

fluence, though, from over-zealous interests anxious to serve private ends. Such influences, even if exercised in the slightest degree, would render the movement valueless and, worse still, dangerous.

E. N. Funston, brother of General Frederick Funston, is here this week, from Mexico. He is general superintendent of the United States Smelting company. He and Carlos Van Law, a director of the company, are at the Newhouse.

HARRY L. ROBERTS

The death of Harry Roberts of this city in San Francisco a week ago, came as a terrible shock to his host of friends here where he was born and spent the greater part of his life.

Warm hearted, big, generous Harry. The friendships he made, and they were many, were lasting and deep, and with the splendid qualities he possessed, with everything pointing to a bright and happy future, his untimely passing is especially sad. He is survived by his brothers, D. C. and Frank Roberts to whom all sympathy goes out in their sudden bereavement.

American labor should be protected by tariff duties that at least equal the difference in cost of production at home and abroad. Temporary shortage of world supply may maintain prices for a time, as in the case of wool, but placing on the free list commodities produced in competition with cheap labor abroad must ultimately bring hardship to American industry. The American farmer should be aided in borrowing money at rates of interest as low as paid by others who give security equally sound, but it is more important that he be aided in securing such a price for his products as will relieve him of the need of borrowing except in case of emergency.

Among the many inconsistencies of the Underwood tariff is the fact that there is a 10 per cent duty on cattle, while all the imports which constitute parts of the cattle are allowed into the country free. For example while the cow itself is subject to a 10 per cent duty yet the bones, hide, flesh, hoofs, blood, horns, milk and hair of the cow are free. We are forced to conclude with Representative Gardner of Massachusetts, that "the countryman is said to have accepted many a gold brick in his time, but nothing except his sense of humor will keep him from exploding when he hears of that 10 per cent duty on cattle."

The story is told of a veteran of the Civil war who returned to the home of his boyhood to attend a banquet given by the old boys. The diners were all men he had known as youngsters. He expected them to talk over old times. Instead one talked incessantly about his bad liver; another discoursed on his weak heart; a third had a lot to say about his kidney trouble, and so it went on. When the veteran returned to his home he was asked how he enjoyed the banquet. "Banquet!" he snorted. "Bah! It wasn't a banquet. It was an organ recital."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Department stores are a good barometer of general business conditions; for they depend upon the masses for their success. The failure, within a short time, of such great establishments as the Siegel chain stores, the Greenhart company's stores, and the Mathews establishment tells emphatically whether general business is good or not.
