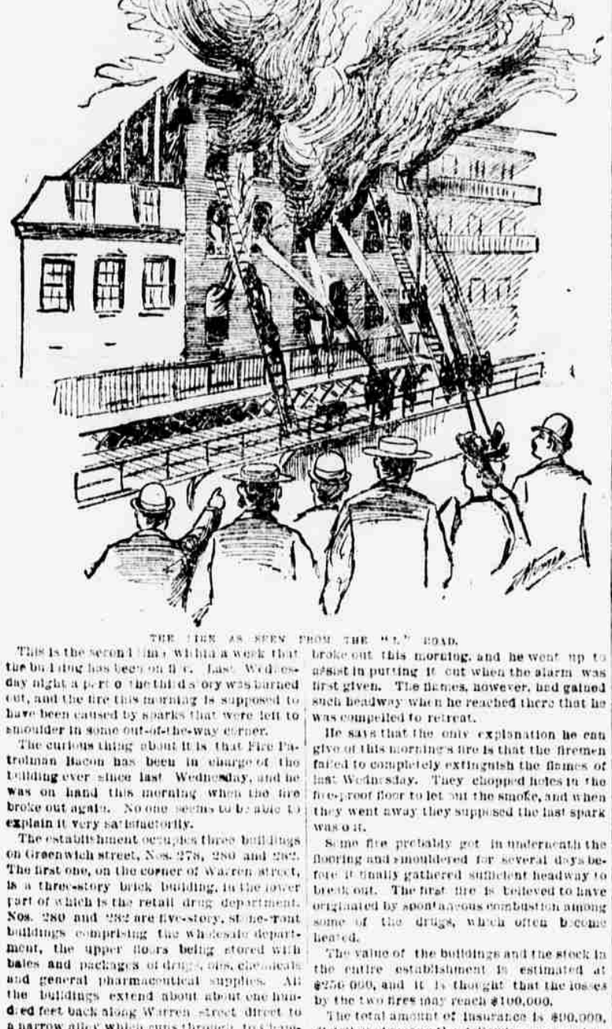
HOT FIRE OF DRUGS.

Blaze in Greenwich Street That Blocked Early Ninth Avenue "L" Trains.

Tarrant Co.'s Store Ablaze for the Second Time in a Week.

The Loss in Both Fires Amounts to About $100,000; Insurance, $90,000.

A lively blaze in Tarrant & Co.'s big whole sale drug store at Warren and Greenwich streets, furnished plenty of excitement for people on their way to business this morning, and gave the firemen a hard tussle.



THE FIRE AS SEEN FROM THE "L" ROAD.

This is the second fire within a week that the building has been on fire. Last Wednesday night a portion of the third story was burned out, and the fire this morning is supposed to have been caused by sparks that were left to smoulder in some out-of-the-way corner.

The curious thing about it is that Fire Patrolman Bacon has been in charge of the building ever since last Wednesday, and he was on hand this morning when the fire broke out again. No one seems to be able to explain it very satisfactorily.

The establishment occupies three buildings on Greenwich street, Nos. 278, 280 and 282. The first one, on the corner of Warren street, is a three-story brick building, in the lower part of which is the retail drug department. Nos. 280 and 282 are five-story, stone-front buildings comprising the wholesale department, the upper floors being stored with bales and packages of drugs, oils, chemicals and general pharmaceutical supplies. All the buildings extend about about one hundred feet back along Warren street direct to a narrow alley which runs through to Chambers street.

The fire last Wednesday was in the third floor of No. 282, the two upper floors being protected by fireproof ceilings. All day yesterday Mr. Miller, one of the fire insurance adjusters, was busy with several clerks taking an inventory of the stock in that building.

This morning they early began work again. Fire Patrolman Bacon was on hand, and Mr. Miller was assisted by about a dozen men and two girls. About half-past 8 o'clock some one noticed a smoky smell, and on going to the rear of the fourth floor it was found that smoke was issuing from one of the holes cut in the floor by the firemen, and all the rafters and flooring beneath seemed to be afire.

There was a rush for the hand grenades, a supply of which was kept on each floor, and several pailfuls of water were poured on the burning rafters, but without effect. The fire had gained too much headway to be checked, and everyone ran for the stairways. The girls and men all got down safely, and Supt. Mann, who received word in the office that the building was on fire sent a man out to the corner to sound the alarm.

The engines seemed to be somewhat slow in getting to the scene of the fire and when they arrived. Engine Companies No. 6 and 29 being among the first, the whole upper part of No. 282 seemed to be in flames.

THREE ALARMS AND AN AMBULANCE.

A second alarm was sent out, and when Chief Bonner arrived he ordered a third call, and also summoned an ambulance in case of emergency. The water-tower was also summoned, but it was not used.

Clouds of thick, black smoke poured out of the windows on the Greenwich street side and made it difficult for the firemen to get at the flames. All the trains on the Ninth Avenue Elevated road were stopped, and soon the tracks were blockaded all the way up and down along Greenwich street as far as the eye could reach.

The firemen utilized the Warren street station platform on the downtown side, as it extends along in front of the drug store. They planted their ladders upon it, and carried up several lines of hose, from which tons of water were poured into the roaring furnace of flames within.

Several streams were poured in to the burning building from the rear, but for some time even this volume of water seemed to have no effect.

The flames spread to the upper stories of the adjoining building, No. 280, where a lot of oils and chemicals were stored, and the dense black flames which poured from the windows hid the firemen and the ladders from the view of those in the streets below.

An immense crowd had collected, which was increased by the steady stream which was pouring up from the ferries, until the police finally stopped travel on Warren street entirely, and extended the fire lines for one block all around the burning building.

After an hour's hard work the flames began to subside, but not until the two upper floors of 278, 280 and 282 had been completely gutted and the entire contents of both buildings drenched with water.

The inmates of the Home-Made Hotel, which adjoins the drug store on the north at 284 Greenwich street, were greatly alarmed and began moving out their effects. It looked at one time as if the building would take fire, but the energetic work of Chief Bonner's men prevented the flames from spreading further.

The firm of Tarrant & Co. was established in 1834 as a retail drug business. Now it is principally engaged in the wholesale line, and for the past twenty years has been a corporation. The President and Superintendent is T. F. Main, and the Treasurer W. C. Allen. Mr. Main was in the office when the fire broke out this morning, and he went up to assist in putting it out when the alarm was first given. The flames, however, had gained such headway when he reached there that he was compelled to retreat.

He says that the only explanation he can give of this morning's fire is that the firemen failed to completely extinguish the flames of last Wednesday. They chopped holes in the fireproof floor to let out the smoke, and when they went away they supposed the last spark was out.

Some fire probably got in underneath the flooring and smouldered for several days before it finally gathered sufficient headway to break out. The first fire is believed to have originated by spontaneous combustion among some of the drugs, which often become heated.

The value of the buildings and the stock in the entire establishment is estimated at $250,000, and it is thought that the losses by the two fires may reach $100,000.

The total amount of insurance is $90,000, distributed among the following companies: Manufacturers and Merchants', $1,500; Citizens', $1,500; State Investment, $2,250; North British and Mercantile, $4,500; Niagara, $3,500; New Hampshire, $2,250; Caledonian, $2,250; Exchange, $4,500; Springfield, $2,250; Phœnix, $2,250; Guardian, $2,250; Hamilton, $2,250; Connecticut, $2,250; Ætna, $2,250; Fire Association, $2,250; Williamsburg City, $2,250; Empire City, $2,250; Nassau, $2,250; Providence and Washington, $1,500; Mechanics, $2,250; Imperial, $4,500; Lion, $4,500; Firemen's Fund, $2,250; Reliance, $2,250; United Firemen, $2,250; Commerce, $1,125; Western, $3,375; Newark, $1,500; Security, $2,250; Union, $2,250; Broadway, $2,250; Lafayette, $2,250; Merchant, $2,250; Hope, $2,250.

According to Cashier George Thompkins, who was on the third floor at the time the fire broke out, the flooring under the beams became hot and exploded a carboy of acid. The cashier ran into the office and cried: "For God's sake, boys, run; she's on fire again."

While the names were shooting through all parts of the floor circa H. W. Bullock, eighteen years, and William St. John, twenty years old, ran back into the building. Bullock saved the valuable books of the Company, St. John saved a $200 time clock. The water on the floors was so hot that their feet were parboiled.

MANAGER PRICE'S LITTLE ROW

A Honeymoon Quarrel at the Manhattan Beach Hotel.

The Story Creates a Sensation in the Theatrical Profession.

Those New Yorkers who are interested in theatricals were amazed today when they learned of the row that occurred at Manhattan Beach Hotel yesterday morning between Manager E. D. Price and his wife.

The couple arrived at the hotel early in the afternoon Saturday, and were assigned to room 221 on the second floor. They were on their wedding tour, as Mr. Price explained to the police, who were summoned to his room to quell the fracas.

It was Friday night that Mr. Price was married Tuesday evening last in the rectory of the Little Church Around the Corner to Carrie Matilda Emerson, née Walker. Rev. Dr. Houghton, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony.

In answer to the customary questions put by the clergyman Mr. Price gave his full name as Eleazar De Forest Price, born in Tecumseh, Mich., with present residence at Jackson, Mich. His age, he said, was forty-one years, and he stated that he was a bachelor. His business he gave as "manager."

The bride gave her name as Carrie Matilda Emerson, née Walker, of Silver City, Nev., and stated that she was a widow. Her New York address she gave as the Grand Hotel.

It may not be that E. D. Price, of Manhattan Beach Hotel notoriety, is the Edward D. Price so popularly known as manager of Mrs. Louise Dunlay Carter's "Miss Helyett" company and at one time manager for Richard Mansfield, and before that John McCullough's advance agent.

Yet, almost every one acquainted with professional men and women when they heard this morning that E. D. Price, a theatrical manager, had got into a mess at Manhattan Beach, immediately concluded that it was the Edward D. Price of the gracefully trained black mustache and olive complexion, whose slender figure was so familiar to matinee promenaders of upper Broadway or "boulevard Row."

Nobody had ever heard of any other E. D. Price as a theatrical man, except it was Edward P. Price, the criminal lawyer in the Capper Building and a one-time partner in the firm of Berger & Price, of the Lee Avenue Academy, Brooklyn.

But Edmund E. Price is more than fifty-five, and he is grizzled and bulky. He never could be mistaken for the younger Edward D. Price.

The story of the scrimmage at the hotel is unique. It was at 3 o'clock in the morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Price had dined sumptuously on the extensive piazza of the Manhattan Beach Hotel just after they got there Saturday. The waiters say there was no lack of champagne during that dinner.

The Prices attracted no particular attention until after midnight. Then came noises from their room, 221.

The hubbub aroused the watchman, and he called the hotel detectives, A. G. Price and Peterson. They threatened to burst in the door, and when it was finally opened found Mr. Price standing in his nightclothes with an open penknife in his right hand.

Mrs. Price lay on the bed with her left arm stretched flat across the pillows and blood flowing from a gash in the back of her left hand. In her right hand she clutched a handkerchief, which she applied to her eyes frequently.

When the detectives got into the room Mrs. Price exclaimed:

"Arrest him. He has tried to kill me. Look at my hand."

Her face was bruised and her eye was blackened. The officers gathered that the couple had a quarrel and Price struck his wife.

The quarrel grew more heated, and the officers believe that Price picked the knife from where it lay on the washstand and gashed his wife's hand.

The detectives arrested Price and locked him up in the basement of the hotel. They also placed a guard outside the door of Mrs. Price's room.

Both were taken before Justice Gladding, at Sheepshead Bay, yesterday forenoon and Mrs. Price refused to make any charge against her husband. Thereupon the officer preferred a charge of disorderly conduct against Price and the latter was fined $10, which he paid immediately.

Both principals hurried away in a cab. That is the story of the Prices' honeymoon at Manhattan Beach.

At the Grand Hotel, an E. D. Price was registered on Aug. 1, and given room 91. He gave his residence as New York City.

Theatrical Manager E. D. Price was formally a newspaper man and worked on the the Detroit Free Press.

WON'T AFFECT TAMMANY.

Mr. Gilroy Talks on the Reapportionment Decision.

Grand Sachem Gilroy, of Tammany Hall, said this morning that the decision of Judge Rumsey, of Rochester, declaring unconstitutional the Reapportionment act, would not affect the plans of Tammany for the campaign.

"We will go ahead with our work on the lines we have laid out just as if Judge Rumsey's decision had not been rendered," said Mr. Gilroy. "We will not take cognizance of the decision unless it is affirmed by the Court of Appeals."

Rustlers Riddle the President's Proclamation.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Aug. 8.—Despatches received from the North are to the effect that copies of the proclamation of the President calling on armed men to disperse have been shot into wherever posted. This is for the most part the work of "rustlers." Nearly all of the men to whom the proclamation was directed, including especially the murderers of Deputy United States Marshal Wellman, are no longer seen in the settlement. They are supposed to be hiding or to have left the country.

SHEEHAN WILL BE CHAIRMAN.

The Executive Campaign Committee Meets in Saratoga To-Night.

Senator Hill Expected to Return To-Day from His Yachting Trip.

The Executive Campaign Committee of the Democratic State Committee will meet at Saratoga this evening for organization. It is said to have been definitely decided that either Lieut.-Gov. Sheehan or Edward Murphy is to be chosen Chairman and Charles R. De Forest, of Troy, Secretary and Treasurer.

The reported selection of Mr. Sheehan as manager of the campaign came in the nature of a surprise to the politicians at National Democratic headquarters, as it was confidently expected that a man of Mr. Cleveland's choice would be given the place.

Chairman Murphy can have the place if he wants it, but the anti-Snappers are dissatisfied with him also.

The friends of the National candidate are not satisfied with the make-up of the committee, which consists of State Committeemen Hugh McLaughlin, James J. Martin, Samuel J. Tilden, jr., Charles M. Preston, James H. Manning, Daniel G. Griffin, John Flanigan, Edward D. Cutter and Charles Barnum, and Hill-Gov. Sheehan, Cord Meyer, Thomas Brown, James Stevens and Henry J. Mowry, who are not members of the State Committee.

The last-named four favored Mr. Cleveland's nomination at Chicago, the other ten favored the candidacy of Senator Hill.

In this connection it is stated that the National Committee will take a hand in conducting the campaign in this State, and that it has decided to delegate authority to the National Campaign and Advisory Committees instead of the stat Committee, to disburse funds, arrange meetings and select speakers.

At the meeting to-night a candidate for Chief Justice of the Court of Appeals will probably be nominated.

Judge Rufus W. Peckham, of Albany, is the leading candidate. Judge Robert Earl, at present acting Chief Justice, and William C. De Witt, of Brooklyn, are also mentioned.

Senator Hill is expected back in this city from his yachting trip this afternoon or evening.

He was at New Haven yesterday, where he is quoted as having said in an interview that he had no intention to call on Mr. Cleveland. Asked whether he was going to take the stump during the campaign this Fall, he said: "I do not say so."

Railroad Commissioner Beardsley, Subway Commissioner Ridgway and Edward Hinckley accompanied Senator Hill on his trip. No one, so far as can be learned, is informed as to the statesman's future movements.

PLATT SAYS HE'S TIRED OF IT.

Which Means that He Has Not Been Placated.

Ex-Senator Thomas C. Platt's attention was called this morning to the statement in a morning paper that he had a conference with Whitelaw Reid on Saturday lasting two hours.

Mr. Platt had previously denied that he saw or expected to see Mr. Reid.

"I will not say anything about it," said Mr. Platt. "The subject is worn threadbare and I am tired of it."

Politicians think it is safe to assume that if the statesmen did meet their conference did not end satisfactorily, or the announcement would already have been made that Mr. Platt had been placated and that all was serene and happy in the Republican camp, which is not the case.

MATRON COLE TO BE TRIED.

Black Charges Against Her and She May Resign.

Acting under orders from Inspector Conlin, Capt. Cross, of the Eldridge street station, preferred charges to-day against Police Matron Kate M. Cole, of his command, for being intoxicated and absent from duty without leave.

Matron Cole was appointed in February last. On Friday night she was found intoxicated in her room in the station-house. The following morning she left the station-house before being relieved, and was subsequently arrested in the Bowery by an officer of the Fifth street station who picked her up helplessly drunk.

She was arraigned at Essex Market Court and let go. She has since been absent from duty. It is likely that Matron Cole will resign sooner than stand trial.

The charge against Mrs. Cole is aggravated by the fact that when arrested she gave her name as Mary Ann Doyle. Mrs. Doyle is her fellow-matron at the Eldridge street station.

Riot at a Political Meeting.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PITTSBURG, Ind., Aug. 8.—A riot occurred at Winslow, this county, Saturday. A large crowd was in attendance at a political mass-meeting, when a coal miner named Barnes assaulted a young woman named Reed. The sheriff attempted his arrest, but was set upon by the miner's friends and a general row followed. Two brothers named Stinson were badly slashed and will probably die. A brother of the young woman was attacked by the miners and dangerously injured. Several others were wounded.

Joining a General Hunt for the Fresno Train Robbers.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

REEDLEY, Cal., Aug. 8.—A messenger has just returned from Sampson Flat, on Pine Ridge, thirty-five miles north of Reedley, where Chris Evans, the train robber, has a mining claim, the point the robbers, Evans and Sontag, are supposed to be headed for. It is believed the robbers are now in the mountains.

Three men riding horses were seen at a distance in the vicinity of Simpson Flat. One is said to answer the description of Evans. People throughout the foothills and mountains are thoroughly aroused. All are on the lookout. Roads and trails are lined with men armed with revolvers, shotguns, rifles and knives.

A large posse of deputies and officers is stationed at Smith & Moore's mills, four miles from Sampson Flat. Others are scouring the country in all directions. It is reported here that the robbers shot and killed another officer, making their fourth victim. No details can be learned.

A camp has been discovered near Monson, where the robbers prepared dinner yesterday, while the Sheriff and ten men were within four miles. The mountaineers say it will be almost impossible to capture the robbers if once they reach their old haunts at Sampson Flat.

DEATH OF A YOUNG HERO.

Saved a Woman from Fire at the Cost of His Own Life.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.]

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J., Aug. 8.—Clayton Witt, the young man who was frightfully burned Friday while rescuing Gussie Adler from a burning building on Burnet street, died last night of his injuries.

Miss Adler's clothing had taken fire from a gasoline stove, and her movements in an attempt to escape had communicated the flames to the furnishings.

Witt heard her screams and ran in to save her. As he seized her the stove toppled over, and, the gasoline pouring over him, was ignited from her clothing. Miss Adler was also terribly burned, but she will recover.

WAS BLOOD ON THE HATCHET?

Fall River Police Stick to Old Clues on the Borden Murder.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 8.—It is reported that the suspicions of blood spots on the hatchet found in the Borden cellar and now in possession of the police, are well founded, and that there is every reason to believe that members of the family are directly accountable for the death of the two victims of the Borden double murder.

The poison theory is still being followed.

Providence and Boston detectives have arrived and are working on the case.

District-Attorney Knowlton has been called here, and the autopsy is expected to take place either Tuesday or Wednesday.

TRIP OF THE TREASURE TRAIN.

It Has the Right of Way and Is Running "Wild" to Make Time.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 8.—Just before 6 o'clock last night the train containing thirty millions of Uncle Sam's money pulled into the Union depot from the west, and immediately pulled out again over the bridge.

The train was a Union Pacific special which had come straight from the Sub-Treasury at San Francisco as fast as it could turn its wheels. It was run "wild" over the road and everything else had to get out of the way to facilitate the progress of the cargo of golden metal. The gold was in coin, and $50,000,000 worth of it was in cases piled on the floors of the cars.

No stop was made on this side of the river, but at Council Bluffs the train remained forty minutes for lunch. As soon as the train stopped guards with backed rifles appeared on the platform of every car and no one was allowed to approach them. Even the conductor and trainmen were compelled to keep their distance until the train was ready to start.

PERIODICAL HYDROPHOBIA.

Alles Has Had Attacks in August Regularly for Fifteen Years.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.]

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 8.—John Alles, of this city, is suffering from a periodical attack of a disease resembling hydrophobia.

Fifteen years ago this month he was bitten by a mad dog, and for a long time physicians despaired of saving his life.

In August of each year since then he has had attacks similar to the present one, going into spasms and frothing at the mouth.

The attacks seem to grow more violent every year, and he is now strapped to his bed to prevent his doing injury to himself or others. Between the periodical attacks he enjoys good health.

HOT AND IT WILL BE HOTTER.

Only the Vanguard of a Warm Wave Has Reached Here.

The old firm of Heat & Humidity, that was supposed to have suspended business after letting the market to nearly a hundred a little over a week ago, has resumed operations at the top of the Equitable Building, and seems to have renewed energy after the short vacation.

Heat started in at 70 at 8 o'clock this morning, and was helped along in its disreputable work by its old side-partner Humidity, with a percentage of 91.

The flight upward was continued by Heat at the rate of about 2 degrees an hour until at 11 o'clock 78 was marked.

Humidity took a rest at 91, however, and at present seems to have a bearish tendency.

According to Forecaster Dunn, it is simply taking a rest for a greater coup to-morrow.

The sudden rise of temperature was unexpected and unwelcome. Street philosophers thought it possible the sun had entered into a conspiracy with Humidity to roast out Mars, but Mr. Dunn did not agree with them.

Long experience has taught him where unpleasant visitors frequently come from, and after consulting a map made by seeking fires in Dakota and tracing them loose on white paper he said the warm wave had been sent to the East by Mississippi Valley cowboys who are now cursing their cattle through atmosphere boiling at about 100 degrees.

From Arkansas to South Dakota, confided Mr. Dunn to an EVENING WORLD reporter, the mercury in all the thermometers has been tied to the guy ropes of a balloon, and has gone so high that western minds have hardly been able to compute it.

The wave has started eastward, and the little at that reached New York to-day is simply the vanguard. To-morrow there will be more of it, and again Wednesday profanity, humidity and heat will reach the climax.

There will be slight showers to-morrow, but not enough to furnish relief.

The rush of fun now commenced early today. Those who are wise will remain until Thursday, when Gotham will again take its place in the front rank of Summer resorts.

Samuel Cavanagh, forty-seventh, of 527 East Thirteenth was overcome by heat at Twenty-second street and Eighth avenue this forenoon. He was taken to New York Hospital.

MILL MEN GIVE IN.

Carnegie's Duquesne Works Started Up with Old Hands.

Surrender of the Strikers Causing Excitement in Homestead.

Trouble Likely to Follow the Withdrawal of the Militia.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.]

HOMESTEAD, Pa., Aug. 8.—There is considerable excitement here this morning over a report from Duquesne that the mills there were started up this morning, and that nearly all the old employes have returned to work.

The members of the Homestead Advisory Committee had received assurances, it is said, that the Duquesne sympathy strikers would stand by them to the last, and if the report that they have now given in proves true it may cause a break in the ranks here.

Battery B will probably leave here to-day, and the Fifth Regiment may be ordered home to-morrow. This will thin out the militia in camp here, and it is not improbable that the disgust and excitement over the Duquesne surrender may then be followed by assaults on the non-union workers. The situation seems to be growing critical once more.

THERE WAS A STAMPEDE.

The Men Made a Rush to Get in When the Whistle Sounded.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

HOMESTEAD, Pa., Aug. 8.—The strikers at Duquesne went back to work this morning, and the Carnegie Steel Company has scored one victory. On Saturday night Supt. Morrison posted a notice that all men who wanted their old places must report at the mill at 7 o'clock this morning, as work would be resumed at that hour. Long before the time set, however, workers with dinner-pails quietly stole up unfrequented streets and along the railroad tracks and entered the mill.

A big crowd of men who were leaders in the sympathy strike movement gathered on the road near the mill gate, and watched in moody silence the men going into work. Finally the mill whistle blew for 7 o'clock. Then one of the strikers exclaimed in a loud voice:

"Well, boys, the jig is up. We had better hustle for our old places."

This was a signal for a stampede and the entire crowd ran towards the gate. A freight train had been backed in front of the gate, but the men did not wait for it to be moved. They scrambled over and under it in their frantic haste to get inside the mill before the whistle stopped blowing.

These men were organized into the Amalgamated Association at no little expense and they went out on the sympathy strike about two weeks ago. By their surrender they have given up membership in the Amalgamated Association, and the Carnegie Company now has two non-union mills.

The effect of the break at Duquesne cannot but prove harmful to the men at Homestead, although the leaders will not admit it. At Duquesne steel billets can be manufactured and sent to Homestead to be rolled into plates by the non-union men, so that the firm will be in far better condition to fill its contracts and prosecute its fight here than it was.

O'DONNELL NOT IN HIDING.

He Is in Boston On a Secret Mission for the Homestead Men.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BOSTON, Aug. 8.—Hugh O'Donnell, of Homestead, Pa., is in this city. While he admits that his mission here is connected with the Homestead trouble, he declines to disclose its nature.

"I have not sought," said he, "to keep my movements secret, and the statement that I became alarmed and left Homestead to avoid trial on the charges preferred by the Carnegies is all bosh. I shall return when my mission is completed.

"What that mission is, of course, it would not be judicious to disclose just now. Regarding the lock-out, the end is not yet in sight, for are the Carnegies likely to be victors.

"The firm has some men at work at Homestead, but they are not the experienced hands it must have to properly operate its works. In these works, where machinery plays such an important part, every man has his place and his absence has the same effect as the breaking of a cog or a wheel.

"I am in daily communication with the Advisory Committee, and receive reports from it daily as to the progress of the contest. My mission will keep me in Boston for a week, and after that I shall make a tour of the New England States."

MORE ARRESTS TO BE MADE.

Lovejoy Says There Are from 50 to 150 Homesteaders on the List.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PITTSBURG, Aug. 8.—Secretary Lovejoy, of the Carnegie Steel Company, is authority for the statement that there will be anywhere from fifty to a hundred and fifty more informations for murder and for aggravated riot made against Homestead strikers before the strike is over.

On the other hand, W. J. Brennan, attorney for the Amalgamated Association, says the strikers do not propose to be behind the Company in the matter of prosecutions, and that more charges will be made early this week against the members of the firm and the Pinkertons.
