Manager Miner's Fiftieth Birthday.

Henry C. Miner, the theatrical manager, has reached his fiftieth birthday, and his friends and employees made this birthday memorable.

A grand orchestra of his three theatres serenaded him last night at his house, 115 East Thirty-fourth street, and Judge Gildersleeve presented Mr. Miner with a testimonial containing the names of all the employees of the People's Theatre, Bowery, Eighth Avenue and Newark Theatres. A second presentation was made of a gold watch said to have cost $2,000. It had the manager's monogram set in diamonds on one side of the case.

News Notes from Everywhere.

Josiah Rigby, aged sixty, died at Mansfield, Pa., after having lived for eighteen years with a broken back.

Two fights with Garza's band of revolutionists took place in Texas, one ranger and one outlaw killed.

"Green-goods" sent out from New York under the guise of tariff reform documents are circulated in Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin.

T. James McMaster, of Lockport, N. Y., marries Miss Emma Everett after a twenty years' courtship.

Francis F. Rafferty, a New York nurse, is sent to the Municipal Hospital, Philadelphia, apparently ill with typhoid fever.

Seven of the twenty-five votes of Boston instruct their delegates to the Democratic State Convention for Cleveland, three for Hill and two for Russell. The delegation is instructed, said to favor Cleveland, and will go to second choice.
