PEST HOUSE STIRS THEIR IRE.

Flatbush People Say It Has Spread Small-Pox Among Them.

They Intend to Petition Brooklyn for Its Removal.

The residents of Flatbush are indignant that the city of Brooklyn allows the hospital for contagious diseases to remain in their midst. They attribute the presence of small-pox in the town to its proximity. Their appeals to the city authorities have as yet received no recognition.

When Mrs. Mary Reuter and her daughter were removed to the pest-house yesterday from their home, which is but two blocks away, the indignation of the people reached the fighting point. It is probable that some determined effort will be made to procure its removal.

Health Commissioner Griffin, of Brooklyn, said this morning that it was impossible for contagion to be communicated from the hospital to any of the houses in Flatbush.

"The hospital is isolated," he said, "and besides, we are so careful in disinfecting and the treatment of patients that there is absolutely no reason for believing that the presence of smallpox in Flatbush is in any manner due to the hospital for contagious diseases.

"It is due rather to the carelessness of the local health officers.

Dr. Griffin said he had received no communication from Flatbush with regard to the hospital. It was reported in Brooklyn this morning, however, that Flatbush citizens are preparing a petition to the Brooklyn Health officers asking that the hospital be removed.

WAS SHE ABANDONED?

Plight of a Pretty French Immigrant in Williamsburg.

Mrs. D'Arisen, a young and pretty woman, called at the Lee Avenue Court, Williamsburg, in an almost demented condition this morning and said she believed her husband had committed suicide.

The woman said that four months ago, with her husband and child, she arrive in Canada from France. From Canada they went to Baltimore, and finally arrived in New York yesterday morning.

Her husband has of late been acting strangely, she said. He carried the remains of a large patrimony in a belt around his body.

At an early hour this morning the husband, wife and child came to Williamsburg intending to find work. D'Arisen left his family at the foot of the stairs leading to the Marcy avenue elevated station on Broadway.

For two hours they waited in the cold, and then, hungry and almost frozen, the woman and child were directed to the Lee Avenue Court.

She believed that her husband had either met with foul play or had killed himself. Of late he had threatened to do the latter several times.

The police were instructed to look for him.

ACCUSES A POLICEMAN.

A Brooklyn Girl's Story of Rough and Brutal Treatment.

Timothy J. Dyson, of 769 Lafayette avenue, Brooklyn, at Police Headquarters to-day complained of the conduct of a policeman, whose name he does not know, but who he thinks is attached to the Vernon avenue station.

Mr. Dyson's pretty domestic visited her sister last evening, and started to go home shortly before 10 o'clock. She had a bundle of clothing under her arm.

As she was passing through Throop avenue, between Myrtle and Vernon avenues, a policeman stopped her and demanded to know what she had in the bundle.

"It is none of your business," the girl replied.

The street is very dark, and the girl says the officer caught hold of her by the shoulder and dragged her to a street lamp, where he seized her bundle and tore it open. After looking over its contents he returned it and ordered the girl in a gruff voice to go home and not to show herself on the streets again after 10 o'clock.

The girl reached home at 10.10 o'clock, very much frightened, and is in a hysterical condition to-day resulting from the rough treatment she received.

CHANGES OF THE ADMIRALS.

Report that Walker Will Be Relieved by Benham in Navy Circles.

There is a report in navy circles that Acting Rear Admiral Walker will be relieved of the command of the North Atlantic Squadron by Rear Admiral Benham.

The latter, although assigned to the command of the South Atlantic Squadron, has been in Europe with the Newark for several months and will probably bring the Papal exhibit from Rome to this country on the flagship within a short time.

Admiral Walker, it is said, will assist in the trials of the six new warships. In that event, Rear Admiral George E. Belknap, who is President of the Naval Inspection Board, will probably be transferred to the Presidency of the Naval Examining Board.

MRS. FOSTER SATISFIED.

She Will Not Defend Her Husband's Divorce Suit.

Judge Clement, in the Brooklyn City Court, this morning, heard further testimony in the suit for absolute divorce brought by John J. Foster against Mary Foster.

The couple were married in 1889. Foster charged his wife with improper conduct with an unknown man at the Dwinelle House.

A witness swore to having served the summons and complaint on Mrs. Foster at the corner of Johnson and Fulton streets, Brooklyn, on the night of Oct. 15. Judge Clement was not satisfied with the proof of service and held the case open.

To-day Lena Lay, a sister of the defendant, came into court and swore that her sister had acknowledged receiving the summons and complaint and would not put in any defense to the suit.

Foster will get a decree.

Silas Ludlam's Will.

The will of the late Silas Ludlam, the oldest surveyor in Brooklyn, who died at the family residence, 176 Remsen street, Nov. 3, was filed in the Surrogate's office this morning. Mr. Ludlam left the house and furniture to his widow, with an additional legacy of $50,000. The balance of the estate is to be divided between his children and grandchildren. The estate is valued at $300,000.

Held for Arson.

Albert Ledermann, a barber, of De Kalb avenue, Brooklyn, was held without bail in the Court of Sessions, Brooklyn, this morning, on a charge of setting fire to the house of James McCourt Aug. 29 last.

HE FOUGHT LIKE A TIGER.

Desperate Struggle in a Police Court with a Madman.

Thomas C. King, of Williamsburg, Committed to an Asylum.

A madman created a scene in the Lee Avenue Police Court, Williamsburg, at noon today.

The man was Thomas C. King, fifty-six years of age, who for the past thirty years has been employed in the cracker bakery of Brinckerhoff & Co., in Grand street, New York.

Four months ago he lost his position and since then his mind has been affected. His children, who live at 541 Driggs avenue, Williamsburg, have done all in their power to make him comfortable, promising to care for him for the remainder of his life.

He made many efforts to obtain work, but his efforts were fertile. One month ago he showed symptoms of insanity and has been growing worse daily.

Last night he chased his children out of the house with a knife and threatened to kill them if they returned.

Arrangements were then made to take him to a private asylum at Woodhaven, and at noon to-day a carriage drove up to the door.

King got wind of what it was for and ran to the Bedford station-house for protection. He ran behind the desk occupied by Sergt. Black and began to scream.

Several policemen were called and a terrific struggle ensued, King fighting like a tiger. He was finally shackled and taken before Justice Goetting, in the Lee Avenue Police Court, where he almost broke away from his captors and sent men, women and children screaming into the street.

He was discharged by Justice Goetting and immediately taken to the asylum.

The family of Mr. King are prominent in church and social circles in Williamsburg.

KINGS AND THE SENATORSHIP.

Hugh McLaughlin and Others Mentioned if Murphy Quits the Race.

The friends of ex-Register Hugh McLaughlin, of Brooklyn, are trying to pick out a position that President-elect Cleveland will be asked to offer the Kings County leader. Mr. McLaughlin is not an office-seeker, and it is believed he would decline anything, from Secretary of State to Postmaster of Brooklyn, but in recognition of Kings County's tremendous Democratic majority there is a general feeling that Mr. Cleveland could do no better than place some position of National importance at the disposal of Mr. McLaughlin.

When asked to-day by an EVENING WORLD reporter if it were true that he might be induced to accept a Federal office, he simply answered that he would not be interviewed.

It is believed that Mr. McLaughlin will have something to say about the distribution of offices in the City of Brooklyn.

Besides Mr. McLaughlin, Brooklyn men who are spoken of in connection with the United States senatorship are Senator Patrick McCarren, ex-Mayor Chapin, Judges Bartlett and Cullen, and Congressman William J. Coombs. It is not believed that any of these will be candidates in case Edward Murphy, jr., will accept; but if he should refuse, Brooklyn will put in a claim and will fight for it.

MRS. YOUNG'S HUSBAND.

A Supposed Widow Startles Jamaica with a Divorce Suit.

JAMAICA, L. I., Nov. 12.—Residents of this town are in a state of mild excitement over the promised interesting developments in the suit for divorce brought by Mrs. Young, the pretty woman who has lived here for the last four years and supposed to be a widow. A husband has appeared in the person of a man who has, it is alleged, been living in Brooklyn with another woman named Hilda Amy, for two years past.

Matters were brought to a focus when election day the truant husband appeared in Jamaica and tried to serve papers on his wife.

Mrs. Young had him clapped in jail and at once began proceedings against him on the statutory grounds.

Phillip Young is an employe of Jacob Miller & Co., cigar box manufacturers, at 81 Wallabout street, Williamsburg. He told his story to an EVENING WORLD reporter to-day.

Five years ago, Young said, he was married in New York, but shortly afterwards the couple separated and the wife moved to Jamaica.

Young a year ago met Miss Huede Ame, of 477 Flushing avenue, and now Young admits that the circumstances are such that he is in honor bound to marry her.

To do this he was compelled to secure a divorce from his first wife, and hearing of her whereabouts in Jamaica went there to see her. He was immediately arrested; but his wife afterwards withdrew the charge of abandonment and he was discharged.

Mrs. Young told him that for the past two years she had believed him dead, and was about to marry again.

TALMAGE'S JUDGMENT CREDITOR

Justice Cullen Opens the Default in the Case of Painter Tong.

Ex-Judge Troy appeared for Talmage's Brooklyn Tabernacle in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, this morning, and asked Justice Cullen to open a default and set aside a judgment of $510 held by Alfred B. Tong for painting the interior of the building. Tong's original bill was $1,293.39. All but $510 has been paid.

Justice Cullen opened the default and ordered it on the next short case calendar. He refused to set aside the judgment.

THREW A POLICEMAN DOWN.

Corcoran Brothers Held for Assaulting Officer McGuinness.

George and Patrick Corcoran were held for examination on Thursday in the Butler Street Court, Brooklyn, this morning charged with assaulting Policeman Daniel McGuinness, of the Bergen street station.

McGuinness was taking George, who was intoxicated, to the station house this morning, when Patrick came along and struck him.

The brothers threw the policeman to the side walk and ran.

Would Celebrate the Victory.

To the Editor of THE EVENING WORLD:

As a reader of THE EVENING WORLD and an earnest and enthusiastic Democrat, I want to see you urge the Democratic organizations of both New York and this city to give a grand parade in honor of the victory over McKinley and the Force bill. The Republicans gave one four years ago in honor of their victory, and we should do the same. The Democrats can well afford to do so, now that they have swept the country and in justice to the people who helped them. There has been no parade in either city before election worthy of the name on account of the plea of expense. Surely they can afford to have one now. P. MCMANUS.

Brooklyn Anti-Snappers Disband.

The Central Committee of the Anti-Snappers, in Brooklyn, has been disbanded. In a valedictory address last night Chairman Edward M. Shepard congratulated his associates on the election of Mr. Cleveland, but advised them not to take too much glory to themselves.

Charges Against Policemen.

Police Commissioner Hayden, of Brooklyn, received charges to-day against Policeman George W. Colon for failing to pay a debt; Francis N. Parker, for failing to signal; Henry B. Depew, for being off post, and Joseph W. Jenkins for failing to signal.

AT THE BROOKLYN THEATRES.

"Capt. Lettarblair" at the Columbia Next Week.

Annie Pixley at the Park—Francis Wilson at the Amphion.

The sixth annual engagement of Mr. E. H. Sothern in Brooklyn will begin Monday evening at the Columbia Theatre, immediately following his prosperous season of three months at the Lyceum Theatre, New York. The play will be "Capt. Lettarblair," by Marguerite Merington. The cast and scenery will be the same as in New York. On Wednesday and Saturday the matinees will have the additional attraction of the one-act sketch "The Disreputable Mr. Raegan," by Richard Harding Davis, which had its first performance last week at the Lyceum Theatre. It will not be given at the evening performances.

Considerable interest is evinced in the engagement next week at the Park Theatre of the popular comedienne Annie Pixley. Besides being her first appearance in two years, Miss Pixley will present two new comedies, "The Stormy Petrel" and "Miss Hythe of Duluth." Both plays are said to afford her every opportunity for the display of her varied accomplishments as an actress and vocalist. Thursday night a theatre party composed of members and friends of Stella Lodge, No. 480, F. and A. M., will witness Miss Pixley in "Miss Hythe of Duluth."

Francis Wilson will appear at the Amphion Monday night in "The Lion-Tamer." Mr. Wilson will be supported by his own excellent comic opera company, which includes Charles Plunkett, W. H. Mack, Myron Calice, Jessie Henderson, Laura Moore, Clara Allen and others. "The Lion Tamer" is full of catchy music. It will be given a fine scenic setting.

"The Black Detective," a sensational comedy drama, will be the attraction at the Grand Opera-house next week. The play is by J. C. Cummings, and is full of thrilling and amusing incidents. The company is said to be a good one and includes several vaudeville entertainers. Wash T. Melville reappears as Jeff, a character which he is said to have made quite interesting.

The attraction at the Bedford Avenue Theatre next week will be "Shadows of a Great City," a melodrama which has enjoyed extraordinary success. It is a strong comedy drama, with thrilling situations, and gorgeous scenery. The story is a sensational picture of life in New York City, and many novel features are introduced. The appointments are elaborate and picturesque, and the setting of the scenes are said to reflect much credit.

"The Midnight Special," a new melodrama, will be seen at the Novelty Theatre Monday night. The play is said to be strongly acted and magnificently staged. The wheel-of-fortune scene, showing the interior of a operat-house, is said to be remarkably realistic.

"Mavourneen," a picturesque Irish play, will be produced next week at the Lee Avenue Academy of Music. It will be interpreted by a good company.

The hit at Hubert & Gerhardt's Casino next week will include the Ducrows, acrobats; Armand and Raymond, banjo soloists; Buckley and Hanlon, musical clowns; Bravo, juggler; Miss Minnie Schaub, vocalist, and others.

De Wolf Hopper and his merry band of funmakers and singers, presenting the comic opera "Wang," will be the attraction at Abbey's Giving attraction at the Academy of Music, commencing Monday evening, Nov. 21. The engagement will include six evening performances and matinees on Thanksgiving Day and Saturday. The original cast, which includes Della Fox, Anna O'Keefe, Marie Millard, the new soprano of the organization; Marion Singer, Samuel Reed, Edmund Stanley, Aubrey Klein and Canna Manvel, will be seen, and the same elaborate scenery and brilliant costumes used at the Broadway Theatre will be utilized. The sale of seats will begin at Chandler's next Thursday morning.

COST OF OFFICE-SEEKING.

Kings County Winners and Losers File Expense Bills.

Many candidates at the recent election filed statements of their campaign expenses with County Clerk Cottier in Brooklyn to-day.

Michael J. Dady, Republican candidate for Congress in the 1st District, spent $1,700. George L. Armstrong, candidate for Supervisor, twenty-seventh Ward, $16.75; H. Beadle, for Assembly, Eighth Assembly District, $17; Jacque S. Stryker, for Justice, Court of Sessions, $223; James Graham, for Assembly, Eighteenth District, $20; Michael Finnigan, for Assembly, Seventeenth District, $201; John E. Creaney, for Congress, Sixth District, $615.90; Charles B. Hobbs, $1,000 by himself and $1,492 by his friends; William S. Mulady, Tenth Assembly District, $415.

The largest bill filed to-day was that of William J. Coombs, democratic candidate in the Fourth Congressional District, who contributed $1,000 to the General Committee Fund and spent $222 on printing and coach hire.

Morris H. Smith, Prohibition candidate against Mr. Coombs, swore that he only spent $5—$2 to the National committee, $2 to the County Committee and $1 towards the expenses of a public meeting at the Academy of Music.

DANFORTH'S COURT-MARTIAL.

Assistant Engineer of the Philadelphia to Be Tried on Monday.

The court-martial upon Assistant Engineer George W. Danforth, of the Philadelphia, will be held on Monday in building No. 7 at the Navy Yard. The charge is "disobedience to orders."

Danforth was graduated from Annapolis in June, 1891. On Nov. 5 Lieut. Ackerman, officer of the deck, sent the Master-at-Arms to arrest a machinist.

Danforth, who was on duty, refused to let him go, claiming that no one but the Captain or Chief Engineer had a right to take a man from the engine-room.

Danforth was sent for. He refused to go and Capt. Barker ordered him under arrest.

The members of the court are: Capt. J. N. Miller, Commander C. D. Sigsbee, Chief Engineer G. W. Magee, Commander Walker, Lieuts. John Gorvin, A. P. Nazro and A. C. Dillingham, and Past Assistant Engineers F. H. Eldridge and C. W. Roe. Judge Advocate, Lieut. F. E. Murphy.

REV. TOM IS REAL ANGRY.

Dixon Says He Will Not Pay Another Cent.

Thinks He Has Paid the Full Penalty for Bird-Shooting.

One thing is certain, Rev. Thomas Dixon, jr. has made up his mind that he has paid all he is going to pay for his little shooting excursion to Staten Island. An EVENING WORLD reporter had his word for it to-day.

A despatch from Albany this morning states that the Game and Fish Commission has considered the case of the sporty divine and has directed the Chief Game Protector to push the matter and collect the full penalty which Mr. Dixon incurred when he shot the twenty-six robins, three thrush, one crow bird and one yellow-wren.

Mr. Dixon has already paid $155 for his day's sport, but should the full amount of the fine be collected he would have to go down into his pocket for a total of $905.

An EVENING WORLD reporter this morning found Mr. Dixon in his cosy study at 61 West Ninety-Fourth street. A cheerful cannel coal fire blazed in the grate, and the anti-Tammany preacher was mapping out his discourse for to-morrow.

When shown a copy of the Albany despatch Mr. Dixon's clean-cut countenance took on a stony expression.

"So they intend pushing it, do they? Well, if they can collect any more money from me I'm very much mistaken.

"I shall fight this thing even into the Supreme Court, and have instructed my counsel to that effect.

"I think the Constitution provides that after a man has been convicted of a crime or breach of the law and paid the penalty that is the end of it.

"I have read the law," and the reverend gentleman disappeared for a moment, returning with a volume of the Penal code with the page turned down at section 677.

"There, it is, you see. Now, let them get over that if they can," and Mr. Dixon read the section which provides that a conviction or acquittal on any charge bars a prosecution on the same act.

"The whole business is simply a piece of malicious persecution on the part of Tammany for the stand I have taken against it.

"I shall take a hand in the game very soon, and have instructed my lawyers to begin suit against two or three people who are connected with this affair.

"Any lawyer with common sense ought to know that nothing more can be made out of my case."

MRS. MUNRO GETS ALIMONY.

The Artist Says His Wife Insulted His Parents.

In the City Court, Brooklyn, this morning Judge Clement made an order requiring Albert A. Munro to pay his wife, Evelyn H. Munro, $60 counsel fee and $6 a week alimony, pending trial of the suit brought by Mrs. Munro to secure a limited divorce.

Munro is an artist employed by Tiffany & Co., of New York. The couple were married last February, and the plaintiff alleges that her husband has treated her in such a cruel manner that she cannot live with him.

Mrs. Munro is not yet of age. Her husband denies the allegations, and says that his wife is extravagant in her expenditures, and that she has insulted his parents.

TALK OF THE TURF.

Badge Holders Only Will Be Admitted to the Great Sale To-Night.

M'LAUGHLIN'S NEW ROLE.

Father Bill Daly Visits Guttenburg—Alfey's Talk to Bradley.

One of the most interesting turf sales of the year will be conducted to-night at Tattersalls. This is the absolute sale of every horse owned by F. A. Ehret, whose wonderful success on the turf has been little short of remarkable. The management of the sale, anticipating an enormous crowd, have decided to admit no one save those holding badges, and these have been issued only to horsemen of prominence, known as probable purchasers.

The star of the sale is Yorkville Belle, the beautiful three-year-old filly, whose grand performances have endeared her to the true lover of a grand race horse. Don Alonzo, Sir Francis and Fairy will also be eagerly sought for by horsemen. An offer of $250,000 cash was recently made for the entire string by Mr. Marcus Daly. This was refused and Mr. Ehret acted wisely, for while the lot will certainly bring more than the sum offered, the horses will go to different stables, and thus racing may be more interesting than if the Ehret cracks were added to Mr. Daly's already powerful stable.

* * *

Jockey Jimmy McLaughlin assumes a new role to-day. He handles the starter's flag at the new race track at Robey, Ind. McLaughlin was a great jockey, and has proven himself a trainer of no mean ability. If he goes about his new work in the same careful, painstaking way that characterized his riding and training he will be successful in handling the red flag. His friends will unite with the writer in wishing him success.

Starter Caldwell's work has been bad during the past week, but there was no sense or reason in greeting him with hisses and groans for his start in the mile race yesterday. When the flag fell the horses were well together. Janway, a quick beginner, shot out in the lead, while Harry Alonzo, notoriously slow, could not keep up. The result was that on the first turn the field was straggling and then the hisses commenced. The starter is not responsible for what happens after he drops his flag.

The Western Turf Congress new rules, published exclusively in the sporting extra of THE EVENING WORLD yesterday, furnished very interesting reading to turfmen in the East. The new rules are unquestionably good ones and look towards the betterment of the turf. They do not prohibit jockeys from betting, but wring bets to be an impossibility. They hoist, however, the jockey out of the hidden wagers to the horse he rides. Jockeys' valets are abolished, and a corps of attendants will be furnished.

If it is the idea of the Congress to prevent fraud they will have to adopt more stringent rules than at Guttenburg. As managed at the hilltop track, the innovation is a farce. Any official connected with the running of a race could be bribed, and it will be ruled off. The Executive Committee of the Hudson county Jockey Club and the Stewards of other racing associations, as well as the Board of Control, should digest this thoroughly. The adoption of such a code in the East would go far towards insuring fair and impartial decisions on important matters connected with racing.

* * *

Father Bill Daly was a visitor at Guttenburg yesterday, and report says that he got what the talent terms the "dinkey dink" in every race. He didn't cash a ticket throughout the day. He will round up his losses, however, by selling (?) Belle D. and a two-year-old by Peekskill, out of Lizzie D., to Mrs. Charles Post. Father Bill's new hotel in Hartford is running in full blast now, and he invited everybody to come and visit him.

* * *

Young Shields on Logan must have imagined he was riding a four-mile race yesterday, judging by the leisurely way he toddled along behind his field.

* * *

Innovation was deemed a sure thing in the fifth race yesterday and a great deal of money was bet on her in this city. Flynn got down to weight to ride, but the filly unfortunately picked up a nail in the paddock and went so lame that she had to be withdrawn.

* * *

Any one who thinks that racing is dying out in this country can convince himself to the contrary by reading the reports of races from Guttenburg, Gloucester, Nashville, Chicago, San Francisco, St. Louis and Robey.

* * *

The great Blitzen, at odds of 1 to 2, was taken into camp yesterday by Alley Inglehland's speedy-but faint-hearted Roey. After the race Bradley met Lakeman and said that he thought that his colt would win sure. "Why," said Alfey, with the air of an owner of a finisher, "I knew I'd beat you a block. I told Gene Leigh so, and wanted him to go and bet a thousand dollars on Roey." The truth is, that while Roey is faint-hearted, he outclasses many of the nags in the bill, and his class will carry him through, providing the distance is to his liking. Six and a half furlongs just suits him.

* * *

Merry Duke would have won the opening event yesterday to a certainty had Griffin moved up earlier. As it was Jenny Lind Lilith h. gained enough to pass win by a couple of inches.

* * *

E. J. Benson—Your bet on Chauncey for a place was with the understanding that Miss Belle was to be considered out in case she won. As she ran second you could not possibly win your place bet. These are poor ties to make, and a poorer rule governs them, giving constant cause for dissatisfaction. If a book bars a horse in the betting, that horse in all fairness should be considered void, no matter where he finishes.

Jockey George Taylor has been missing since the Washington meeting, and his friends are beginning to be seriously alarmed. Taylor lives in Brooklyn, but his folks have not heard from him since the Behning's track closed.

LASKER PLAYS IN BROOKLYN.

Begins an Eight Days' Engagement at the Chess Club.

He Will Meet Some Experts in the Kingly Art.

Lasker, the German champion, has begun an eight days' engagement at the Brooklyn Chess Club. His first opponent was A. E. Blackman, the opening game being played last night. Lasker won on the sixty-first move.

The Brooklyn Chess Club is one of the most important organizations of its kind in this country. It has not been in existence a full decade, but the work which it has done and the prominence of its members have stamped indelibly upon the present era of the "royal game" an influence that will not be eradicated by the ebb and flow of the tide of time.

Prior to the year 1880 Brooklyn had very little part in the great game of chess. It is time there were excellent chess players in the City of Churches, but their interests were all centred in New York.

It will be news to the majority of the citizens of Brooklyn to learn that there is a chess club in the city that even approaches importance.

But there is such an organization and it is in a flourishing condition. It is strong numerically and carries on its membership roll the names of men who are past masters in the "kingly art."

The Brooklyn Chess Club was formed July 29, 1880, in the parlor of the Hotel Delter, which used to stand on the present site of the Germania Building, in Fulton street.

The charter members were mostly members of the City Chess Club, of New York. Constantine Schubert called the meeting to order.

The charter members were J. Spencer Turner, President; C. H. Bruell, James Cox, B. A. Child, D. M. Cobb, Henry Chadwick, T. W. Deckner, W. F. Eno, W. W. Ellsworth, J. C. Escalado, D. J. Findlay, Charles A. Gilberg, W. H. E. Ingalls, Leon Javoroner, P. A. Marian, E. F. Ingalls, E. M. Munnor, Christopher Osweyan, Philip Richardson, A. Hincliffe, E. M. Teed, William Steinitz, Alfred Stelner, C. Schubert, Dr. Thomas Wilde and A. G. Willers. Many of these men are active members of the Club to-day.

For a time the meetings of the club were held at the Hotel Delter. It then adopted an intermediate policy and met in the houses of its members. A room was at last secured on Montague street, next to the Academy of Music.

From these quarters the Club took up more commodious ones in the old Post-office Building, on Washington street. When this building was declared vacant some time ago the Club settled down on the second floor of 201 Montague street. This is where it can be found to-day.

The Club exists primarily for the purpose of playing and advancing the interests of chess. Social features are thrown in to give spice and good fellowship to the game. The home of the Club is furnished with these ends in view.

The club-room extends the whole depth of the building. The floor is of polished hardwood. Some sixteen tables are arranged down the centre of the room. They are neat specimens of oak, mahogany and walnut, highly polished.

The tops of the tables are divided into the well-known checkered squares. The chess men are finely made. An incandescent electric light hangs over each table.

The paraphernalia is simple to carry on the hard-fought battles daily contested in this Club.

The office of the Club is in a small room off the front end of the main hall. The library occupies a portion of the office. The shelves are filled with tomes, which when opened carry a person into the intricate maze of chess problems.

The walls of the club-rooms are lined with pictures appropriate to the nature of the organization.

The feature of the club is its membership. Many of the most prominent chess players in the country form a part of the brilliant coterie of chess generals.

Among the more prominent members is A. E. Blackman, a member of the New York club. He is a veteran chess player and was a member of the original New York Chess Club, which afterwards was known as the Columbia Chess Club. He tied for a good place in the championship race at the last meeting of the New York State Association with Hodges and Hannah.

Eugene Delmar is one of the oldest players in the Club. He also belongs to the Manhattan Chess Club. He recently drew a game with the great German player, Lasker.

He played in the Sixth International Chess Congress in 1889.

D. M. Cobb is a good solid player. He won the handicap tournament of the New York State Association in 1890.

D. J. Denemare is a very skilful player.

C. A. Gilberg is President of the club. He is also President of the Western Chess Congress of New York. He is considered one of the greatest chess problemists in the world.

He is author of "Crumbs from the Chessboard" and the reporter of the Fifth International Chess Congress. He is a recognized umpire in problem tournaments and an acknowledged authority on the game.

A. H. Hodges is a fine player. He is President of the Staten Island Chess Club. He was the first man in this country to beat Lasker in a single game.

E. Kemeny is a member of the Club. He is a recognized champion and President of the New York State Association.

George Russell is one of the best players in the club. He is also champion of Rhode Island.

W. H. K. Pollock, although now in Baltimore, still holds his membership in the Club. He is as well known as any chess player in the United States.

F. M. Teed, while an excellent individual player is also a prodigious of marked ability. The officers of the club are: President, Charles A. Gilberg; Vice-Presidents, Dr. W. C. Otterson, formerly Health Commissioner of Brooklyn, and W. F. Eno; Treasurer, W. Duval; secretary, Dr. L. B. Brongiotto.

Among other prominent members may be mentioned S. B. Chittenden, W. S. Calvin, C. H. Fowler, Dr. C. N. Hoagland, Dr. A. Lewis, Robert T. Mills, A. Simis, jr.; W. W. Thayer and John M. Wallace.

The Club has always been well represented at every important meeting of chessmen since it was organized.

Every foreign chess expert visiting this country has been entertained by the Brooklyn Chess Club.

Besides the large number of special tournaments held by the Club every year, in which valuable prizes are offered, a scheme known as a continuous handicap tournament is always under way. By this method every member of the Club has an incentive to improve his playing.

The members are divided into five classes according to their skill. New members go into the first class and stay there until their play warrants a change.

Each member is provided with tickets. On losing a game he gives a ticket to his opponent. These are dropped into sealed boxes.

The owner of the box containing the largest number of tickets at the end of the season is the winner of the tournament. The four players having the highest percentages receive prizes.

The interest is always keen and the game is always in a healthy condition at the Brooklyn Chess Club.

CONDUCTORS GET STAGE FRIGHT.

New Uniforms and Strange Surroundings Generally Scare Them.

"Do you know," said a Western conductor to a Cincinnati Times-Star reporter recently, "that new ticket collectors and conductors are often afflicted with stage fright? Yes, it is so. I remember the first collections I made.

"The uniform was strange to me and I imagined everybody was looking at me and guying me. I went through the cars as in a dream, and it is a wonder I did not miss half the tickets. I felt like a bubble of air about to float into space, while the passengers appeared to be angels holding out their hands for me.

"Oh, yes, I soon got over it, and I don't care now, but really the first few trips are absolutely painful. How do I remember which passengers have given me their tickets? I have no way in particular, but just get used to it. While I may not recognize every one who has paid I can spot one from whom I have not received a ticket at once.

"Then, if I am in doubt, a sharp look usually does the business. Most people would like to have the collector skip them, but they are so impressed with the idea that we know they have not paid that a sharp look acts like a lodestone to draw out the cash.

"Of course it is possible for a hardened sinner to bluff a collector, but few try it. After we have once made a round there is no trouble, for at stations we stand where we have a full view of the train and see exactly what persons go in and out of every car."

IF you get Dr. Pierce's genuine medicines, you're sure of two things—that they're the cheapest and the best. They're the cheapest no matter what the price, for you pay only for the good you get. They're guaranteed. If they fail to benefit or cure, in any case, you have your money back. And you can be sure that they're the best, for they're the only remedies that are, or can be, sold so.

BUT you won't get the genuine medicines, except through druggists regularly authorized as agents, and always at those long-established prices:

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery (for the Liver, Blood and Lungs), $1.00. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription (for woman's weaknesses and ailments), $1.00. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, 25 cents.

Beware of everything purporting to be the genuine medicines, when offered at lower prices. They are generally dilutions, imitations or counterfeits.
