HE FAVORS A CHANGE.

Commissioner Gallup on the East River Park Concerts.

Some Needed Improvements Should First Be Made, He Says.

Lawyer Frederick A. Botty Writes a Letter on the Subject.

The plan to change the hour of the Thursday concerts at East River Park from 4 o'clock in the afternoon to 8 o'clock in the evening receives fresh support to-day, although its accomplishment may be temporarily delayed, owing to repairs to be made at the park.

Since THE EVENING WORLD espoused the cause of the working people who live in the neigaborhood of the park, not only has the movement become popular among those who frequent the pretty pleasure spot, but the Park Commisioners have also become interested in the matter and two of them have declared themselves in favor of changing the hour of the concerts.

In an interview published in yesterday's EVENING WORLD Commissioner Nathan Straus expressed the opinion that the request of the people who frequent the park should be heeded, as they are the only persons benefited by the advantages afforded.

To-day Commissioner Albert Gallup, formerly President of the Board, comes out in favor of evening concerts. Commissioner Gallup is one of the most energetic and industrious members of the Park Board, and ever since his appointment has taken a deep interest in these breathing places of the great metropolis. When questioned by an EVENING WORLD reporter as to the advisability of giving concerts at East River Park in the evening instead of in the afternoon, Commissioner Gallup said:

"The matter of music in the parks was left in my hands by the Board, and I made all the arrangements and outlined the programmes and designated the days when the concerts should be given.

"From the very first I was strongly in favor of giving the concerts at East River Park in the evening, and I believe now, as I always have, that the evening is the proper time for them, because it is impossible for the people of that locality to attend the concerts in the afternoon. Their work keeps them away.

"But with concerts in the evening would come immense crowds to the park, and consequently a great number of children, and right here comes in the only possible objection to evening concerts at present.

"The railing along the esplanade next to the river is artistic and pretty, but it is not safe when children are present in large numbers, because they can easily crawl through or possibly fall through and tumble into the river.

"Then, too, the north end of the park is unprotected at Eighty-fourth street, which is not under our control. Boys are constantly crawling through the railing or around the end and getting down on the rocks below, and it keeps the policeman in the park busy keeping them away from danger. One or two cases of drowning have occurred there, but I am glad to say that they were not the fault of the department.

"The danger, however, is constant and threatening. The tide is very strong along there, and should any children fall in they would be almost sure to be swept away. It would be impossible for policemen to keep children away from the railing with the crowds that would flock there to evening concerts."

"But cannot this danger be averted?" asked the reporter.

"Yes, it can and will be. Plans and specifications for the improvement of the northern end of the park are now ready, and work will be begun as soon as possible. While we are spending money in that way we can just as well make the railing safe by putting up a wire netting along its entire length.

"It will destroy the artistic effect, but it will make it perfectly safe for children. Then there will be no reason for not giving the concerts in the evening, as should be done.

"East River Park is a beautiful spot, and when the improvements which are to be made there are completed it will be one of the most popular of the smaller parks in the city."

The following letter from Lawyer Frederick A. Botty, who has been a most earnest champion of the interests of people living in the vicinity of East River Park, shows how much the park is appreciated and how earnestly evening concerts as well as other improvements are desired by those who frequent the park:

Pacific Edition.

"In your valuable issue of Saturday evening, May 21, there appears an article about music in the East River Park, and you kindly mention me as among those who are in favor of having music in the park evenings instead of afternoons. I am decidedly in favor of having music evenings.

"What is the use of having the concerts in the afternoon? Who attend the same? Women with baby carriages, have the workmen and their families an opportunity to listen to the music? No. At 6 o'clock, about time the workmen come home, the musicians pack their traps, and, like the Arabs, silently steal away, and the workmen, who help to pay for the music, can only imagine the pleasure he has missed.

"Last year I called the attention of the Park commissioners and others to the desired change and other important matters relative to the improvement of the Park. The people are thankful to have such a beautiful place to go to, but as to the politicians in whose power it is to improve the place, they should incline their heads for they have shamefully neglected this park.

"From Eighteenth street up on the East side there is no other park than East River Park. Thousands of dollars are expended to beautify and improve other parks near where the rich reside, but here in the midst of the workingmen's homes the Park Commissioners neglect their duties.

"There is not a single bunch of flowers in the park. The sidewalks around the park are bad, the roads in the park are not much bad but dirty, dusty and dangerous. The old ruin in the park is an eye-sore and should, together with the old building adjoining, it be removed.

"The Park Commissioners will never do this unless your valuable paper will assist in obtaining for the people their rights. The Park Department should use some of the $931,500 appropriated for park purposes in improving East River Park. Respectfully yours,

"FREDERICK A. BOTTY,
"1640 East End avenue.

MR. BLAINE HAS A QUIET DAY.

Reads the Papers, Then Vists His New Grandchild.

A Rumored Conference with Mr. Platt—Ex-Speaker Reed in Town.

Secretary Blaine took things very quietly at the Fifth Avenue Hotel this morning. He had few callers, and those were all personal friends, and although the corridors of the hotel were filled with politicians none of them made any effort to see the Secretary. After breakfasting in his apartments, Mr. Blaine sent for the morning papers, and to reporters who sent up their cards he replied that he was very busy and could not see them.

About 10 o'clock Mrs. Blaine ordered a carriage and drove uptown to the house of her daughter, Mrs. Walter Damrosch. It was rumored that Mr. Blaine was afterwards in conference with ex-Senator Thomas C. Platt, who has rooms in the hotel adjoining those of the Secretary of State. This, however, could not be verified. Nothing was seen of Mr. Platt about the hotel during the morning, although dozens of watchful eyes were on the lookout for him.

Field Marshal Murat Halstead called and sent up his card to Mrs. Blaine, but went away when informed that she had gone out.

Another person who attracted considerable attention was the other big man from Maine, ex-Speaker Thomas B. Reed. His stalwart form loomed up in the corridor just before 11 o'clock, and he stood for some time conversing with Col. Hooker, member of the Republican National committee from Vermont, and several other politicians.

Mr. Reed did not inquire for Mr. Blaine or even send up his card. It is said that the two big Maine men are not now on friendly terms.

The ex-Speaker is not a Harrison man either, and it is difficult to say just where he stands on the present issue that is agitating the Republican factions. He refused to answer any questions put to him by reporters.

"Gentlemen, I have nothing whatever to say. You must excuse me," was all that could be obtained from him. After ten minutes he started out again on a rush for the Elevated station at Twenty-third street.

Just after 11 o'clock Mr. Blaine came downstairs and ordered a carriage. He was immediately surrounded by reporters, and all sorts of questions were launched at him.

"It is useless to ask me any question," he said, "for I have absolutely nothing to say. I am here simply on private matters, which are of no public interest.

"What are your plans for the day?" was ventured.

"Well, I am going up now to see my daughter and grandchild, if that is of any interest to you, and what I will do this afternoon I do not yet know myself."

With this Mr. Blaine broke away, and started at a brisk pace for his carriage, which was waiting at the hotel door. He was apparently in excellent health. His step was firm and his manner bright and cheerful. His paleness, however, was very marked. There was not a particle of color in his cheeks. His features almost resembled marble, but gave no indication of fatigue or illness, he said last night that he had not been in better health for a long time.

HELD AS A FLIM-FLAMMER.

Many People in Paterson Said to Have Been Fleeced by Carlton.

Frank P. Carlton, a tall, well-dressed man wearing a silk hat and a badge of the Knights of Pythias, was arraigned in the Jefferson Market court this morning as a fugitive from justice. He was arrested last night at the St. Clair Hotel, 120 Park Row, by Central office men at the request of Constable Albert McGee, of Paterson, N. J., who had a warrant for him.

If the story told about him by Constable McGee is true, Carelton is a "flim-flammer." He had an office in the Paterson National Bank in Market street in which he purported to conduct a real estate business.

Constable McGee says Carlton is also wanted in Baltimore, Philadelphia and Buffalo for victimizing people by "flim-flam" money changing.

Justice Grady committed the prisoner to await a requisition.

A Jersey City Thief Who Exploited in Every Police Precinct.

Frank Farrell, twenty-three, known in Jersey City as a boarding-house thief, was arrested last night at 70 Sussex street, that city.

He robbed several places some months ago, but skipped out of town. His present accusers are Matthew Green, 218 Grand street, whose wardrobe he stripped, and Frank Wesley, his employer and room-mate, who says he stole $221 from him.

There are nine or more warrants for Farrell in every police precinct of Jersey City.

New Grounds for the Clipper A. C.

The Clipper Athletic Club has secured the Oak Point baseball grounds and track for the season of 1892. The grounds are accessible both by the Elevated and surface roads at Harlem Bridge, and a large number of excursions are already been booked. The secretary of the club, A. J. Crothier, at One Hundred and Seventh street and Lexington avenue, has charge of the club arrangements and will furnish information to all inquirers.

Miss Chapin Becomes a Marquise.

Another New York girl has wedded a titled bridegroom. Miss Julia Jeanette Chapin last night became the bride of the Marquis de la Tour du Villard of France. The wedding was at the home of the bride's father, Chester W. Chapin, 34 West Fifty-second street. Archbishop Corrigan, assisted by his secretary, performed the religious ceremony, and Supreme Court Justice George W. Andrews the civil marriage.

Police Must Help Brennan.

Capt. Byrnes summoned the police captains to Headquarters to-day and charged them to strictly enforce the city ordinances against the throwing of garbage and paper in the streets. This was in compliance with a request by the Police Department made by Commissioner Brennan.

Tugboat Deckhand Drowned.

William Applegate, a deckhand on the tugboat Emma Ross, lying at the dry dock foot of Fifteenth street, Hoboken, while going on board of the boat at midnight fell overboard and was drowned. His home was at Spring Lake, N. J. He leaves a widow and two children. His body has not been found.

No News of Jeweler Peloubet.

John H. Peloubet, of Jersey City, a son of ex-Judge D. A. Peloubet, who disappeared last Wednesday leaving a letter stating that his mind was troubled by business strains, has not yet been heard from. He was manager of his father's jewelry store at 140 Newark avenue.

Quakers in Convention.

The Quaker delegates, men and women, met in separate apartments at the Quaker Meeting-House in East Fifteenth street this morning. It is their annual convention, but reporters are not admitted. To-day they appointed committees and heard speeches by Isaac Wilson and Robert Hatton.

A DEAF MAN MADE TO HEAR.

HE WAS AS DEAF AS A POST FOR MANY YEARS.

Francis Lafiamme's Wonderful Story—How He Lost His Hearing and How It Was Restored—Living Life Over Again.

Here is the remarkable story of a man, 46 years old, who was deaf in both ears since he was a boy of 14 years, who can now hear as well as anybody. Francis Lafiamme lives at 601 West 151st st., on the northwest corner of 151st ave. He is a ship caulker and a man of family. This experience he said:

FRANCIS LAFIAMME.

"I was deaf in both ears from the time I was a boy, 14 years old, until a short time ago, and now I am 46 years old, that is 32 years. There was a humming in my ears like the roaring of a waterfall. I was very deaf. Now I can hear an ordinary conversation as well as anybody. Nobody can understand what I have suffered in consequence. I experienced when I found I could hear again as good as anybody. It is like a new life or rather like living in a new world. My deafness became from catarrh. I went to the Putnam Hospital in Albany and to a dispensary there, and also tried Dr. Sanford's Cream Balm and other alleged catarrh cures, but nothing did me any good. My throat was sore and my nostrils were bad. My voice was weak and there was a burning sensation in both my stomach and my throat. My nose was stuffed up and mucus dropped down my throat. I had bad headaches.

"I finally went to Doctors McCoy and Wildman, and after I had been under their treatment for six weeks I commenced to gain in health. My hearing began to get better. Now I can hear as ordinary conversation. I mention that a little over a month after I began treatment with Doctors McCoy and Wildman. My head is as clear as a whistle now. When I get up in the morning now I feel like a heavy bird. I feel as good now as I ever did in my life, and on the 25th day of June my time is up and I will be discharged as thoroughly cured."

Doctors McCoy and Wildman make a specialty of the treatment of all chronic diseases, including catarrh. They furnish all medicines free, and their charge for treatment is one of the most moderate that they are within the reach of all.

KIERNAN LOSES HIS TICKER.

The Big Western Union Scoops in His Little Route.

Official Notice of the Coup Sent Out in Wall Street This Morning.

Wall street was surprised this morning by a notice published to the effect that the Kiernan News company would from to-day cease to operate the general news and sporting ticket service.

Manager Cole of the Kiernan News Company, 30 Broad street, this morning told an EVENING WORLD reporter:

"The Kiernan News Company has used tickers leased to it by the Western Union Telegraph Company for the last eighteen years. The contract between the two companies expired two months ago.

"Since then the Kiernan News Company carried on business without any formal contract until yesterday, when the Western Union Company transferred the tickers to the Foreign and Domestic News Company, which will in effect operate them.

"Senator Kiernan is the principal stockholder. He is a friend of mine and I was employed by the Kiernan News company as reporter. For some reason, which I do not desire to discuss, young Mr. Kiernan was discharged. He is now the Manager of the Domestic and Foreign News Company."

Sending-off Kiernan said: "My son, Frank, had a dispute with the management of the Kiernan News Company, and complained to the Senator. The Senator, I am sorry, has doubt, in connection with the liability of the Kiernan News Company to pay $20,000 which it owed to the Western Union Company, precipitated the rupture between the two companies."

Mr. Frank Kiernan is Manager the Domestic and Foreign News Company at 10 Broad street.

Supt. Scott, of the Gold and Stock Telegraph Company, which belongs to the Western Union, said that the contract giving the Domestic and Foreign News Company the ticker service went into effect this morning.

Hereafter the Kiernan News Company will supply only selected financial bulletins. The 1,400 tickers will go to the new company.

It was rumored that Drexel, Morgan & Co. had for some time been managing the Kiernan News Company, but this was denied at the bank.

MRS. HATTIE ADAMS SOLD OUT.

Mortgagees Auction Off the Furnishings of Her Houses.

A Stuffed Dog and Some Statuettes Among the Articles of Vertu.

The furniture and contents of the houses at 31 and 33 East Twenty-seventh street, occupied by Mrs. Hattie Adams prior to her retirement to Blackwell's Island, were sold at public auction to-day by L. Ullmann & Co. to satisfy a mortgage held by them on the goods.

Had Hattie seen the second-hand dealers, bargain and relic hunters and women whom she knew personally because of their similar walks in life, all poking about the house examining the furniture, or had she heard the comments made by them on the same, her remarks would doubtless have made mighty warm reading.

But she was not there. Neither was Rev. Dr. Chas. H. Parkhurst, of whose celebrated visit to her house to-day's sale was a result, but his name was in the mouths of many of the persons present.

When some one remarked, "Well, this is Parkhurst's work," the facts of more than one fashionably attired woman took on a sort of who-is-the-next expression that was probably an index of her thoughts.

The furniture had all been removed from No. 31 to No. 33, where Hattie swore she kept a boarding-house to "actors and bicycle people." As a result the latter house appeared overcrowded, and more than one man remarked that the house was "stuffed" for auction purposes and that Hattie had really stored most of her effects. Auctioneer S. S. Hertzberg, however, denied this, and said that everything was there except a few articles of bric-a-brac. It was also said that she had retained the armchair in which Dr. Tackhorse sat during his visit.

Among the articles sold were twelve complete bedroom suits, a red glass vestibule door bearing the word "Adams" and "33" upon it, two folding-beds, three or four parlor suits, a stuffed dog, curtains, carpets, pictures and hangings galore, and an elegant gilt mantel-clock, which had stopped at the hour Dr. Parkhurst is said to have ended his visit.

The room in which the notorious "crowns" was sold was crowded with the best furniture, and was curiously inspected by a black eye viewed the proceedings gloomily and moved regretfully and noisily.

Among the bric-a-brac left were several pieces of statuary representing innocence and love, "Faust and Margaret," "Margueritte, and "Hope and Fear." An article catalogued as "One Church Hat Stand" caused much comment.

A tall, blonde-haired woman was of the opinion that two broken mirrors had caused Hattie Adams's bad luck, and then she tearfully recalled reminiscences of the house to a friend.

Some of the furniture was in good condition, and Mrs. Adams's private suit of massive antique oak was "as good as new."

The first articles sold were seventeen curtain-poles that brought 30 cent and a request for a deposit from the auctioneer. Other articles brought equally fair prices. There were fully 300 people present, mostly women.

DID UP FATHER AND SON.

This Young Harlem Dude a Good Deal of a Pugilist.

He Gave Detective Von Gerichten and His Son a Black Eye Apiece.

Detective Sergt. Jacob Von Gerichten, who is stationed at the District-Attorney's office, appeared in Harlem Court to-day against a young man who said he was George A. Wilson, of Scranton, Pa., but who is supposed to be a Harlem resident.

"Mr. Wilson" was accused of making a violent assault upon Mr. Von Gerichten, the result of which was a black eye for the detective. Detective Von Gerichten's son William also joined in the row and he, too, had his eye in mourning.

Detective Von Gerichten lives at 224 West One Hundred and Thirteenth street, and his son lives at 303 West One Hundred and Sixteenth street. Father and son were standing at the corner of one Hundred and Eighteenth street and Eighth avenue last night talking with Dr. Isaac Seltzer, a physician, when a fashionably dressed young man in a state of inebriety staggered up to the party and demanded to know where he was. He was so insulting in his remarks that the detective ordered him to go about his business.

The young man took an aggressive stand and boast that he could whip any dozen men of his size. Detective Von Gerichten pushed him away whereupon the young man struck out from the shoulder and landed on the detective's eye with staggering force. Young Von Gerichten started to his sire, who upon his receipt of a blow in the eye similar to the one given to his father.

The young pugilist was finally overpowered and taken to the One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street station by Policeman Boyle and locked up all night.

In court the prisoner still insisted that his name was George A. Wilson and that his home is in Scranton, Pa. He did not know why he had assaulted the detective and his son, but said he was too drunk to know what he was doing.

Justice Welde held him in $500 for examination Wednesday afternoon.

STABBED ON A STEAMSHIP.

Drunken Sailors Have a Serious Row on the Fruiter Victoria.

A fight, in which one man was stabbed and another was injured in the face, occurred shortly after 1 o'clock this morning on the Norwegian fruit steamer Victoria, Capt. Aarsat, lying at the foot of Wall street. The vessel arrived from Havana yesterday, and the crew was paid off.

John Peterson, a sailor with several companions and two strangers, returned to the vessel at midnight intoxicated. Peterson's efforts to get into the forecastle awakened Frederick Finckenhagen, the chief mate, and Frederick Burns, the steward. A row ensued. In the melee one of the strangers who accompanied Peterson fell overboard and was fished out. Finckenhagen and Peterson grappled, and the former was stabbed in the right side and the latter's eyes were almost closed.

Finckenhagen, Burns, a sailor named Elias Jacobson, and William Welding, the second engineer, were arrested. Peterson was taken to Chambers Street Hospital and an ambulance surgeon dressed Finckenhagen's injuries.

The men were arraigned in the Tombs Court and discharged.

PATRICK FITZPATRICK HANGED.

He Stabbed Sam Early to Death in Pittsburg Last September.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

PITTSBURG, May 24.—Patrick Fitzpatrick, the murderer of Samuel Early, expiated his crime on the scaffold in the County Jail yard this morning. The trap was sprung at 11.05 A. M., and in fifteen minutes life was pronounced extinct. Death resulted from strangulation.

The execution was witnessed by only thirty persons, including the physicians, jury and reporters.

The murderer was for many years a tramp, but worked at odd times as a laborer. He fatally stabbed Early, who was a steel-roller, on the night of Sept. 2, 1891, outside the Phœnix Hotel barroom, in this city, after a quarrel on some trivial cause.

HE'S A $60,000 COPPER NOW.

Officer James A. Monahan's Wife Falls Heir to a Fortune.

Won't Leave the Force Unless the Super Fires Him, He Says.

Policeman James A. Monahan, who was reported in this morning's papers to have fallen heir to $2,000,000, patrolled his beat on Avenue B, between Fourteenth and Twentieth streets to-day as faithfully as if he were a new appointee on the force with a reputation for diligence to be established.

The news of Monahan's alleged windfall had reached that part of the city long before the popular officer had finished dreaming of drunks and disorderlies. All his old friends, and he has lots of them, greeted him with such remarks as "Where's your carriage, Monny?" or "How soon will you move up with the swells?"

"I'm one of yo always," was the response every time that established Monahan as a good fellow, whether a copper or a man of wealth.

It is not true that Monahan is to get $2,000,000, but the fact that his wife and sister-in-law had gone to Ireland to get $60,000 each of an estate of $300,000 left by Thomas Kearney, a rich uncle of Mrs. Monahan, was enough to make any officer feel happy, and Mr. Monahan was not an exception.

"I don't know very much about it except that it is a sure thing," said Mr. Monahan, as he stopped at a corner on his beat this morning to talk with an EVENING WORLD reporter.

"My wife and sister-in-law have gone to Dublin to get the stuff and when they come back I'll tell you more about it.

"You see, my wife's uncle was a rich speculator, and he died a few years ago, without children. There are five heirs, and it took him so long to fix things up. Sixty thousand is a pretty big pile, and I don't know what they'll do with it. I think——

"Are you going to leave us, Monny?" broke in a young lad in a tone of despair.

"Never, the boy," answered the officer. "Not unless I'm fired. I was born over forty years ago at Avenue B and Fifteenth street, and as long as the Super lets me I'll be here to pull you in and make you move along.

"No, my money won't buy me police and politics. I may be able to patrol the beat in a carriage some day," he added with a smile, "and then when you gets drunk I'll pinch you in style."

Just all the policemen at the East Twenty-second street station were glad to hear of their brother officer's good luck was made evident by their hearty congratulations this morning. Monahan is a jolly fellow, as everyone who has felt by the stalte always on his big round face and the way he shakes his fat sides when he laughs.

His wife was a daughter of P. Kearney, who came to New York forty years ago. She was born in the metropolis, and made her first trip to Ireland with a sister in the early part of this month. Another heir to the estate is John Kearney, of Newark. The other two live in Ireland.

Thomas Kearney, of the Fire Department, and Barney Kearney, a retired fireman, are brothers of Mrs. Monahan, but were deprived of any part of the estate by the will, the reason being that they are already well off.

THREE TRIED TO DIE.

One Turned on Gas, One Jumped from a Window, One Cut His Throat.

Three persons who had grown tired of life this morning by various methods sought to end their existence.

At 8 30 o'clock Mrs. Caroline Seibert, of 170 First avenue, locked herself in her bedroom and turned on four gas jets. Her son Fritz, a carpenter, smelled the gas and burst open the door. The woman was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

Shortly after 7 o'clock Ellen Rooney, forty-eight years old, jumped out of a four-story window at her home, 400 East Forty-eighth street. Her skull was fractured and her right leg broken. She was slightly demented and at one time confined in an insane asylum.

The third would-be suicide was John Kelly, a laborer, sixty-six years old, of 906 Third avenue. He used a razor on his throat, but the wound was only superficial. Owing to his advanced age there is a slight doubt of his recovery. Drink was the cause of his rash act.

He and Mrs. Rooney were both taken to Bellevue.

Held for Causing His Child's Death.

Edward Kelly was held in $2,000 bail this morning by Justice Ryan, of the Yorkville Police Court, on a charge of having caused the death of an infant found in a pool of water on the roof of 16 East Forty-fifth street. Mrs. Kelly, against whom is a similar charge, is still sick in Bellevue. An autopsy by Dr. Walsh showed the child was born alive and had lived several hours.
