GAY BUNTINGS SPOILED BY WET.

But the Official Programme to Be Strictly Carried Out Just the Same.

GREAT THRONGS IN THE SLUSHY STREETS.

Illuminations May Be Spoiled To-Night, but the Big Inauguration Ball Will Go On.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The hour is at hand for the second inauguration of Grover Cleveland as President of the United States.

It is a gloomy day. The dawn broke over a snow and slush-covered city, and the storm continued as the hours wore on. Nevertheless, all arrangements are to be strictly carried out, and thus far all has gone smoothly.

The proceedings at the Capitol follow a prescribed programme, issued by the committee of Arrangements, as follows:

The east doors of the Senate wing of the Capitol will be opened at 10 o'clock A. M. to those who are entitled to admission.

The doors of the Senate Chamber will be opened at 11 o'clock A. M. to those entitled to admission as follows:

The President and the President-elect, who will enter the Senate wing by the bronze doors in the East front, each accompanied by a member of the Committee of Arrangements.

The President will go directly to the President's room and the President-elect to the Vice-President's room, where they will remain until they enter the Senate chamber. Having been introduced by the Committee of Arrangements, they will occupy seats reserved for them in front of the presiding officer. The Committee of Arrangements will occupy seats on their left.

The Vice-President-elect will be accompanied to the Capitol by a member of the Committee of Arrangements and proceed to the Vice-President's room, where he will remain until he enters the Senate chamber, where the oath of office will be administered to him by the Vice-President.

The Diplomatic Corps will assemble in the marble room and proceed in a body at 11.15 A. M. to the Senate Chamber, where they will occupy seats on the right of the chair.

The Chief Justice, the Associate Justices and the ex-Associate Justices of the Supreme Court, will occupy seats on the right of the chair. The Supreme Court will enter the Senate chamber a few minutes before the President.

Heads of the executive departments, the Major-General of the Army commanding; the Admiral of the Navy and officers of the Army and Navy, who by name have received the thanks of Congress, will occupy seats on the left of the chair. Governors of States, ex-Senators of the United States, Judges of the Court of Claims and of the Supreme Court of the District and the Commissioners of the District will occupy seats east of the main entrance.

Members of the House of Representatives will enter the Senate Chamber by the main entrance at 11.30 A. M. and will occupy seats on the right of the chair next to the Diplomatic Corps.

After the organization of the new Senate under the call for an extra session shall have been completed by the swearing in of the member-elect, those assembled in the Senate chamber will proceed through the rotunda to the platform on the central portion of the capitol in the following order:

The Marshal of the District of Columbia and Marshal of the Supreme Court.
The ex-Vice-President.
The Supreme Court.
The Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate.
The Committee of Arrangements.
The President and the President-elect.
The Vice-President and the Secretary of the Senate.
Members of the Senate.
The Diplomatic Corps.
Heads of Departments.
The Major-General of the Army, the Admiral of the Navy and the officers of the army and navy who by name have received the thanks of Congress.
Members of the House of Representatives and members-elect.
Governors of States, ex-members of the Senate of the United States, officers of the Senate and officers of the House of Representatives.

On reaching the portico the President and President-elect will take the seats reserved for them, the Chief Justice on the right and the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate on their left.

The Committee of Arrangements will occupy seats next to the President and President-elect.

The ex-Vice-President and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court, the Vice-President, secretary and members of the Senate will occupy seats on the right.

The Diplomatic corps will occupy the seats on the left of the President. Heads of Departments, the Major-General of the Army commanding, the Admiral of the Navy and the officers of the Army and Navy who by name have received the thanks of Congress, Governors of States and ex-members of the Senate will take seats west of the President.

The members and members-elect of the House will occupy seats reserved for them in the rear of the above.

The oath of office will be administered to the President-elect by the Chief Justice.

On the conclusion of the ceremonies, the members of the senate, preceded by the Sergeant-at-Arms, Vice-President and the secretary, will return to the Senate Chamber, and the President, accompanied by the Committee of Arrangements, will proceed to the Executive Mansion.

THE DISMAL MORNING.

Inauguration Day Broke on a Shivering and Bedraggled City.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 4.—Inauguration Day has come. And such a day!

It would be difficult to imagine a more dismal and desolate scene than was presented by the appearance of the National Capital this morning.

The city looked as if it had been struck by the tail end of a blizzard. The streets were covered with an inch or so of soft slush, and at a late hour it was still snowing and raining.

This ending of a week of the most delightful weather was a bitter disappointment to every one who had been anticipating a striking contrast to the weather which prevailed on the day of Harrison's inaugural four years ago.

It began raining about 8 o'clock last night, and after an hour or so of drizzle it settled down to a steady pour, which lasted until 2 o'clock in the morning, when it changed to snow.

The beautiful decorations of the buildings along Pennsylvania avenue, upon which so much time and money had been expended, were limp and bedraggled by dawn, and in many instances the white bunting was stained and discolored by the running of the colors.

Every one of the seats on the open platforms which lined the streets were covered with a layer of snow an inch thick, and the outlook for those who have purchased seats at $5 and $10 apiece was not at all inviting.

The only consolation that the official weather prophets offer was the possibility that it might clear some time during the day, but judging from appearances this was extremely doubtful.

Town More Than Crowded.

There are fully 250,000 strangers in the city today. They kept pouring in all last evening and bands of music with clubs and organizations from all parts of the country were continually marching up Pennsylvania avenue from the depots in the midst of the pouring rain.

Other visiting organizations were also parading the streets in spite of the rain, and the sidewalks of the main thoroughfares were thronged with pushing, jostling crowds.

The hotel corridors were literally packed with visitors. The capacity of many of the hotels was strained to the utmost to accommodate their guests, and dining-rooms were crowded until nearly midnight at some places by people who were waiting to get a meal.

The depots were crowded with arriving visitors who hesitated to go out in the wet and dreary weather and seek for lodgings.

The Committee on Public Comfort, however, did good work in directing the strangers to places where they could secure accommodations. Fully fifty visiting clubs arrived in town yesterday.

The Seventh Regiment There.

The Seventh Regiment from New York, came in about 6 o'clock this morning, about 80 strong. The boys didn't like the prospect a bit, and there was the most vigorous of grumbling when they started on their march up Pennsylvania avenue to the Armory above Centre Market, where they will be quartered during their stay here.

In spite of the weather, there were thousands of people about the streets as early as 7.30 o'clock, and the throngs increased every moment.

The visitors were determined to see the sights no matter what the discomforts.

It was given out early that the official programme would be carried out to the letter.

Mr. Cleveland, who was kept busy all last evening with callers, after his return from the dinner at the White House, at which he and Mrs. Cleveland were entertained by President Harrison and Mr. and Mrs. McKee, retired about midnight. He was up early this morning, however, for his part in the ceremonies, which began at 10 o'clock, when he went to the White House to meet President Harrison for the trip to the Capitol.

All the members of his Cabinet, with the exception of Judge Gresham, are now in town, and last evening they held a conference in the President-elect's apartments at the Arlington. They also met him again this morning, prior to his departure for the White House.

Mrs. Henry Perine, the mother of Mrs. Cleveland, is in town, and is staying with friends in G street.

President Harrison spent his last day at the White House finishing up his official business, and bidding good-by to his friends, and did not retire until a late hour last night.

He has had his last meeting with his Cabinet, and Major Halford left him yesterday afternoon for New York, where he is to sail for Europe to-day.

The little folks, Bennie and Mary McKee, in charge of their governess, made the rounds of the White House before going to bed, and said good-by to all the clerks and servants, and there were many affecting incidents.

This morning Mr. Harrison disposed of the closing business of Congress in his private office, and was very busy until time for him to accompany Mr. Cleveland to the Capitol.

After the ceremonies he will return to the White House, and after a short stay there, he will go to the residence of Mr. Wanamaker, where the members of the Cabinet will meet and exchange farewells.

From Mr. Wanamaker's Mr. Harrison will take a special train, which will convey him over the Pennsylvania road to Pittsburg, where he will spend to-morrow. He will reach Indianapolis about noon on Wednesday.

All the preliminary arrangements as to the detail for the unofficial ceremonies to-day were finally completed last evening as far as the Inaugural Executive Committee is concerned.

Owing to the indisposition of Col. Bertet, the Committee last evening assigned Mr. James L. Norris to the pleasant duty of escorting Mrs. Cleveland and her mother to the Capitol. The Committee afterwards secured Mr. Cleveland's confirmation of the appointment, the first he has made.

THE EVENTS OF TO-NIGHT.

Illuminations May Be Spoiled, but the Ball Will Go On.

WASHINGTON, March.—Great preparations had been made for the illumination of Pennsylvania avenue to-night, but it is thought that this feature of the celebration will have to be given up on account of the storm, or at least a part of it. The Capitol, however, will loom up under the glare of nine immense electric suns, and Washington's Monument will be illuminated.

The fireworks display at the monument will be reserved for a fair evening.

The arrangements for the inauguration ball in the Pension Building this evening have gone forward without interruption, and the bad weather will not prevent the festivities.

The plans for the decorations of the ballroom were on a more lavish scale than any before attempted.

The entire ceiling of the Pension Building is covered with a canopy of white and gold measuring 10,000 square yards of material.

Draperies of white, gold and red are hung over the walls of the entire building, and under each balcony and gallery. Silk banners trimed with gold and bearing the coat of arms of all the States and foreign countries, hang between the doorways, leading from the court on the several floors.

The front of the gallery is decorated American flags and shield with foreign flags.

The second tier bears shields of all the States surrounded by American silk flags and surrounded by gilt eagles, together with draperies in red outlined with green garland.

On the other side of the court is erected an arch sixty-five feet high, decorated with plants on a background of pure white soft bunting.

The names of Cleveland and Stevenson will be displayed in electric lights on the front of those arches.

The President's reception rooms are decorated in white as a background for a handsome floral display and the corners and every nook are filled up with plants and cut flowers.

The plant for the electric light display for the ball has cost about $5,000.

A test illumination of the ballroom was made last evening, and nearly 1,000 people were present. Admission was restricted to those accompanied by members of the Executive Committee or having passes.

Chairman Hay, of the Floor and Promenade Committee, last evening received the first ball programme, which is finely finished and especially prepared for Mrs. Cleveland, and Mr. Hay will present it to Mrs. Cleveland this morning.

POINTERS ON THE RACES.

Guttenburg's Card To-Day the Best for Many Weeks.

Track Will Be in Fairly Good Condition—Betting.

Evidently the Guttenburg management has taken "The Evening World's" advice and gone among the owners with a sharp stick.

At any rate, the programme offered to-day is first class. The fields are large and the quality good. It is the best card put together in many weeks.

The races look very interesting. The third, a dash of five and a half furlongs, has Fagot, Benjamin, Zenobia, Polydora, Peralto, Belle C., Headlight and Julia entered, and they ought to furnish a pretty contest.

Salisbury, Duke John, Tringle, Fleurette, Panthzen and Bryan are among the entries in the fifth race, a dash of five furlongs.

Frederick (formerly Beattitude gelding), Jersey Lass filly, Come Home and other good two-year-olds start in the second race.

The track will be in fairly good condition.

The entries and selections, together with the betting as quoted in the poolrooms this morning, are:

First Race—Purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third, the winner to be sold at auction, six and a half furlongs.

	Weight.	Betting.

Longard	96	6 to 1 and 2 to 1
L. C. W.	96	6 to 1 and 2 to 1
Narbonne colt	96	2 to 1 and 2 to 1

The opening event may be won by Defaulter, with Ben March second and Narbonne colt third.

Second Race—Purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third; for two-year-olds; half a mile.

Eugenie filly	105	5 to 1 and 2 to 1
Vista filly	95	3 to 1 and even

*Formerly Beattitude gelding.

Come Home's last race was a very good one, and he should land the money in this race. Frederick may be the runner-up, and Jersey Lass filly should beat the others.

Third Race—Purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third; the winner to be sold at auction, five and a half furlongs.

	Weight.	Betting.
Benjamin	115	4 to 5 and 1 to 2

Belle C.	104	8 to 1 and 3 to 1
Headlight	100	10 to 1 and 4 to 1

Zenobia and Benjamin look to have this race between them, and they ought to finish as named. Polydora ought to be third.

Fourth Race—Purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third; the winner to be sold at auction, six and a half furlongs.

	Weight.	Betting.
Signature	105	6 to 1 and 2 to 1

Oxford looks to be in an easy place, and should win without being hurried. Indigo is better than many people think him to be, and he ought to be second. Carnalite should beat the others.
