BURLINGTON WINS

The Gent in Black Defeats Blitzen for the $500 Purse on the Hill.

LALLAH IS A VERY GOOD THING.

Jewel H. Wins the First at Long Odds—Julia I. Has a Very Easy Time.

GUTTENBURG RACE TRACK, Nov. 23.—For the first time in several weeks the races at Guttenburg were run over a fast track. The cold snap worked wonders and effectively disposed of the mud by freezing it solid. Harrows were put to work early in the day and by noon the track was in first-class shape with a good hard bottom. This, no doubt, will cause some reversals of form, for players will go on and back the same horses that have performed well in heavy going for days past. In a few days, however, things will settle down and run smoothly.

The weather was the coldest of the season, but pleasant nevertheless. The attendance was fully up to the average.

The opening event was a dash of five furlongs. Radiant was the favorite, but was never in the hunt. Jewel H. a 10 to 1 chance led from start to finish and won easily, Kenwood was second choice and he finished in that position. Menthol just squeezed into third place.

The talent made Julia I., a 1 to 3 chance in the second race, and she justified their confidence by making all the running and winning easily by two lengths. Vespasian was second and Eugenie third.

The latter was knocked back to last place on the turn, otherwise she would have been second.

Lallah was brought up from Gloucester and played for a good thing. She was a favorite and won cleverly. She was the third winner to go out in front and lead all the way. Prince Fortunatus, another Gloucester horse, was second at long odds. The pair from South Jersey beat the Guttenburgs a block. Duke John being a poor third.

Blitzen, as usual, went off in front and opened up a big gap in the run to the far turn. There Burlington set sail for him, and by hard work Marlin managed to get up and land Burlington a winner by two lengths from Blitzen, who was the same distance in front of Jack Rose. Time—1.44¾.

To an EVENING WORLD reporter Mr. Gaynor said to-day that the report was absolutely without foundation.

"They can go ahead and slug as much as they like without danger of interference from me," said he.

FOOTBALL IN THE BOARD.

Brokers Line Up in the Exchange and Many Get Fined.

The younger members of the Stock Exchange had a football game in the Board Room to-day in advance of the great game to-morrow. After kicking a number of balls around to the discomfiture of the "bald heads" and conservative members, Philadelphia Andrews, as he is called, selected a ball that looked quite innocent and gave it a vigorous kick. This ball happened to be filled with water, and the result was that Andrews got a dose of the medicine himself, besides scattering it over the "whiskey" crowd.

There was some profanity, and many fines were imposed by the Chairman, but the brokers could not resist the temptation of having fun, and every now and then introduced something new for the delectation of visitors in the gallery.

PELL IS PARDONED.

Another of New York's Bank Wreckers Set Free.

Most Interesting Member of the Late Check-Kiting Firm.

Distinguished Names Adorn the Petition for His Release.

ALBANY, Nov. 23.—George H. Pell, who is under sentence for seven years and six months to Sing Sing for his connection with the wrecking of the Lenox Hill Bank, New York, had been pardoned by Gov. Flower.

When the Governor was making his inspection of Sing Sing Prison last June Pell's case was presented to him and he was asked to pardon him. He took the matter under consideration and began to investigate Pell's record.

Recorder Smyth, who sentenced Pell, and the District-Attorney who conducted the case against him, said that they thought he had been sufficiently punished.

The bankers and brokers who suffered by the wreck of the Lenox Hill Bank declared that they had not lost a cent by him, and united in a petition for his release.

Pell's record in prison had been excellent, and in view of these facts, coupled with the showing that Pell had not participated in any of the profits by the robbery, Gov. Flower decided to pardon him.

He delayed doing so, however, until Thanksgiving week, and the papers were put down to Warden Brown Monday.

Pell was employed in the prison tobacco shop, and was one of the last prisoners ever incarcerated at Sing Sing. His term would have expired May 23, 1895.

Among the numerous signers to the petition in favor of pardoning Pell were the following well-known New York business men and clergymen:

Judge Horace Russell, D. Parker Morgan, Cornelius Roosevelt Dalle, Brookfield Morgan, John W. Brown, J. C. V. Arnold, J. W. Alexander, Daniel G. Mellins, W. H. Huntington, H. R. Hyde, President Equitable Life Assurance Society, Eugene Kelly, Louis Fitzgerald, President Mercantile Trust Company; Charles M. Fry, President of the Bank of New York; Charles A. Dana, Col. John A. Cockrill, G. Morland, S. V. White, George H. Brower, E. L. Hedden, George M. Van Hoevenberg, Ballard Smith, C. P. Huntington, Samuel D. Babcock, President Chamber of Commerce; Chauncey M. Depew, Russell Sage, F. F. Dwight, President Central Trust Company; E. R. Lawrence, Grand Master Free Masons of the State, W. E. D. Stokes, Marcellus Hartley, E. K. Sturgis, President N. Y. Stock Exchange; Arthur B. Graves, President St. Nicholas Hotel; D. O. Mills, President of the Bank of the Manhattan County; George S. Coe, President American Exchange Bank; James H. Smith, W. W. Sherman, President Bank of Commerce; Gen. Daniel E. Sickles, John A. McCall, Comptroller Myers, Richard Croker, Bishop Potter, Joseph J. O'Donoghue.

George Hamilton Pell was by far the more interesting member of the gang of bank wreckers who ruined the Equitable Bank, and came near swamping the Lenox Hill and the Sixth National bank in the Winter of 1889-90 in a series of check kiting operations, startling to staid old business men.

James A. Simmons, old Gen. Peter J. Claassen, Charles L. Wallack, a son of the late Lester Wallack, and John Pell formed this firm.

Claassen furnished the very small capital required to obtain control of the Male Equitable State Bank. With the funds and securities they found in the Equitable's vaults, the credit which their position as bankers gave them and pure, unadulterated nerve the quartet bought the Lenox Hill and Sixth National Banks respectively, using the securities of the Equitable on the Lenox Hill to buy the latter, and on the Sixth National to buy that bank, and paying them after they got inside with funds out of the vaults.

Claassen and Simmons were convicted in the United States Court of embezzling national bank funds, and sent for six years to Buffalo Penitentiary.

Pell was indicted in the State courts and sent up for seven and a half years for stealing $31,000 from the Lenox Hill Bank.

Simmons was pardoned by President Harrison on Monday. Claassen is still in limbo. Wallack obtained immunity by turning State's evidence.

Pell has been in the tobacco shop at the State Prison, taking the place of Bobbie Alderman, dame last year. He has been an admirable convict, taking his punishment with clear grit. He has been the prison organist and has made himself useful. His splendid wife has lived in Sing Sing, to be near him, and has been in every way admirable in her behavior to him.

He entered Sing Sing Prison June 9, 1890. He is a tall, broad-shouldered, hand-some man of forty-five years, was once a clubman and always a "good fellow," as the world goes.

He ran for Congress on the Republican ticket in the Murray Hill District in 1880, and was defeated by William Bourke Cockran.

FRANK RICHARDS FOUND.

John Stetson's Manager Had Eloped with Actress Georgie Lake.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 23.—Under the name of "F. J. Field and wife, Pittsburg, Pa.," are registered at Newton's Hotel, Woodbury, a suburb of this city, Frank B. Richards, a man who has achieved notoriety as a theatrical manager, newspaper man and in humbler shores, and George Lake, the actress, known in private life as Mrs. Julien Mitchell, wife of the theatrical manager now rehearsing Frank Daniels's company in New York.

Richards leaves a wife and child in Boston, whom he abandoned two weeks ago. Both he and Miss Lake admit with a frankness that is, to say the least, nervy, that they have elected; that they deliberately planned to do so; that they are glad of it, and that they did so because they loved each other better than they did their lawful spouses.

The couple arrived at Newton's hotel Saturday, Nov. 12. Richards talks of going back to New York, and says he is not afraid to meet the husband whose wife he has stolen.

Richards is about thirty-five years old and a native of Connecticut. About the year ago he was night editor of the Boston Globe, from which paper he was discharged. He then became press agent of Lotta's Park Theatre, in Boston, leaving there about four months ago to become business manager of John Stetson's Globe Theatre.

He married his wife, who is a niece of Horace White, of this city, some seven years ago in New York, where he was employed for some time on Turf, Field and Farm. On being discharged from that paper he became a conductor on a Broadway surface car.

Five years ago last Spring he left his wife in this city and went to Boston, leaving her in want in New York for several months before she learned where he was.

Georgie Lake was formerly a familiar figure in Hoyt's plays. She is twenty-five years old and a petite, pretty blonde. She is sister of Pugilist Jim Corbett's wife. She has no children, although three years married.

WILL THERE BE A RECEIVER?

Reported Difficulties of the New York Steam Company.

Charles F. Winch, a broker, of 50 William street, and a stockholder in the New York Steam Company, is preparing a petition for the appointment of a receiver for the company.

He alleges that President Wallace C. Andrews, who was compelled to retire from the standard Gaslight Company a year ago, has taken assets of the Steam Company to discharge his personal indebtedness to the Gaslight Company, and that his alleged bad management has caused the Steam Company's stock to become practically worthless.

YALE AND PRINCETON.

All in Readiness for To-Morrow's Football Contest.

Twenty-five Thousand People Expected to Witness the Game.

Denials that Tickets for Seats Have Been Sold to Speculators.

In twenty-four hours more the fray will be on. Everybody knows there is but one fray on Thanksgiving Day, that on the football field between Yale and Princeton Varsities.

Yale and Princeton have played sixteen games of football together, of which Yale has won nine and Princeton six, the match, that of 1877, resulted in a tie.

The teams will be comfortably quartered this city to-night, Yale coming in from New Haven at 9 o'clock and going to the Fifth Avenue Hotel, and Princeton going to the Murray Hill. The athletes will be closely watched and as carefully cared for as so many pieces of costly Sevres ware. And in a way these Brobdingnagians of the turf are as fine as Sevres. They will stand a great deal rougher handling, though, and they are almost warranted not to break.

Reports from Princeton are that Capt. King will play quarter-back instead of at half-back, his old position. This is because King's ankle is still lame, and he knows that at the quarter he will not be used so roughly.

When play is called to-morrow at 2 o'clock Manhattan Field will be a sight worth a long journey to see. There will be probably 25,000 spectators gathered there, and every one will shout either for Yale or Princeton.

Just now there is a deal of shouting about the ticket question. The cry of "speculation" is raised, and the committee on the sale of tickets in the University Club has been excoriated for what has been called its mismanagement of the sale.

Secretary Matthewson, of the Press Committee, said this morning: "How are you to prevent students or anybody else from selling their tickets to speculators? I know the Committee has tried its very best to prevent speculators from getting hold of the tickets. I feel sure that they have succeeded admirably. I don't believe that speculators have got hold of very many tickets. Of course, we gave the colleges—Yale and Princeton—first call. Why not? They furnish the spectacle and they should be first considered."

C. W. Whitney, of the Press Committee, says that every effort possible has been made to keep the tickets out of the hands of speculators.

"I believe these efforts have been successful," said Mr. Whitney, "for the reason that I scoured the town yesterday to get some tickets for myself, and although I offered $10 each for the number I needed I could not obtain them.

"The college people have had first call, as they should. Heretofore college men, old graduates, to whom football is a passion, have in many instances been unable to see the game without paying $15 or $20 a ticket. We have simply tried this year to arrange things so that college people first may be sure of seeing the game of their alma mater, and then the public at large take its turn."

YALE MAY GET IT BACK.

Payment of $1,548 Inheritance Tax Made To-Day Under Protest.

W. W. Farnum, Treasurer of Yale University, paid to Comptroller Myers this morning a check for $1,543.11, being 5 per cent. of the amount of the bequest of Mrs. Miriam A. Osborn to Yale.

The money was paid under protest in accordance with the collateral inheritance tax law of June, 1890. This law exempts bequests to all educational and charitable institutions. The Comptroller claimed that this exemption applies to State corporations only. Mr. Farnum claims that Yale is exempt also.

The case is now before the Court of Appeals, and if Yale wins the suit the money paid to-day must be refunded.

Mrs. Osborn was the wife of the well-known broker of that name and the mother of Jewell Osborn, whose reputed marriage to Fay Templeton, the comic opera singer, created a sensation about two years ago.

FANCHER WRITING A STATEMENT

The examination of Assignee Charles H. Fancher, of the firm of C. Burkhalter & Co., in the discovery proceedings instituted at the instance of Babbitt & Co. and the Dunham Manufacturing Company, was not proceeded with to-day, owing to the fact that Mr. Fancher is engaged in preparing a statement which Justice Ingraham wishes to consider upon the application for the appointment of a receiver made yesterday.

The Court wants this statement as soon as possible, and for this reason granted the request of the assignee's counsel that the examination be postponed until Friday.

THE THANKSGIVING DAY PROGRAMME.

HE DID KNOW "JANE DOE."

A Blunder of a Parkhurst Agent Frees His Prisoner.

Edward P. Murphy, of 112 East Thirty-second street, one of the agents of Dr. Parkhurst's Society for the Prevention of Crime, was the complainant and chief witness in special Sessions to-day against Maude St. Clair, charged with keeping a disorderly house at 207 West Thirty-third street.

In the course of the trial Murphy confessed that he swore out the warrant Nov. 16 for "Jane Doe," whose other name he did not know, and went on in his affidavit to describe her as "a person about twenty-one years old, fair and below medium height." He in really knew her name, because he heard her name called and saw her respond for trial for the same offense Oct. 31, only a few hours before he paid the alleged visit to her house, when he obtained the evidence on which he based this second complaint.

"Why did you swear that this woman's name was unknown to you when you did know her name?" demanded Presiding Justice Smith severely.

Murphy did not answer, and the Court discharged the prisoner.

Miss St. Clair admitted selling beer to Murphy and paid $25 fine for doing it.

THEY MAULED A POLICEMAN.

Wagner No Match for the Single Alley Women.

Mrs. Lugia Wiera and her two daughters, Philomina and Gardella, who live in Single alley in the rear of 38 Cherry street, were held for examination in the Tombs Police Court this morning on a charge of assault preferred by Mrs. Kate Cullane, a neighbor.

Mrs. Wiera paid a visit to Mrs. Cullane last night and a combination fistic and hair pulling argument ensued, in which the two girls came to their mother's aid.

When Policeman Wagner, of the Fourth Precinct, said to be the biggest officer on the force, was called in the house was liberated with the screams of the combatants.

Stovewood was flying indiscriminately about, and the floor was strewn with broken glass and chunks of hair.

The officer's 265 pounds of flesh did not suffice to intimidate the women, nor did his threats effect an entrance.

When he tried to arrest the women they all turned on him, and he had his first experience with the inefficiency of the whistle as a substitute for the nightstick.

He was badly mauled, but finally succeeded in worrying the party into submission and he drove them ahead of him to the station-house.

"The whistle's not in it," said the portly officer, "especially when Single alley people get mixed up with a policeman."

KILLED ON THE TRACK.

A Man Dead, His Child Dying, His Wife Badly Hurt.

BELVIDERE, N. J., Nov. 23.—William Devoe, of Flatbrookville, N. J., took his wife and child out driving last evening, leaving six children home. While crossing the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad track, at Hope station, his horse became frightened by an approaching passenger train.

Mr. Devoe tried to check the animal, but it sprang out of the track directly in front of the oncoming train. The locomotive struck the carriage, killing Mr. Devoe instantly.

Mrs. Devoe and the child were badly injured. The horse was killed and the carriage knocked into splinters.

HAS THE BAY WINDOW.

Wrangle Before the Park Board Gives Mrs. Sherman a Victory.

A squabble over a bay window occupied the entire session of the Park Board to-day, some time ago the Board suspended a permit for a bay window applied for by the estate of Sophia Watts Sherman, at 838 Fifth avenue. L. P. S. Wormser, the bankers, who own the adjoining property, objected.

A FACER FROM VON CAPRIVI.

He Challenge's Bismarck's "Doctored" Dispatch Statement.

BERLIN, Nov. 23.—A commotion was caused in the Reichstag to-day by chancellor Capriv, who challenged the late statement of Prince Bismarck, in which the latter avowed that in 1870 he "doctored" a despatch from Ems with a view to precipitating the Franco-Prussian War.

Capriv read the text of the famous despatch sent by Privy Councillor Abeken to the Prussian Foreign Office from Ems on July 13, 1870, two days prior to the declaration of the Franco-Prussian war.

The despatch reads:

The King writes me as follows: "Benedetti (the French Ambassador to Germany) intercepted me on my promenade and finally asked me in a very pressing manner to authorize him to telegraph to his Government at once that I bound myself for all time never to again accord my sanction in the event of Prince Leopold of Hohenzollern resuming to his candidature to the throne of Spain.

"I at length declined somewhat sternly to listen to him further, as one might not and could not enter a new famale into engagements of this kind. Naturally I told him I had as yet received nothing. As he got news earlier by way of Paris and Madrid than I did he must see that my Government was again left out."

The King has since received a letter from Prince Leopold. The King, in view of the demand referred to, resolved, upon the advice of Count von Eulenburg and myself, not to see Benedetti again, but to merely inform him through his adjutant that the King had received from Prince Leopold a letter confirming the news Benedetti already had from Paris, and the King had nothing more to say to the Ambassador.

The King leaves Your Excellency to decide whether Benedetti's new demand and its rejection should not be immediately communicated to the Ambassador and the press.

Capriv said he presented this, the real despatch of the time referred to, to prove that His Majesty, the late King and Emperor William, was not the old weakling that Prince Bismarck has been lately suggesting, and also prove that Germany in 1870 did its utmost in the direction of conciliation.

WHERE CLEVELAND WILL HUNT.

Broadwater Island, a Private Preserve, Believed to Be the Place.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 23.—While President-elect Cleveland's post-office address at present is Exmore, Va., a small station on the Cape Charles Peninsula, reached by the Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad, his real destination is believed to be Broadwater Island.

This Island, known upon the coast survey and locally as Hog Island, lies twenty miles north of Cape Charles, between Great Machipongo Inlet on the south and Little Machipongo on the north.

Broadwater Island is maintained as a private hunting and fishing preserve by a club of fifty leading Philadelphians. It is reached by a private steam yacht belonging to the Broadwater Club, running down Pocomoke Creek from Exmore Landing, which is two miles distant from the little village of the same name.

The island is eight miles long, with a magnificent beach, on which the Government has established a lighthouse and life-saving station. In the recesses of a pine forest, which covers part of the island, a club-house and several cottages have been erected. Game is abundant and the President-elect will have ample opportunity to indulge his fondness for sport.

The Commercial Club of Newport, set itself against the fight on the ground that it was a violation of the law of the State. It employed Private Officer Phillips to arrest the principals.

The Athletic Club had employed Chief of Police Conlingham to assist in keeping order, and when Phillips appeared there was an immediate clash of authority and a hand-to-hand fight ensued, which ended in Phillips being ejected.

The matter was reported by the commercial club to Mayor Berry, who suspended the Chief of Police pending an investigation.

VAN DYKE MAY HAVE TROUBLE.

Charged with Acting as an Attorney, Although Not One.

A motion was argued before Justice Truax in Supreme Court, Chambers, to-day to confirm the report of John Delahunty, as referee, to pass upon the claim of Mrs. Rosa Vincent against Herbert Van Dyke for moneys collected by him and also his claim for services rendered to her as an attorney.

It was claimed in support of the motion that Mr. Van Dyke had committed a misdemeanor in acting as an attorney, when in fact he had never been admitted to the bar, and that he should not be allowed to escape the responsibility which he has incurred by wrongfully acting and practising as an attorney.

Decision was reserved.
