Something Wrong Somewhere

—a dozen symptoms tell you so. Disordered stomach, unstrung nerves and loss of appetite; a feeling of indifference for the world and everybody in it, including yourself; eruptions that try to force the "badness" out through the skin all tell their tale.

It's Your Blood

that's raising all this disturbance. You'd turn away in disgust from a polluted stream of water, but you'll let your blood—the food of your vital organs—remain in just this condition. Don't do it; take

FOR UNIFORM LAWS.

The Annual Address of President James C. Carter, of

THE NATIONAL BAR ASSOCIATION.

The Duty of Legislators in Framing New Measures—The Diversity of the Laws of the United States and the Uniformity of our Unwritten Law. The Co-operation of the World Necessary for the Success of This Work.

DETROIT, MICH., August 27.—An intellectual looking assembly of 300 leading jurists and members of the bar were present in Y. M. C. A. hall at 10:30 o'clock this morning, when President James C. Carter, of New York, called to order the eighteenth annual convention of the American Bar Association. After thanking the Detroit representatives of the profession for the cordial receptions tendered the visitors, the president read a short list of the most noted jurists present, who were invited to seats upon the platform.

Mr. James C. Carter, president of the association, delivered his annual address. He said in substance, after stating the objects of the association, that in pursuance of the especial duty laid upon the president of the association to communicate the most noteworthy changes in the state and congressional statutes during the year, he had made a general survey of the work of nearly forty legislatures. Mr. Carter said that the association, in promoting uniformity of legislation, wishes that object effected by a general acceptance of the best forms of legislation, and not by bringing about merely a general conformity.

EXECUTION OF PRESENT LAWS.

"But are the laws executed? Do they represent resolutions of a wise and self-controlled man which are actually carried out, or those abortive resolves that serve only to indicate a man conscious of error but incapable of reformation? I am not unaware of the difference in point of excellence between public and private work. It is not likely that the selection of legislators can ever be made with uniform wisdom; but a great advance will be made when those that aspire to be legislators begin to seek the knowledge the office requires.

"It seems incomprehensible that a people could deliberately adopt a policy that fosters the increase of crime, contempt for the laws and the debasement of character. In some communities, notably in the city of New York, the impossibility of a general and equal enforcement of the laws and the revolting injustice of a partial effort, have had the effect of leading the executive officers to wholly abandon any serious attempt at a rigid enforcement. And yet, these worse than useless results of legislative action seems nowhere to lead to any serious injury into the real nature of the difficulty.

ABORTIVE STATUTES.

"The condition of what are called sumptuary laws is equally discreditable to our knowledge both of the science of legislation and the teachings of experience. The task of enforcing them against the passions, the beliefs and the interests of multitudes, can be accomplished only by a despot armed with unlawful power. The result is that our statute books are bristling with penal enactments that have little effect in repressing the practices against which they are aimed. A society that has not the moral energy to enforce its will in any particular case, should never embody that will in the shape of a statute.

"In urging the increased study by our profession of the science of legislation, I mean that science in its broadest extent. It should embrace, as I conceive, two principal branches; first, the just limits of the province of legislation; that is to say, what subjects are really fit for legislative action as distinguished from those that should be left to the disposition of courts, or to the discipline that proceeds from the moral agencies of society. I am not aware of the extent of the field of injury thus embraced. It includes the fundamental elements of economic science, and the principles upon which sociological inquirers are generally agreed. I do not mean that these sciences must be mastered in their details; but that their main features should be made known so far as to enable the student to avail himself of their results and to employ their methods.

THE ART OF LAWMAKING.

"The other important branch is the study of the proper manner in which subjects fit for legislative action should be treated; that is to say, the art of framing appropriate and effective laws. Our association takes much interest in bringing about a certain measure of uniformity in our laws. The laws of a people should, of course, be devised and shaped in accordance with their traditions and their character, and so far as these differ it is neither possible nor desirable to have entire uniformity of laws. But the resemblance in character and traditions between the people of the states of the union are far greater than the differences, and this renders uniformity in many particulars practicable. And where mutual relations are so close, and inter-communication so general and constant, the difficulties and embarrassments arising from different systems of law are numberless.

"If a beneficent despot had absolute rule over sixty-five millions his ambition, and perhaps his duty, would be to force uniformity of law everywhere; and if our national government had the constitutional authority to effect the same result, that authority might perhaps be appropriately exercised to that end. There are none who, even for such a blessing, would accept a master, and few who would be willing to surrender the greater advantages which are supposed to flow from the division of our country into separate states sovereign for the purposes of domestic legislation. But is there no way in which a people, essentially one, can secure to themselves the prodigious benefits that would arise from a uniformity in legal rule?

"Our unwritten law is already substantially the same, and that I have always regarded as an impressive reason for abstaining from any attempt to reduce it into written forms, which would at once tend to plunge it into diversity. Whatever can be done to secure this desired uniformity must be made by voluntary concerted action. The appointments made by several states during the last year of commissions designed to forward this effort, affords us much encouragement.

THE IDEAL LAW.

"So far as the unwritten law is concerned, this uniformity will be approached as rapidly as should be desired by the operation of the unconscious forces of human society. The distant ideals are unchangeable and everywhere the same, and as the nations advance toward them they fall, or rather rise, more and more into identity. It was this ideal law that the great Roman orator and writer declared, in a burst of immortal eloquence, was not one thing in Rome and another at Athens, and the universal cultivation of the science of jurisprudence will eventually produce the same plant on every soil. But the positive legislative determinations of nations can be assimilated or reconciled only by conscious and concerted action. Much has already been accomplished in this direction by treaties, and by those concurrently adopted regulations operative upon the sea, the common domain of all nations. The wise furtherance of this beneficent work depends upon the intelligent oversight and co-operation of the enlightened jurists of the world."

Following the president's address, the executive committee reported its approval of 128 nominations for membership, all of whom were thereupon elected unanimously. The secretary reported 1,144 members on the roll besides those elected to-day and during the year. A balance of $3,700 36 was shown by the report of the treasurer. Adjournment was then taken until this evening.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

The Features of the Money and Stock Markets.

NEW YORK, August 26.—Money on call easy at 1 per cent; last loan 1 per cent; closed at 1 per cent. Prime mercantile paper 3½a4½ per cent. Sterling exchange firmer at $4 80½a4 90. Silver certificates 66½a67½c.

The upward movement in prices on the stock exchange was continued to-day, and speculation assumed a buoyant tone. The railway group led in the improvement, notably the grangers, with St. Paul and Rock Island in the lead and Burlington and Northwestern lagging behind slightly. The foreign contingent was a good buyer of the international stocks. St. Paul, Atchison and Louisville & Nashville being the favorites. Stocks of the companies in the hands of receivers were in request by reason of the belief of the success of the Erie reorganization plan, and Northern Pacific preferred, Atchison, Reading and Erie itself received strong support. In the industrial shares as a rule the movements resulted in net gains, an exception being Chicago Gas, down ⅛ per cent. Sugar, after an early reaction of 3½c, sold up 1⅝, reacted ⅞, rallied 2¼ and fell off ⅝c. Tobacco rose 1¼, declined 2½, recovered 1½ and receded ¾c. Leather preferred declined 1¼ and recovered 1½ per cent. The speculation in railway mortgages was characterized by pronounced strength and animation, the sales aggregating $1,024,000.

Government bonds strong.

State bonds dull.

Railroad bonds strong.

The total sales of stocks to-day were 304,872 shares.

CHILDREN, especially infants are soon run down with cholera infantum or "summer complaint." Don't wait to determine, but give De Witt's Colic and Cholera Cure promptly, you can rely on it. Use no other. Logan & Co., Wheeling, W. Va., R. F. Peabody, Benwood, Bowie & Co., Bridgeport, O. 6

HEADACHE Cured in 20 minutes by Dr. Miles' PAIN PILLS. "One cent a dose." At druggists.

LAST June Dick Crawford brought his twelve-months-old child, suffering from infantile diarrhœa, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and had always been sickly. I gave it the usual treatment in such cases but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds. I then started the father to giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. Before one bottle of the 25-cent size had been used a marked improvement was seen and its continued use cured the child. Its weakness and puny constitution disappeared and its father and myself believe the child's life was saved by this Remedy. J. T. MARLOW, M. D., Tamaroa, Ill.

Use Dr. Miles' NERVE PLASTERS for SPINAL WEAKNESS. All druggists sell 'em for 25c.
