SENATE'S LAST WORK.

Mr. Hill Fails to Get a Quorum to Vote on the Bridge Bill.

Sundry Civil and Indian Appropriations Bill Agreed To.

The McGarrahan Bill Is Passed: An All-Night Session.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The last night of the session of the Senate in the Fifty-second Congress passed tamely, with the Senate endeavoring to do as little as possible while awaiting conference reports on the remaining appropriation bills.

The celebrated McGarrahan claims bill came up about midnight in a new shape from that in which it was vetoed by the President. There were only about a dozen opponents of the bill, but they delayed its passage for several hours by offering numerous amendments. Senator Teller stuck faithfully to the bill, and at last succeeded in securing its passage by a large majority in substantially the form he desired.

Reports from the Appropriations Committee came in slowly. Senator Hill took advantage of the fact to make a last stand for the New York and New Jersey Bridge bill, which he moved to take up. He had a majority of the Senate with him, but could not get a quorum to vote, so that Senator Hiscock proved successful in his opposition to the bill.

The effort to take up the measure developing the fact that there was a quorum, but not a voting quorum present, Harris, of Tennessee, secured an interesting parliamentary ruling by moving that the Sergeant-at-Arms be directed to compel the attendance of absentees, although the call had shown a majority of members present.

President pro tem Manderson ruled that it was an inherent right in every body to compel attendance of members whenever their presence was desired, and Mr. Harris's motion prevailed. The Sergeant-at-Arms exercised his police powers leniently, however, and if he detected any absentees, the fact was not disclosed by their arraignment at the bar of the Senate, though it was said that his deputies had routed three Senators out of bed and caused them to come to the Capitol in a sleety, snowy night.

Senators Vest and Teller were fortunate enough to get through local bills in an interval between roll-calls, but when Messrs. Stewart and Squire attempted the same things with very short bills, Messrs. Harris and Cockrell objected in the interest of the overworked enrolling clerks.

The House Sheet-Metal Gauge bill was passed and the conference reports on the Sundry Civil and the Indian Appropriation bills early in the morning made a diversion for a time, but they were adopted without much discussion.

About 5.30 o'clock Senator Hill became desperate and made a lively attack upon the tactics of the opposition, which aroused Senator Frye into resentment and finally involved Senators Hiscock and Blackburn.

Senator Hill admitted that his bill was dead so far as this Congress was concerned, but renewed his efforts nevertheless later on. At 6.30 he gave up the fight gracefully and himself moved the recess, which was taken, from 8.30 to 9.30 o'clock.

8.40 A. M.—The conferees upon the Sundry Civil bill have reached an agreement as to the World's Fair items, the only remaining points of dispute. The appropriations for that object are fixed as follows: For Government exhibit, $150,750; for commission, including $55,000 for Board of Lady Managers, $211,000. For jurors, awards, &c., the appropriation of $570,880 is made, but it is also made a charge against the Exposition, and the Government must be reimbursed by the first day of November next.

TWO TRUSTS IN SAFES.

The Combination, However, Lacks Two or Three Numbers.

The withdrawal of three of the biggest firms has caused a serious hitch in the plans for a "safe trust," to include all the manufacturers left out of the big Herring-Hall-Marvin combine of last year.

Plans for this second trust had so far progressed that the name of "Diebold-Mosler-Damon Company" had been chosen for it, and the capitalization fixed at $5,000,000, or $1,000,000 more than that of the Herring-Hall-Marvin combine.

The dissenting firms of Trust No. 2 are said to be the Miller Safe and Iron Works, of Baltimore; Mosler, Bahman & Co., of Hamilton, O., and the Cincinnati Safe and Lock Company, of Cincinnati. Of the capital stock $2,000,000 was to be preferred, and it was because of the alleged objection of the New York firms to gobble up bids preferred stock, it is said, that the three firms in question withdrew from the deal.

It is reported, however, that this defection will not prevent the remaining companies from organizing on a plan similar to that which has just fallen through.

The remaining firms comprise the Diebold Safe and Lock Company, Canton, O.; George L. Damon, Boston; National Safe and Lock Company, Cleveland; York Safe and Lock Company, York, Pa.; Barnes Safe and Lock Company, Pittsburg; McNeale & Urban, Cincinnati, and the Cary Safe Company, of Buffalo.

MONTANA'S SENATORIAL RACE.

Sanders, Backed by Methodists, Thought to Have the Best Chance.

HELENA, Mon., March 4.—It is semi-officially given out that Gov. Rickards will on Monday appoint a United States senator to succeed Sanders. Lee Mantle, the last caucus nominee of the Republican party for senator, is making the most active fight for the appointment, and has petitions in his favor circulating all over the State.

Sanders is regarded as the probable winner, because he is backed by the Methodist Church of the State, of which Board Rickards is prominent member. The Methodists are making a bitter fight on Mantle.

Lieut.-Gov. Botkin's friends are urging his appointment, and after Sanders he is believed to have the best chance.

By some Carter's chances are regarded as the best, but Senator Power's very influential with Gov. Rickards and if he can prevent it Carter will not be appointed.

BEAT HER AND LEFT HER.

Mrs. Shayne's Charges Cause Her Husband's Arrest.

Thomas Shayne was held for trial in the Lee Avenue Court, Williamsburg, to-day on two charges, one of assault and the other of abandonment.

The complainant, his wife, is the tall, handsome daughter of Sergt. John Reardon, of the Thirteenth Precinct, and lives at 120 North sixth street. An effort has been made to throw an air of mystery about the affair. Mrs. Shayne positively declining to discuss the matter this morning.

The couple were married five years ago, but for the last year their married life has been very unhappy. Feb. 16, Mrs. Shayne says her husband beat and afterwards abandoned her.

Shayne was arrested last night, but Justice Connolly admitted him to bail. He interposed no defense.

Says He Was Driven from Home.

A boy giving the name of James Paralbo, was found wandering along Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn, this morning. He said he lived at 147 Elizabeth street, New York, and that his father had driven him from home. The police cannot find his father.

Broke His Leg on the Street.

J. Howard Boyden, an insurance agent, of 346 Waverley avenue, Brooklyn, fell on Vanderbilt avenue early this morning and broke his leg.

JOE GODDARD KNOCKED OUT.

Smith, of Denver, Finished Him in Eighteen Rounds.

Sporting Men Thunderstruck at the Result.

NEW ORLEANS, March 4.—The fighter from kangaroo land, Joe Goddard, who once said, "The man doesn't live who can knock me out," and "There's no such thing as being knocked out," ought not to be quite so speaking terms with himself to-day, for he was put out last night as prettily as any man ever was in the world.

Jim Smith, of Denver, did the trick in the Olympic A. C. here, and all accounts agree that the fight was of the typical "hog-killing" order.

The sluggers battled for eighteen rounds, and during the last half Smith had way the best of it.

Goddard topped Smith in weight by twenty pounds, the Harlem boy scaling in at 180 pounds to Smith's 160.

The contest demonstrated the rich advantages youth possesses over a man of mature years in a meeting where it is sledge-hammer and tongs.

Smith is but twenty-eight years old, while Goddard is at least ten years his senior.

The Denver man showed the quicker recuperative powers after each round, and this it was coupled with his agility, that sent him along to victory.

Goddard is a great unseen little sparrer, and admits it, saying "science is all O. K., but I like to fight in my own way."

He faced a man last night who likes a bit of the same style.

Goddard has to decide hereafter to call down cyclists, at whom he has been flinging money and challenges for a battle.

It was Goddard's first defeat last night, however, and so the victory was all the more to Smith's credit.

They fought for a purse of $10,000, during the progress of the fight the excitement was terrific, and as it thinned upon the spectators that Smith might be the winner they could hardly contain themselves.

The amphitheatre shook with cheers and Smith was encouraged at every turn.

The result of this scrap was unquestionably the greatest surprise to the talent that the ring has furnished in years.

Goddard was a hot fav. rite in the betting at 1 to 5, and there were few takers at that.

REMARRIES HIS EXTRA WIFE.

Eleanor Wingate Now the Legal Bride of the "Count."

CAMDEN, N. J., March 4.—W. H. Kocherjay, who styles himself "Count" and who, at the importuning of his two wives, was released Dec. 21 last, from the Trenton State prison, where he was sentenced for three years for bigamy, has remarried Eleanor Wingate, the woman for marrying whom he was sent to prison.

Miss Wingate's real name was Willis Cook. Kocherjay met her in Delaware while he was the husband of Mary M. Scovel, daughter of Col. James Matlack Scovel, formerly President of the New Jersey Senate.

Kocherjay and Miss Scovel were married at 1437 South Broad street, Philadelphia, July 14, 1887. They had one child, which was sickly. In spite of this marriage the "count" went to live with Miss Wingate and finally married her, as he afterwards explained to Miss Scovel's father, "to give color to their relation, so that the girl would not be disinherited by her grandmother."

Young Harry M. Scovel prosecuted Kocherjay, his erring brother-in-law, and landed him in prison, but his sister, while suing the "Count" for divorce, united with her rival in an appeal for Kocherjay's pardon.

Last week Miss Scovel obtained her divorce and the custody of her child, and Thursday night, in this city, Kocherjay and Miss Wingate were remarried, Rev. J. Wesley Lake, a Methodist minister from Burlington, performing the ceremony.

MASCOT CANES FOR HALL.

He Leaves for New Orleans on a Special Train To-Day.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., March 4.—Jim Hall and his trainer, John Kline, left here at 8.30 o'clock this morning for New York, where they will take a special train this afternoon for New Orleans.

Hall was cheered by a crowd of several hundred as he entered the train and was presented with a number of Lakewood souvenir canes as "mascots."

Broke a Window to Steal.

An unknown thief broke a window in the rear of S. Kuschok's clothing store, 97 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn, this morning and stole twenty unmitshed vests worth $25.

A Walking Ghost

WAS WHAT MRS. RUMRILL'S FRIENDS CALLED HER

OWES HER LIFE TO HOOD'S. GASTRIC DYSPEPSIA CURED.

"For years I have had terrible dizziness, and in March, I had an attack of the grip. I got into such a serious condition that I fainted, caused either by dizziness or nervous trouble, during which I could not think connectedly or talk without forgetting what I was saying. I could not sleep, had no appetite, and people said I looked like a walking ghost. I was so nervous. When I laid down I

COULD NOT BREATHE

with any comfort. Something suggested to me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. Before the first bottle was gone I had quite an appetite, which increased until I could eat well without any distress or disturbance afterward. I have taken six bottles, the color has come back to my face, I have no fits, can breathe well when lying down, and in a short, call myself perfectly well. I am more than thankful for and know that I would not now be alive but for this medicine." MRS. SUSIE C. RUMRILL, Royalton, Vermont.

RAN AWAY WITH A TYPEWRITER.

Lawyer Reeves and His Bride Will Be Welcomed Home.

There is parental forgiveness awaiting the return of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Reeves, of Bushwick avenue, a suburb of Brooklyn, who ran away Thursday night to get married. They are expected to return this evening and the welcome they receive will be so cordial that the fatted calf of the prodigal son would have been in comparison a mere "How d'ye do."

Mr. Reeves is a new member of the New York bar, having studied in the office of his brother, Alfred G. Reeves, who is a professor in the New York Law School and he practices in the firm of Reeves & Todd. He is steadyish and is supposed to be an unusually steady young man, but his bride is just as romantic as he is practical.

She was Miss Jennie McCall, a typewriter for the Title Guarantee and Trust company until last Thursday, when she and Herbert concluded to surprise their friends by getting married.

Her father is James McCall, a produce merchant at 302 Greenwich street, who declares he never offered any objection to Jennie and Herbert getting married, but that he wanted a wedding.

The courtship of the young couple, it is claimed, was uninterrupted from the word go. They were both social favorites in Bushwick avenue, and always seemed just as chipper as the town itself.

In addition to their meetings there their love affair had the advantage of frequent sly glances and possible chats at Mr. Reeves's offices, where Jennie's sister Florence was employed as a typewriter.

So calm and placid was the courtship of the couple that no one was prepared for last Thursday's surprise.

A sister of Mrs. McCall, who lives on the west side in this city, invited her two nieces to dine with her on that evening, and empowered them to bring Mr. Reeves and another young man with them.

Mr. Reeves escorted both girls to the "L" and left Miss Florence at Chambers street to wait for his friend while he and his fiancee continued uptown.

When Miss Florence arrived at her aunt's house she found that Herbert and Jennie had gone out to get married.

SEVEN YEARS FOR DEMPSEY.

Heavy Sentences Imposed in the Homestead Poisoning Cases.

PITTSBURG, March 4.—In the Criminal Court to-day Judge Stowe passed sentence on the convicted participants in the Homestead poisoning case as follows:

Dempsey and Beatty, each seven years; Gallagher, five years, and Davidson, three years in the penitentiary.

BELMONT HOMESTEAD SOLD.

Arnold, Constable & Co. Pay $615,000 for the Property.

The August Belmont homestead, at the northeast corner of Fifth avenue and Eighteenth street, has been purchased by Arnold, Constable & Co. for $615,000.

The property has a frontage of 100 feet on Fifth avenue and 175 feet on Eighteenth street, thus making the cost of the ground and building about $35 a square foot. This is said to be the highest price ever paid for property in that neighborhood.

The land on the southwest corner, where the Hotel Logerot now stands, sold two years ago for $26 a square foot.

Mr. Belmont bought the corner lot, 70x150 feet, in 1851 for $22,800. Nine years later he paid $9,561 for 25 feet fronting on Eighteenth street. In 1883 it cost him $130,000 for 30 feet more frontage on Fifth avenue.

James M. Constable says the property was bought as an investment.

BIT THE OFFICER'S FINGER.

Then Mrs. Mullin Got Three Months in the Penitentiary.

Mary Mullin was to-day sent to the penitentiary for three months by Justice Connolly in the Lee Avenue Court, Williamsburg.

Mary lives in Cherry street, New York, and came over to Williamsburg last evening and started in to do a song and dance outside the ferry-house. Policeman O'Connor, discovering that she had no theatrical license, requested her to desist. Instead of obliging, the old woman jumped for O'Connor and, getting the second finger of his right hand between her teeth, bit to the bone. O'Connor then locked her up without further ceremony.

In court, to-day, Mrs. Mullin said: "I was at a wake and got a little tipsy. Let me go home to my children."

"I think they need protection," responded the Justice, decidedly.

MRS. GREEN WANTED TO DIE.

She Took Poison Because Her Daughter Had Eloped.

Margaret Green, thirty-four years old, was held in the Lee Avenue Court, Williamsburg, to-day for examination on a charge of attempted suicide.

Mrs. Green's fifteen-year-old daughter, who had been employed as a cook in New York, eloped with a colored man the other day and the woman brooded over this fact. Yesterday she chewed and swallowed brass polish paste and drank creosote. She was taken to the Eastern District Hospital and recovered.

Very Expensive Cigars.

John Brown and James O'Brien, of 35 Varick street, in the Tombs court this morning were held in $1000 for trial on a charge of stealing two packages of cigars from Tolpidge's express wagon yesterday.

SHOW THIS TO YOUR TAILOR.

It Isn't Always Safe to Dun a Man for a Debt.

A funny story is told of a young man, the only son of a wealthy Clifton family, who was engaged in some business downtown and rented desk-room from a very close party, who dunned him every day and every hour for his rent when it became due, says the Cincinnati Times-Star.

The young man was heir to an estate worth nearly $100,000, and therefore he told the landlord to treat him like a gentleman and he would get his money, as he only owed him a very few dollars anyhow.

But the landlord was not built that way, and so matters ended by the young Clifton heir leaving the place, after threatening to blow the other's brains out for being such a fool.

The young heir soon came into possession of his property and had the satisfaction of renting the premises for himself where he had formerly had desk room, and politely ordering the tenant who had treated him so shabbily to vacate. It is said he even flourished a few $500 bills under his nose and asked him if he could change one of them.

WILL TRY TO LAY THE GHOST.

Young Viscount de Creny Anxious to Solve the Mystery.

He Will Pass the Night at the "Haunted House."

Albert de Creny, a dashing young Frenchman, who claims to be the scion of a Royalist family that flourished in the regime of Napoleon Bonaparte, will visit the alleged "haunted house" on East Fourth street to-night and have communion, if possible, with the supernatural visitors who, it is alleged, nightly manifest their uncanny presence in the big flat house by various unearthly noises hitherto unaccounted for.

Regardless of the scepticism evinced by many curious ones who have visited the Fourth street flat for the purpose of proving that there are no spiritual manifestations there, Dr. George W. Page, one of the occupants of the flat, still insists that there are sounds heard every night which are caused by other than mortal man.

In an interview recently Dr. Page told "The Evening World" some of his experiences, and he still adheres to his opinion.

Albert de Creny, who says he is a viscount, is a medical student in the University of the City of New York. He hails from the island of Trinidad, off the coast of Venezuela, South America. He read the story in "The Evening World" and has challenged the statement that ghosts "do walk" in the Fourth street flat.

Accordingly, De Creny, together with Harry B. See, whose father is the owner of a line of steamers, which ply on the Orinoco River, South America, will at Dr. Page's request, pass to-night in the latter's apartments.

If the strange sounds—the mysterious origin of which has puzzled, more than one of the dwellers of the "haunted house," are manifest, the young Frenchman will have a grand opportunity to controvert the argument of all the great philosophers, who have declared that there is no effect without a cause.

Who would not be constrained to declare that ghostly tenants inhabited the four walls of a house when on awakening at the midnight hour the sounds of stifled whispering were detected floating through the darkened room?

And who would not be less sceptical in his belief that things uncanny and spiritual do exist when, emerging in a room, with unclosed eyes, the distinct sounds of the clatter of a stove grate in the act of being shaken were heard.

Dr. Page alleges that divers sounds, of various descriptions and all unfathomable to him as yet, have disturbed him oftentimes in a night.

He says that he is not the only witness to the midnight visitations. Others in the house have heard the mysterious goings-on, and have trembled with fear, accepting the queer manifestations as the forerunner of some appalling approaching evil.

Flats are left vacant on short notice and no explanations have been offered for the sudden departure.

These rappings, knockings, whisperings, misplaced articles, gas cocks turned off and on by mysterious hands, and similar puzzling happenings, have been, no doubt, the reason of the precipitous flight of frightened tenants.

It is this sort of mystery which has caught the interest of Albert de Creny and his young friend Lee, and caused them to determine to investigate the "Haunted House."

According to Mr. de Creny's story, his grandfather was count de Creny, a true-blooded Royalist. In 1815, Count de Creny fled from France and took refuge on the Island of Trinidad.

Young de Creny's father, who fled with the old gentleman, died a few years ago. Albert's mother's death followed shortly after that of the Count.

While the family of De Creny had a right to the title, De Creny says that it was never used after leaving France.

The last of the race is a fine dark-haired, black-eyed, slim, athletic fellow. He came to this country to study medicine, and will probably get his degree next year.

WON BY A BLUFF.

Gen. Lee Got His Soldiers Out of an Ugly Trap.

Edmund Randall, who was all through the civil war as a Pennsylvania volunteer officer, tells an interesting story, says the Philadelphia Inquirer, of how successfully a game of bluff was played by the Confederate Fitz Hugh Lee upon a regimental commander from Philadelphia, who is now dead.

The Southerners were in sore straits, surrounded upon all sides, it seems, and unable to find an avenue of escape, just after the battle of Gettysburg.

Within their lines was an orderly who had been raised at a ford surrounded by perpendicular cliffs near the Pennsylvania border. He told the rebel General that if they could strike that particular place there would be a fair chance of escape, providing there were none of the enemy near by.

A reconnoitring party returned with the report that the coast was clear, but that the men would have to pass through in single file. The Confederates prepared for the movement and were soon on the march. As they reached the ford they were astonished to see on the cliffs above them the regiment of Union soldiers with arms stacked and bayonets glistening in the sunlight.

Lee was in a trap unless he could resort to bluff. Reining in his horse he summoned a corporal to bear a flag of truce to those above him. It read: "I demand your surrender in fifteen minutes." Then, taking out his watch, he waited with bated breath for the return of the truce-bearer, fearing every minute that the Union forces would open fire.

Ten minutes went, and then twelve, when suddenly the drums began to beat upon the cliffs and the Northern men marched away. The rebels could scarcely realize that they were saved. In Confederate accounts of the war the statement is made that not a man could have escaped had the Philadelphia commander opened fire. In the report of the latter particular mention is made of the masterly retreat of the Union regiment, whereby it escaped complete annihilation by the rebel army.

RUSE TO GET A SEAT.

The Pretty Girl Imposes Men and a Strategic Move.

A very pretty girl stepped into a crowded car on the College avenue line, says the Indianapolis Journal. She belonged in the High School, and wasn't in the habit of standing up. The car was full, but everybody she had a crush. Seven men had taken the most available ones, and, strange to relate, not one of them appeared to be aware that a young woman was compelled to stand.

The pretty girl, with a quick glance of disgust about the car, took in the situation and blushed somewhat indignantly. She had a long distance to ride and comfort-ing, facefully to a strap. Two squares had been travelled when an idea took possession of her classical mind.

Out came the miniature purse from the embroidered silk reticule and the little hands fumbled among a few silver coins. A nickel dropped to the floor and rolled to the far end of the car. This is part of the plan, but it is executed dexterously and the passengers pity her. She blushed and murmured: "How awkward of me."

Unstealthily she started after the nickel, but seven men intercepted the movement and rushed to the point as the artful maiden dropped into a comfortable seat with a sigh and deftly laid a roguish smile.

The five-cent piece was tendered by a man who assumed her place at the strap. She thanked him and looked all innocence.

DEATH IN A CYCLONE'S PATH.

Three Killed and Several Hurt by Falling Debris at Meridian, Miss.

MERIDIAN, Miss., March 4.—Marion, a small town on the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, five miles north of this city, was struck by a cyclone at 6 o'clock last night. The cyclone originated in a funnel-shaped cloud, with a greenish tinge. It went northeast passing through the village, demolishing houses and throwing freight cars from the track.

Mrs. Meader and her daughter, Miss Mira Meader, who lived half a mile from the station, were killed by falling debris.

Mr. and Mrs. Wade Harrison, very old people, are believed to be fatally injured; George Taylor and Mr. White were severely injured, and a negro is reported to have been killed.

"THE TURF" is a daily column in THE EVENING WORLD Sporting Extra. It is a most interesting department to all followers of racing events, presenting, as it does, general racing news, notes and commentaries; information as to the condition of horses named for coming events, and timely tips on racers whose form makes them worthy the attention of speculators. Prepared by a special writer.

SPORTING GOSSIP, attractively presented, is a daily feature of THE EVENING WORLD Sporting Extra. The general news and announcements of the athletic clubs, the latest developments and promised events in pugilism, aquatics and all general sports are found in this department, which is always up to the times and up to the readers' demand. All prepared by a special writer.

SPORTING DATES.—A Calendar printed daily in THE EVENING WORLD Sporting Extra, giving times and places of coming athletic and general sporting events, of local bearing.

What THE EVENING WORLD Sporting Extra Does:

It knocks out Time;
It distances competition;
It always makes a hit.

WHAT IT DOES NOT:

It never strikes out;
It never "Quits";
It is never caught napping.
