Or the Liquor Habit Positively Cured by Administering Dr. Haines' Golden Specific.

It can be given in a cup of coffee or tea without the knowledge of the person taking it; it is absolutely harmless and will effect a permanent and speedy cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an habitual drunkard. Thousands of inebriates have been made temperate men who have taken Golden Specific in their coffee without their knowledge and today believe they quit drinking of their own free will. IT NEVER FAILS. No one can ever become a drunkard who takes the Specific, it becomes an utter impossibility for the liquor habit to exist.

THEN AND NOW.

MAHONE AT THE "BLOODY CRATER."

A few years ago, at a meeting to celebrate the triumph of Mahone at the Bloody Crater, at Petersburg, Capitalo James Barron Hope delivered an epic, which was printed and celebrated all over the state of Virginia. Mahone was then a Democrat and of course was a great man in the eyes of the Bourbons. Here are the five concluding stanzas of the poem:

Immortal Lee, who triumphed o'er despair,
Greater than all the heroes I have hailed,
Whose life has made a Westminster worthier
His name is spoken—he, so wise and famed,
Gave Jackson's duties unto him whose blade
Was lightning to your storms, Mahone's Brigade.

Ere Jackson fell Mahone shone day by day,
A burnished lance amid that crop of spears—
None rose above him in that grand array;
And Lee, who stood last of the Cavaliers
Knew he had found, of war's stupendous trade,
A master at you head—Mahone's Brigade.

O, countrymen, I see the coming days
When he, above all blindnesses and lots,
Shall stand an epic form, lit by the rays
Of fame's eternal sun that never sets.
The first great chapter of his life is made
And spoken in two words—Mahone's Brigade.

O, countrymen, I see historic brass
Leap from the furnace in a blazing tide;
I see it through strange transformations pass
Into a foam of energy and pride;
Beneath our Capitol's majestic shade
In bronze I see Mahone—Mahone's Brigade.

O, countrymen, when dust has gone to dust
Still shall he live in story and rhyme.
Then history's self shall multiply his bust
And he defy the silent conqueror, Time.
My song is sung, my prophecy is made—
The state will make it good—Mahone's Brigade.

When Mahone became a Republican, instead of being the "Hero of the Crater" and the man who would have succeeded Lee in command of the Army of Northern Virginia, he became "the Virginia Outcast," and the abuse that is now heaped upon him because he saw fit to accept the results of the war, and go to work for the development of Virginia's resources, is in strange contrast to the idolatry he was once upon him then, and serves to show to what extremes Southern Democrats go in their hatred of Republicanism, and of a man who has the courage of his convictions.

Bill Nye's Souvenir of Pocahontas.

Bill Nye claims to have in his possession a letter written by Pocahontas to her father, the great chief Powhattan. It runs as follows:

WEBOWOCOMOCO, Sunday, 1607.

DEAR PAW:—You ask me to come to you before another moon. I will try to do so. When Powhattan speaks his daughter tumbles to the racket.

You say that I am too soft on the pale faced Smith. I hope not. He is a great man and bears a great name. I see that in the future my people must yield to the white man.

Our people are now pretty plenty and the pale face seldom, but the day will come when the red men will be scattered like the leaves of the forest and the Smith family will run the entire ranch.

Our medicine man, the one we hire by the month and found, tells me that after a time the tribe of Powhattan will disappear from the face of the earth, while the Smiths will extend their business all over the country, till you can't throw a yellow dog without hitting one of them.

My policy, therefore, is to become solid with the majority. A Smith may some day be chief cook and bottle holder of this country. We may want to get some measures through the Council. See?

And speaking of measures, you tell me you have stopped drinking in a measure. I am glad of it, if it is that peck measure you used to imbibe your fire water from. It is too much of a jag for an old man like you.

As to loving the gander-shanked paleface, J. Smith, I hope you will give yourself no unnecessary loss of sleep nor miss your daily ration of baked dog on that account. He is as homely as a cowshed struck with a club and has two wives and three pairs of twins in Europe.

Fear not, noble dad. Your little Pocahontas has the necessary instinct to paddle her own canoe, and don't you forget it.

Remember me to Brindle Dog and his squaw, the Sore-Eyed Sage Hen, and send me a new dolman and two plugs of tobacco. Ta, ta,

POCAHONTAS.

Anecdote of Dan Rice.

New York Star.

While passing through the Astor House rotunda yesterday I saw the sometime humorous circus clown, Dan Rice. In dress and personal appearance he looked like "old Dan" of bygone days, with the exception of a few silver threads among his hair and beard, which gave him a more venerable appearance. When I first saw him I was forcibly reminded of an incident that happened while Dan was engaged as a temperance lecturer. After a successful lecturing tour of six weeks, in which time Dan had succeeded in accomplishing a great good for the temperance cause, he landed in St. Joseph, Mo. While there he met old Eph Horn, the witty minstrel whom he had not seen in years. Both being delighted at meeting, they retired to Dan's room, where, over numerous bottles of the "rosy," they related reminiscences of show life. When Dan started for the hall where he was billed to lecture, he found that he had imbibed too much. Dan's great weakness when under the mellowing influence of John Barley-corn is to talk garrulously upon every subject, from theology down to civil service reform. Upon facing his audience, Dan, feeling that he ought to give them the best at his command, exclaimed:

"Gentlemen, I'm here to enlighten yo', so name your subject."

AGRICULTURAL NOTES.

Matters of Interest for the Intelligencer's Farmer Readers.

Farmers' Organizations.

National Stockman.

We are glad to see so many of our readers manifesting a disposition to thoroughly discuss the subject of organization among farmers. Now if they will only follow this up with positive action the beneficial results can probably not be measured. If there is any one thing which the farmers of this country need above anything else it is to learn to act with and for each other, and to make their influence felt in a way that will secure for agriculture the respect which it should command. It matters not to us what particular form of society may prove to the most popular or what it may be named. The fact of organization is the most important thing in view now, and the lesser details must come as after considerations. The winter season is a good time to bring movements of this kind to a head. Whatever else is done, the local farmers' gathering should and must figure in any agricultural organization which is to have permanent national importance and be of lasting benefit to those in whose interest it is formed. In places where clubs now exist this matter should be thoroughly discussed. Where there are no clubs they should be promptly organized, and among the leading subjects canvassed in their meetings should be the social, commercial and political relations of farmers to each other. Perhaps the easiest and best way of all is to strengthen organizations already in existence. Don't let this matter drop now without positive results.

In all Well Regulated Stables is Found;

Exchange.

A place for everything and everything in its place.

A good, strong broom for sweeping the floor and walls every day.

A low, strong tub for bathing the horses' feet and washing off their legs.

At least one good big box-stall for use when a horse is sick, or when a mare is heavy in foal.

A box that closes tight, in which to keep the harness. The saving of harness in a short time will more than pay for the expense of such a box or "wardrobe."

A good floor that is slightly higher in front than at the back of the stall. If the floor is cement or boards and water proof, the slant wants to be enough to drain well, with a gutter in the rear to carry off the water.

A strong box with a tight-fitting lid, in which to keep curry-combs, brushes, rags, etc., for use in grooming.

A good, strong partition between the stalls, high enough and long enough to prevent the horses from injuring each other.

Farm Notes.

Red raspberries and blackberries may be allowed to grow from two to two and a half feet tall; should then be nipped back.

Let your horse stand loose, if possible, without being tied up to the manger. Pain and weariness from a confined position induce bad habits.

Half of the wear to tools on some farms comes from unnecessary exposure to the sun, and win, and rain. A convenient shelter is far cheaper and looks less shiftless.

Pick the tomatoes as fast as they ripen—this will hasten the maturity and ripening of the crop. Pick off all imperfect and spotted specimens as you come across them.

Winter calves are just as good and as easily raised as spring calves; and your fall and winter calving cows will average more milk per year than those calving in the spring.

Do not allow the weeds to go to seed if you can help it. Of some plants the seed from a single stalk of this year's growth will be sufficient to produce hundreds of plants another season.

If you notice a young bird in any brood that is especially nice, do not kill it, keep it a while longer to see what kind of a fowl it will make. The very best is none too good to keep for breeding.

When a cow runs in a good pasture, free from weeds, and has a ration of grain or is fed on hay, ground oats and bran, in a clean stable, what is there in her milk that can be an odor, unclean, unhealthy or offensive?

S. B. Parsons, who is authority on the rose, writes to the American Agriculturist that for hardy varieties he likes best General Jaqueminot, La France, Caroline de Sansal, Baronne Prevost, Charles Defebre and Harrison Yellow.

Lice multiply quickly, and constant care is required to keep poultry clear of them during warm weather. Good pyrethrum or buhach powder thoroughly dusted into their feathers is a preventive for the several sorts of lice on chickens.

According to the American Cultivator many instances have occurred where cattle which have eaten largely of wilted wild cherry leaves have exhibited symptoms of poisoning and died in a short time, while if the leaves are eaten green they seldom produce injurious effect.

Undrained lands suffer from hot and dry weather, the reason for it being, according to authority on drainage, that, although there may be water within a few inches of the surface, the ground becomes so compact and baked that it is not sufficiently porous to draw up moisture.

Mr. G. T. Powell, an extensive fruit grower, is reported in Country Gentleman as practising "thinning out" with great determination and perseverance, and nowhere are its good effects better shown than in the vineyard. Mr. Powell believes that with some varieties he has gained three weeks' time by thinning and this may often be a question of crop or no crop.

Secretary Rusk's First Report.

New York Tribune.

A full summary of the first report of the Department of Agriculture is furnished in the Washington dispatches. It gives evidence of careful study by Secretary Rusk of the needs of the country's agricultural interest. How extensive and important this great industry is is shown by the statement that during the nine months ending October 30 nearly 40,000 letters were received and answered by the department. Some of Mr. Rusk's suggestions—those in regard to supervision of the forests and a meat inspection law, for instance—will attract particular attention.

Proverbial Philosophy.

From a periodical called The Good Housekeeping we clip the following chunks of proverbial philosophy—additions to Solomon and improvements upon Tupper.

Vinegar helps digestion, but a sour temper ruins it.

Wait till after dinner before you fall out with the cook.

Before picking a quarrel with the gas man, buy a gallon of kerosene.

A soft yet persistent answer turneth away a borrowing neighbor.

You cannot measure a man's daily walk by the thickness of his carpet.

Many a woman is expert with crayons who is not skillful in drawing tea.

There may be too much of a good thing—of salt in the soup, for instance.

It is vain for you to rise up early if the kitchen chimney will not draw.

Let me make the bread of a nation and I care not who makes its pies.

If cleanliness is next to godliness, then neatness is side by side with piety.

When a man disagrees with you it is often best to leave him alone. The same is true of rich food.

It is better to lock the stable door after the horse is stolen than not to lock it at all. It may have the cow.

A Cure of Catarrh

in the head, as well as of all bronchial, throat and lung diseases, if taken in time, is effected by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, or money paid for it will be promptly returned.

A more pleasant physic
You never will find
Than Pierce's small "Pellets,"
The Purgative kind.

THE usual treatment of catarrh is very unsatisfactory, as thousands of despairing patients can testify. A trustworthy medical writer says: "Proper local treatment is positively necessary to success, but most of the remedies in general use by physicians afford but temporary benefit. A cure cannot be expected from snuffs, powders, douches and washes." Ely's Cream Balm is a remedy which combines the important requisites of quick action, specific curative power with perfect safety and pleasantness to the patient. MWFAW

Wife (tearful)—"You've broken the promise you made me!" Husband (kissing her)—"Never mind, my dear, don't cry; I'll make you another."

IT was once supposed that scrofula could not be eradicated from the system; but the marvelous results produced by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla disprove this theory. The reason is, this medicine is the most powerful blood-purifier ever discovered. DAW

His Mother Knew What Was Best.

I know from practical use of the beneficial effects of Red Clover, when but eleven years of age I had Scrofulus swellings, carrying both arms in one position for weeks at a time. Doctors said on examination that I might live a year, possibly two at the longest, but no longer. My mother took charge of me, and in her old-fashioned way of doctoring and using Red Clover, I am to-day a well and hearty man. Since your extract of Red Clover came on the market I have used it with good results. My wife is now using it for Dropsy and General Debility and it is doing her more good than anything she has yet found. I think that for a Tonic and Blood Medicine there is nothing so good as your Extract of Red Clover. You are free to use this, as I do not hesitate to recommend it to any who are afflicted. Yours truly,

The Features of the Money and Stock Markets.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Money on call easy, ranging from 5 to 6 per cent, last loan 6 per cent, closed offered at 4 per cent. Prime mercantile paper 5½@8 per cent. Sterling Exchange quiet and weak at $4 80½@4 84¾. Sales 362,560 shares.

The stock market showed an active business in the general list to-day, with the trusts comparatively quiet. Among the active stocks Louisville & Nashville was most prominent for activity and strength, though they both yielded readily at times and failed to score marked advance for that reason. The market opened with great activity. First prices were from ⅛ to ½ per cent higher, which was supplemented by further fractional advances in the first hour. Cotton Oil was specially weak at this time, but failed to have any effect beyond an advance toward noon. Sugar and Coal stocks joined the decline, but the selling was seemingly over by noon, when the market became dull with slow but steady advancing tendency, which became most pronounced toward the close. The market closed fairly active at close to the best prices. Sugar is down 25 and Tennessee Coal 1⅜ per cent.

Railroad bonds moderately active; sales $4,120,000.

Government and State bonds dull and steady.
