FRIDAY MORNING.....OCT. 11, 1861

[From the London Punch.]

DAUGHTERS TO SELL.

SUNG BY A LADY OF FASHION.

Daughters to sell! Daughters to sell!
They cost more money than I can tell;
Their education has been first-rate;
What wealthy young nobleman wants a mate?
They sing like nightingales, play as well:
Daughters to sell! Daughters to sell!

Here's my fine daughters, my daughters, oh!
German, Italian, and French they know.
Dance like Sylphides for grace and ease;
Choose out your partner, whichever you please
Here's a nice wife for a rich young swell:
Daughters to sell! Daughters to sell!

Beautiful daughters, dark and fair!
Each a treasure to suit a millionaire,
Or fit to pair with any duke's heir
At St. George's Church by Hanover Square.
Hoy! you that in lordly mansions dwell,
Daughters to sell! Daughters to sell!

Buy my dear daughters! Who wants a bride,
That can give her a carriage and horses to ride,
Stand an opera box for his fancy's queen,
And no end of acres of crinoline?
Ever new furniture, jewels and plate,
All sorts of servants upon her to wait;
Visits to Paris, Vienna, and Rome.
In short, all that she's been brought up to at home.

Here are girls for your money—if out you can shell.
My daughters to sell! My daughters to sell!
