MONDAY MORNING.....JUNE 4, 1860

COUNTERFEIT COINS.—The New York Journal of Commerce, referring to the increasing frequency of counterfeit coins, makes some statements which seem calculated to raise a panic in the specie market; in fact, if some cure for such evils is not devised, the public will begin to seek bank bills as a matter of safety. A fraud has lately become common, which is stated to be far more dangerous than any former one. It is generally practised with the eagle. The piece is split into three parts, and the two outside shells containing the impression are separated from the centre. The latter is taken by the operator, and its place supplied by a filling of platina, to which the outsides are fastened, the edges being re-milled and handsomely plated. This is so well done, that very few experts can detect the cheat. The eagle thus loses about $5.50 of its gold, and remains equally good for general circulation. The fact that this is done at all, and the operation continued, is proof that it is carried on upon a large scale; for the exquisite machinery, and the skill necessary to success, could not be profitably employed except in an extensive business. The pieces are full weight, and except through the wonderful instinct of a rare expert, cannot be detected, as they answer all tests that do not involve the breaking or cutting of the coin. The Journal of Commerce says that there must be, at this moment, a large number of them on deposit in banks, and in almost every full bag of coins one or more of these, or other similar frauds, may be discovered, while the number of bad pieces offered at the Sub-Treasury has sometimes amounted to fifty or sixty dollars in a single package of five thousand. There is also a dangerous counterfeit of silver coins, which rings well, feels right to the touch, and is good weight. The New York banks, within a few days, have become a little startled by finding a sprinkling of these pieces inside their vaults, and public attention is likely to be aroused to a serious effort to abate the nuisance.

WONDERFUL FEATS OF MEMORY.—A gentleman in Massachusetts, who has committed to memory large portions of the Bible in his youth, and who wished to induce the Sabbath school scholars in his own State to do the same, made an offer of a ten dollar Bible to the scholar in Massachusetts, "old or young," who, during the year, from April 1, 1859, to April 1, 1860, should commit to memory and faithfully repeat to his or her teacher, superintendent or pastor, the largest portion of the Scriptures; also, a ten dollar Bible to the one who should commit to memory the next largest portion.

The following reports of passages committed have been received, certified by superintendent or pastor:

Mrs. Betsy Conant, who has been residing in Melrose, a lady sixty-eight years of age, has committed to memory the entire Bible, Old and New Testament, reciting each day in the week. This is certified by her daughter, and also by the superintendent of the Sabbath school—and the lady is entitled to the first Bible.

Harriet Ellen Bullard, of West Medway, has recited 18,209 verses, or nearly two-thirds the entire Bible, and is entitled to the second prize.

Charles N. Hoyes, a member of the State Reform school, has committed to memory 18,126 verses, and will receive a beautiful Bible.—Lucy M. Goodale, of Northbridge Centre, "recited perfectly" 15,425 verses, and will receive a beautiful Bible. This girl, according to the certificate, "learned her Scripture by rising at 4 o'clock in the morning and studying before commencing her labors for the day."

DEAD LETTERS.—For the three quarters ending March 31, 1860, the number of dead letters which contained money sent out was 7,448. Their aggregate contents amounted to $38,356. The number of letters delivered was 6,276, restoring to lawful owners $32,877.—Number of letters unclaimed and outstanding 1,172. During the same period the number of letters sent out containing articles of value other than money was 10,075. Of these 9,298 were delivered. Number of letters returned unclaimed 624. Number of letters outstanding only 153. The contents of letters may thus be enumerated: Bills of exchange, drafts, and letters of credit, bonds and notes of hand, checks, orders, and Treasury warrants, certificates of deposit, accounts and receipts, $2,802,530; deeds, mortgages, conveyances, and land titles, 651; articles of agreement, powers of attorney, and policies of insurance, 281; passage certificates and certificates of stock, 97; pension papers, land certificates, and patent papers, 156; court papers, 186; daguerreotypes, 952.

YOUTHFUL GOVERNOR OFFICER.—The King of Naples (says a Paris journal) has appointed one Master Manisalco, a baby three and a half years old, the receiver-general at Cupua. This was done as a mark of especial favor to the father of the child, who is notorious in Italy under the unenviable title "The Hangman of Sicily."
