

821 #40

GOODWIN'S WEEKLY

Have a Little Patience

GOD help the man who explains!" Well, you can help a little, yourself. The Weekly was hardly up to its historic high typographical grade last week. Hardly. And it is not quite satisfactory yet. But if you will have a little patience, we will give you a better paper than ever before. We have effected an arrangement whereby we can continue to issue The Weekly without giving all the income to the printer, along with a slight honorarium each week—and "digging down" for rent and office expenses because we loved the game. Our paper has been delayed in shipment, but is on the way, and will presently be here, and the consideration of patrons will be rewarded, we believe, quite fully. Do us the first favor we have ever asked: Have patience.

January 18, 1913

5 cents the copy

