MEDICAL.

YOU KNOW

The best evidence of a physician's success is the testimony of his patients. The increasing demands for my professional services prove that I have dealt honestly and fairly with those who have consulted me. I never use a patient's name without permission, nor do I ever print a hundred certificates from those whom I have cured after they had been pronounced incurable. A thorough medical education, with many years hospital experience and familiarity with therapeutic agents, a close observance of temperaments in prescribing, and strict attention to hygienic management, insure success, if cure is possible, and I always give the patient my opinion.

Cure all Diseases

Caused by Derangement of the Liver and Bowels. The symptoms of Liver complaint are a bitter or bad taste in the mouth; pain in the back, sides or joints, often mistaken for rheumatism; sour stomach; loss of appetite; bowels alternately costive and lax; headache; loss of memory, with a painful sensation of having failed to do something which ought to have been done; debility; low spirits; a thick yellow appearance of the skin and eyes; a dry cough often mistaken for consumption.

Sometimes many of these symptoms attend the disease, at others very few; but the Liver, the largest organ in the body, is generally the seat of the disease, and if not regulated in time, great suffering, wretchedness and Death will ensue.

I can recommend as an efficacious remedy for disease of the Liver, Heartburn and Dyspepsia, Simmons' Liver Regulator. LEWIS G. WUNDER.

"We have tested its virtues, personally and know that for Dyspepsia, Biliousness, and Throbbing Headache, it is the best medicine the world ever saw. We have tried forty other remedies before Simmons' Liver Regulator, but none of them gave us more than temporary relief, but the Regulator not only relieved, but cured us."—ED. The Intelligencer.

THE REVISED TESTAMENT.

Opinions of Henry Ward Beecher and Rev. David Swing.

Chicago Tribune.

The Rev. Henry Ward Beecher reached the city last evening from Valspariso, Ind., where he lectured Saturday night, and the reporter found him at the Grand Pacific.

"What do you think of the revision?" said the reporter.

"I haven't examined it."

"Was it necessary to revise the Bible?"

"There was a necessity for it. I have been indignant at the American Bible Society for backing off the track. Years ago they went to the great expense and labor of correcting simply the typographical errors which had crept into the text—they amounted to thousands and thousands—and published an edition. And Bishop Coxe got up on his hind legs, and some of the Presbyterians asserted that the Bible Society were attacking the church, and so on, and the Society backed down, let the edition go out of the market and went back to the old notoriously erroneous version. It was an outrage. It would not have been for men that didn't believe in the inspiration of the Scriptures; but for men who did believe—without that to stand on we have no orthodoxy—to admit that in the version which is given to the common people the mind and the will of the Lord as expressed in the text is perverted is an outrage. The text is obscure, and they know it. It is a misstatement of them, and they know it, no matter how small the particulars are. It was not only inconsistent, but it was an outrage for men that really believed in the divine inspiration of the Scriptures, as they did that have any church or Bible, Now then comes a sober, well-regulated, thoroughly-organized band of men in England, representing all Christian denominations, and in America representing the same—as able a body of men as could have been secured in any period of the world's history—and they have given ten years and a half to the study of this question, not for the sake of making a new version, but for the sake of a revision of the old version; and it is not possible, of course, that their work can be perfect, but that it is a great advance on the former versions I have no reason whatever to doubt. They have thrown out of the text that which scholars without exception have for a long time admitted was foisted into it, and did not belong to it."

"That will take away some of Ingersoll's ammunition?"

"Yes, a good deal of it."

"How do you regard the version as a literary production?"

"I haven't read it."

"Do you think it will be adopted by the Congregational churches?"

"Yes; generally, but some will hold out. But some would hang back if the trump of the resurrection sounded. I think, generally speaking, the churches will very soon see their way to adopt it."

"Of all the Protestant denominations?"

"I think so."

"Will you adopt it?"

"That will depend upon the action of my church. If the congregation want it I will."

"Will not general action on the part of other denominations be necessary?"

"In the highly organized ones; but I think the Congregational and Presbyterian churches will take it up. Presbyteries and Synods will doubtless give utterance on the subject. Many Presbyterian churches, however, will do as they see fit. They are not bound to ask the Synod or Presbytery what hymn-book they shall use."

"And how about the Episcopalian churches?"

"My impression is that they will accept it. The revision comes from headquarters—from the province of the Archbishop of Canterbury—and some of those engaged in the work are the most eminent Episcopalian scholars there and here. It has been developed under Episcopalian auspices."

"What do you think of the 'Faith, hope and love?'"

"It is eminently proper. I have used that from twenty-five years in reading and in speaking. When you use 'Charity' you put a veil on the real thought; you cannot see the face of it. Charity originally meant a generous disposition, but the meaning has changed so that it has become a specific line of action. Love comes nearer the meaning,—would be absolute if it did not include passion as well as beneficence."

"Well, how do you regard the substitution of 'Hades' for 'hell?'"

"It ought to have been substituted. I don't think our modern idea of hell existed in those days."

"Where is 'Hades'?"

"I hope I shall never find out. It is one point of geography about which I am more than willing to be ignorant."

"Does 'Hades' destroy locality?"

"I hope so. I believe in a state rather than a place."

PROF. SWING'S OPINIONS.

"Professor," asked the the reporter, "what is your opinion of the change in the celebrated passage in the thirteenth chapter of the First Corinthians; that is, the word 'love' for 'charity'?"

"I think it perfectly proper and right. 'Charity' means the application of love to the lower classes,—to beggars, for instance. The Greek word from which it was translated 'charity, represents the universal love of man for his neighbor. That is the reason I approve of the change. I think it gives it a broader and more significant meaning, less obscure than we get from the word 'charity.' It may not be as rhythmical, but I think the people will soon get used to it."

"There have been objections made to the substitution of 'hades' for 'hell.' What is your opinion of that change?"

"Well, that is unimportant. I like the change, however, as 'hades' means death or the grave—a meaning more appropriate than we get from the word 'hell.'"

"Do you think this revised edition will be accepted by the Church, Professor?"

"Yes, I think it will, gradually. Of course, some will object to its acceptation, but the opposition will be comparatively small."

"What is your opinion regarding the changes as a whole?"

"I think the work defective in points, but very acceptable on the whole. It was translated long ago, and was subject to haste and errors. The information is not so abundant or clear as in the new version. The works of Shakespeare and Dante have been revised, and corrected, and greatly improved, bringing out points that had been obscure and meaningless, and I do not see why a revision by competent men would not do the same thing for the Bible."

"Do you think the revision of the Old Testament will be as acceptable as this work?"

"I think it will be more so, as I am sure the greatest advantages will be found in the Old Testament when the meaning of the Psalms is made clear. The significance of some of the Psalms is often sadly mistaken, and especially is this the case in the nineteenth, which is invariably misunderstood."

"What changes do you think should be made in the Old Testament, Professor?"

"Well, in the first place, I think it should be condensed. A great deal of indelicate and vulgar matter should be thrown out. Many portions of it are inapplicable, as, for instance, the Mosaic Laws have no more to do with Christianity than have the Blue Laws of Connecticut."

"What do you think will be the results of the revision of the Bible?"

"I do not think that any important results are to be expected. The King James Bible was compiled so long ago from the manuscripts of the ancients that I think this revision should have been undertaken before. I do not mean to say that the people have suffered on account of errors in the Bible, but we need the best of everything, including a Bible. The King James Bible is too large and bulky. What the people need is a popular Bible—one that is portable, is printed in large, clear type, and, to make this possible, a large portion of the Old Testament should be omitted from the editions of the future."

Railroad Building.

The extraordinary rate at which railroads are just now being built in the United States alarms many persons of conservative ideas, and we are told that a collapse, like that of 1873, will be the ending to it. Railroad building is, indeed, the engrossing work of the day. There have been 6,113 miles constructed in the last twelve months, from April 1, 1880, to April 1, 1881, and 14,277 projected in the same time, making a total of 2,490 miles built and projected; and it is estimated that in the last eighteen months $200,000,000 have been expended in the work.

It may be that we are building too many roads in the far West for the sparse population and the limited products of these regions to warrant at present. But the remark will not apply to Missouri, Arkansas, Texas, Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota and Dakota, for population is pouring into these states and territories by the thousands, creating a demand for the roads that are being built; and the experience of the last six years shows how quickly the country repairs the error of excessive railroad building, by growing up to the roads. It is to be remembered, too, that the country is gorged with money, and fast growing out of debt; that we are exporting $250,000,000 more of products than we are importing; that we are reducing our national debt at the rate of $100,000,000 a year, with surplus revenue; that we no longer need to borrow money from Europe to build railroads, nor do we need to issue state and county bonds by the million, for that purpose; the new roads are built almost entirely with home capital. Another important fact is that we are building roads at a smaller cost than ever before. The iron rails that in 1872 cost $85 a ton now cost only $46 a ton and the steel rails which then cost $112 may now be had for $60. The 6,113 miles of road constructed in the last twelve months have not cost the country much more than one-half what the same milesage cost eight years ago. It would not be surprising if we should somewhat overdo the work; we are addicted to the habit of overdoing nearly every business we go into. But the healthy condition of our agriculture and mechanical industries, the abundance of money in the country, our increasing capacity for production and consumption, and the enormous immigration we are receiving, make a recurrence of the collapse of 1873 impossible at present.
