van Seemburgh, of 302 East Ninety-fifth street, and Christian Healy, of 68 East One Hundred and Thirteenth street, had an altercation early this morning at the corner of Park avenue and One Hundred and Thirteenth street, during which Healy cut Van Seemburgh in the head and right hand with a knife, causing severe wounds, which were dressed at Harlem Hospital. Healy was arrested.

Political Potpourri.

It is announced from Wheeling, W. Va., that Secretary of War Elkins is to be nominated as governor and will accept.

Senator Palmer, of Illinois, says that "Cleveland would arouse the enthusiasm of the masses of the people." He says further: "The contingency of nomination for President is so remote that it is not worth considering at all. I would not accept the Vice-Presidency."

The Alliance and Farmers' Alliance Central Committees of Louisiana have agreed to hold their white primaries on March 22.

In a letter Senator Teller, of Colorado, says that President Harrison has never done anything for the people of the West and knows of no reason why Colorado should support his renomination.

The Iowa delegation will go to Minneapolis instructed for Allison. It is claimed that he is the only Republican that can carry the State against Boies.

Senator John M. Palmer has said "Senator Hill has made a great mistake. The recent political outcrop in New York will handicap him heavily in other states."

Congressman Page, Md., said at Chicago yesterday: "I want to see Mr. Cleveland's name at the head of the next Presidential ticket."
