THE THIRD VOLUME OF PUTNAM'S SEMI-MONNTHLY LIBRARY.—Comprising the first of the Original and Copyright Series, entitled "Walks and Talks of an American Farmer in England," by Frederick Olmsted, with illustrations. 12mo., price 25 cents.

I trust that all who try to read the book, will be willing to come into a warm, good-natured, broad country kitchen fireside relation with me, and permit me to speak my mind freely, and in such language as I can readily command on all sorts of subjects that come in my way, forming their own views from the facts that I give them, and taking my opinion for only just what they shall seem to be worth.

"Notwithstanding the triteness of the field, I may presume to think, that there will be a great many who will yet enjoy to follow me over it, and this although my gait and carriage, should not be very elegant, but so only as one farmer's leg and one sailor's leg with the help of a short, crooked, half-grown academic sapling, for a walking stick, might be expected to carry a man along with a head and a heart of his own."—Extract from the Preface.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, For the cure of COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, WHOOPING COUGH, CROUP, ASTHMA, and CONSUMPTION.

Many years of trial, instead of impairing the public confidence in this medicine, has won for it an appreciation and notoriety by far exceeding the most sanguine expectations of its friends. Nothing but its intrinsic virtues and the unmistakable benefit conferred on thousands of sufferers, could originate and maintain the reputation it enjoys. While many inferior remedies thrust upon the community, have failed and been discarded, this has gained friends by every trial, conferred benefits on the afflicted they never can forget, and produced cures too numerous and too remarkable to be forgotten.

While it is a fraud on the public to pretend that any one medicine will infallibly cure—still there is abundant proof that the CHERRY PECTORAL does not only as a general thing, but almost invariably, cure the maladies for which it is employed.

As time makes these facts wider and better known, the medicine has gradually become the best reliance of the afflicted, from the log-cabin of the American peasant, to the palaces of the European Kings. Throughout this entire country, in every State, city, and indeed almost every hamlet it contains, CHERRY PECTORAL is known as the best remedy extant for diseases of the Throat and Lungs, and in many foreign countries, it is coming to be extensively used by their most intelligent Physicians. In Great Britain, France and Germany, where the medical sciences have reached their highest perfection, Cherry Pectoral is introduced, and in constant use in the Armies, Hospitals, Alms Houses, Public Institutions, and in domestic practice, as the surest remedy their attending Physicians can employ for the more dangerous affections of the lungs. Also in milder cases, and for children it is safe, pleasant, and effectual to cure. In fact, some of the most flattering testimonials we receive have been from parents who have found it efficacious in cases particularly incidental to childhood.

The Cherry Pectoral is manufactured by a practical Chemist, and every ounce of it under his own eye, with invariable accuracy and care. It is sealed and protected by law from counterfeits, consequently can be relied on as genuine without adulteration.

We have endeavored here to furnish the community with a medicine of such intrinsic superiority and worth as should commend itself to their confidence—a remedy at once safe, speedy and effectual, which this has by repeated and countless trials proved itself to be; and trust by great care in preparing it with chemical accuracy, of uniform strength, to afford Physicians a new agent on which they can rely for the best results, and the afflicted with a remedy that will do for them all that medicine can do.

THE DAILY DISPATCH

POETRY.

BY MRS MARY E. HEWITT.

Slowly downward, with the midnight laden,
Rolls the river underneath the stars;
Through the rift the moon looks, like a maiden,
Timid, glancing through her lattice bars.

High on yonder shore a taper beaming
From a lofty casement, through the night,
With a bright and steady radiance gleaming,
Like a guiding beacon, pours its light.

"Ferry! Ho!" a voice impatient crieth
Far across the water's sluggish sweep—
"Ay!" the drowsy ferryman replieth,
Muttering, turning slow again to sleep.

And again the voice impetuous ringing,
"Ferry!" through the darkness pealeth out;
While the bell beside the margin swinging,
Clanging, mingles with the lonely shout.

Through the darkness now the heavens veiling,
All night long the love-lit beacon gleams;
All night long the bell tolls on unfailing,
While the boatman mutters "Ay!" and dreams—

Dreams, unmindful, while the night declineth,
How each laggard hour slowly departs—
How a fair bride for her true love pineth,
While the river flows between their hearts.

O, ye years! roll down beneath your sorrow!
Though, the while, the sluggard Present sleep,
Love and trust still waiting for the morrow,
Hopeful through the gloom their vigil keep.

MEMORY.

Soft as rays of sunlight stealing
On the dying day;
Sweet as chimes of low bells pealing
When eve fades away;
Sad as winds at night that moan
Through the heath o'er mountain lone,
Come the thoughts of days now gone
On manhood's memory.

As the sunbeams from the heaven
Hide at eve their light;
As the bells when fades the even
Peal not on the night;
As the night winds cease to sigh
When the rain falls from the sky,
Pass the thoughts of days gone by
From age's memory.

Yet the sunlight in the morning
Forth again shall break,
And the bells give sweet voiced warning
To the world to wake.
Soon the winds shall freshly breathe
O'er the mountain's purple heath;
But the path is lost in Death—
He hath no memory.

GEN. HOUSTON ON TEMPERANCE.—At the great Temperance banquet in New York, last week Gen. Houston seemed to be the "great gun." He made a speech which excited much applause. The New York Express gives the following sketch of it:

Gen. Houston's rising was the signal for nine hearty cheers. He said he had passed the meridian of a life of strange vicissitudes, and had never witnessed a more interesting and important occasion. The cause of Temperance, grown to be one of the first magnitude, and interests the philanthropic and the good of every nation. Such philanthropists are looked upon with admiration and thankfulness by all subsequent generations; all portions of society are affected by the subject of temperance, and people now have little confidence in those who are still the slaves of intemperate appetites. How are we to regard our fellow men who by this indulgence degrade official positions and forget responsible duties? But more than this, he degrades the nature and the soul given him by his Maker; he offers a terrible example of depravity to his fellow men; becomes a brutal father, a perjured husband, a ruined man in himself and his kindred. It behooves a man to set a good example in society, cherish the wife he swore to love, to rear his children in virture. Can he do these things when the demon of intoxication has berett him of reason and of self-respect?

The Hon. speaker went on to illustrate the impossibility of a virtuous life in a rum-drinker, of which he said he did not speak altogether from theory—he had in former days had some practice of that sort. [Laughter.] When man gives himself up to drink, he is abandoned even by the heedless world, and he finds no love, respect or toleration anywhere. He proceeded to indicate some of the peculiar benefits of temperance. For himself, he would say, that whatever changes might await him, he would never cease to remember that he had felt the blessings of temperance; and he would never cease to cry out to those who are in danger of the destruction which once awaited him; he would never cease to urge the practice of full and perfect temperance. He went on to show the dangers of moderate drinking, which he illustrated by a comical story which set the table in a roar. There are many indeed who are in the highway to inebriety of the ruinous sort, who are perfectly satisfied that they can always control themselves, but they are mistaken in this fancied security—they are on the verge of a precipice from which they cannot too soon retreat, and become sober and honorable fathers, husbands and citizens. [Cheers.]

N. Y. Express.

A bill has been introduced into the Mississippi Legislature proposing to sell 60,000 acres of the 500,000 granted to the State for internal improvements, at a minimum price of $2 per acre, distributing the sales through De Soto, Tunica, Coahoma and Bolivar Counties. It further proposes to issue scrip to these counties, and to Issaquena and Washington, for 600,000 acres of swamp land, also granted to the State by the General Government, to be sold by the Levee Commissioners at 50 cents per acre. The bill provides that after the 1st of October, 1858, the residue of the swamp lands is to be brought into market at $1 per acre, and from the proceeds of which the internal improvement fund arising from the sales of that part of the 500,000 acres provided for in the bill shall be reimbursed with interest at 8 per cent. per annum.

A Mr. Coster, of Broadway, it appears, has made a proposition to the Common Council of New York, that he will clear all the markets and other public places infested by rats, so completely of those vermin that not one will remain. This he proposes to do for one year without compensation if his work should not be satisfactorily performed. In one night he destroyed all the rats in Centre market; in proof of which, he exhibits a certificate signed by forty-two butchers, fishermen and others.

SAILOR'S YARN.—Old Jack Ringbolt had been spinning old Mrs. Tartametic any quantity of salty yarns; she was quite surprised at Mr. Ringbolt's ups and downs, trials, travel and tribulations. Honest Jack (!) had assured the old dame that he had sailed over and over many cities, all under water, and whose roofs and chimneys, with the sign boards on the stores, were still visible. He had seen Lots wife, or the pillow of salt she was finally frozen into.

"And did you see that, Lot's wife?" asked the old lady.

"Yes marm—but 'tain't there now—the cattle got afoul of the pillar of salt one day, and licked it all up."

"Good gracious, Mr. Ringbolt!"

"Fact, marm, I seed 'em at it, and tried to skeer 'em away.
