Broke the Bell.

In the days of the chestnut bell a lot of us were waiting at Trenton for the Long Branch train, and one of the men began telling about his experience on a wrecked vessel in mid Atlantic. Near by, on a passenger's trunk, sat a pale faced, weary eyed young man of 20 summers, who was going down to the Branch with his ma. He wore a chestnut bell, and this was perhaps the first time he had had a chance to ring it. The gentleman was proceeding with his story when ting-a-ling! went the bell. He stopped and looked around and then continued, but after half a minute the young man belled him up again. The man looked annoyed, but went on, and during the quarter of an hour he was talking that bell rang about fifteen times. When he had finished he looked over to the weary young man and asked:

"What is that bell for?"

"Chestnuts," was the reply.

"How do you mean?"

"Why, you know, when you hear anything old you ting-a-ling on the bell."

"Oh, you do. I guess I'll try it once."

He got up, shook the young man out of his coat and collar at the first shake and then whirled him around, ended him up and gave him a toss over a heap of baggage. The bell boy got up covered with dust and a wreck, the bell broken by the shock and his collar hanging by one end, and as he disappeared into the ladies' room we heard his mother exclaim:

"Why, darling, didn't I warn you to look out for the locomotive?"

And the man who had told the story added:

"Best to take such cases at the start and administer strong medicine. He might have rung that bell on somebody who'd have got mad and damaged him beyond repair."—New York Sun.

The Artist and the East Side Maid.

A famous New York painter, an enthusiast in his art, has a craze for models with red hair. He was going through a down town street when he happened to see a young girl with the all desired locks hurrying along with a pitcher. She was a striking specimen of animal beauty, and she did not seem to have very much to protect her from the breeze besides the clinging calico wrapper that draped her fine form. The moment the artist saw her he quickened his pace, calling out as he approached:

"Hi there! you girl! you with the red hair. Stop!" She gave a swift look over her shoulder, and seeing the strange man making toward her, she began to run. The artist did likewise. Down the street fled the terrified girl, her face as white as death. The street boys joined in the chase, and a policeman, thinking the girl a thief, intercepted and brought her to a halt, panting like a deer.

"I have done nothing," she cried, glaring at the artist as he came up.

"Has she stolen anything from you?" asked the policeman.

"Oh, no, indeed," replied the artist. "I never saw her before. I only wanted to ask her to come up to my studio and pose for me. I am an artist, you know, and I need red hair."

The boys set up a shout. The policeman looked at the artist as though he were an escaped lunatic and called him a very eloquent name. The girl in the meantime had recovered her breath, and when the undaunted artist asked if she was willing to pose for him she declined in language that made the gamins howl with delight and gave to the artist a shock that he will never get over.—Utica Observer.

Map Out Your Course, Young Man.

The man who starts in pursuit of fortune without carefully surveying the ground and laying down his line of march beforehand is a reckless Absalom, who is pretty sure to be caught by the "wait a bit thorns" of speculation and left helplessly struggling in their midst, a ridiculous spectacle to all right thinking men.

Map out your course, young man, before you set forth on your business journey. While you are yet out of the tumult and turmoil of the busy world adopt a set of principles. Let them be such as your conscience and your common sense approve. Then fashion a code of laws for your future government—rules of conduct, based on the duties you owe to God, to your neighbor and to yourself.

Don't wait until you are assailed by temptation or beset with difficulties to determine what you shall do in either dilemma. Determine in advance what ought to be done under certain circumstances, and when they occur do it. You are better qualified to judge rightly what is just and prudent in any contingency before the contingency is upon you than you can be in the moment of difficulty. In your trouble don't trust to the impulse of the moment. Impulse is a blind guide in serious matters. Refer back to your chart. This has been the practice of wise and good men from time immemorial.—New York Ledger.

The Cabbage.

The Greeks held the cabbage in such high esteem that they deduced its origin from the father of the gods. The Saxons named February "Sprout Kale" in honor of this vegetable, so that it is appropriate to make it our February vegetable.

Chemically, according to Schrader, cabbage contains starch, vegetable albumen, resin, gum extract and some salts. Sir Humphrey Davy estimates that its nutritive matter is about 73 in 1,000 parts, while Boussingault calculates that 1,446 parts of white cabbage are equivalent in nutritive powers to 191 of wheat. It must be well cooked, if cooked at all, or it is less digestible than when eaten as a slaw or salad.

Phillips says that "the ancient Romans banished physicians from their territory and preserved their health 600 years by the use of cabbage." It is frequently used in long voyages to prevent scurvy, and would be more effective for this purpose if cooked and eaten without pork.—Hall's Journal of Health.

A Child's Remarks.

My wife has a nephew who is only 4 years of age. One night during his stay we had company. The little fellow sat mute until the company had gone and until he went to bed. As his aunt was bidding him good night he looked up at her and said: "Auntie, did you notice that uncle didn't introduce me to the company tonight?"

The same little fellow was telling his aunt that he would like to live with her always. She asked him if he didn't think he would like some time to go and see his papa and mamma.

"May be I'd like to see papa," he said, "but my mamma and I don't always agree."

His mamma was the one who always handled the slipper.—Chicago Tribune.

It appears that water works in the United States and Canada have trebled in the last ten years, growing from 660 in 1881 to 1,900 today. The capital invested is $500,000,000, their annual revenue is $50,000,000, their mains are 30,000 miles long and they have 2,000,000 taps.

Housework is healthy, and many physicians recommend it to women who need exercise. Walking is not enough—it exercises the legs; but dusting and sweeping bring an entirely different set of muscles into play. It will be found, too, that many girls will take more interest in their homes if encouraged to assist in the care of them.

Mr. W. A. Baldwin, a hardware merchant, of Boonville, Dallas county, Ia., says: "For the past two or three years, I have been subject to cramping pains in the stomach, I have tried a number of different remedies; the best one being Chamberlain's, Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, one or two doses of it always cures me." FRED. HOPPE, Agent.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, June 30.—Mr. George Johnson's boy, about eight years old, was taken with cholera morbus and given up to die by the attending physician. Mrs. Markert called at the house with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, and they gave the boy two doses of it. The effect was a prompt recovery and the next day he was up and about. Everybody in that neighborhood now uses it. THOS. THEISEN, Sold by C. F. Heinzeman, 222 N. Main street, John A. Off, corner Fourth and Spring streets and druggists generally.

Physicians recommend Highland Unsweetened Condensed Milk for infant feeding and general use.

Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat.

The reason the ordinary oculists and aurists so often fail to cure diseases of the above organs is owing to the fact that most cases require proper constitutional treatment which is seldom given.

The surgeons of the Liebig International Surgical Institute of Kansas City and San Francisco, will visit Los Angeles, Tuesday, August 12th, 1890, until Saturday afternoon, August 16th—five days only. Offices, 123 South Main street. Consultation free. Office hours, 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., daily. No evening hours.

A Recommendation.

I, the undersigned, being dangerously ill, applied to Dr. Mtug Chow and was restored to perfect health, and therefore desire all my friends to be informed in reference to Dr. Mtug Chow, that his reputation be not concealed; and advise all afflicted ones to repair to Dr. Mtug Chow's office at No. 641 Upper Main street and be cured. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy can always be depended upon, it is pleasant to take and will cure cramp, cholera morbus, dysentery and diarrhœa in their worst forms.
