SHARP BLADES IN NASHVILLE.

Manager Mahon Fatally Stabbed for Objecting to a Hotel's Fare.

Judge Brien Seriously Wounded After Making an Apology.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 1.—Edmund Mahon, property manager of the Country Circus Company, playing an engagement in this city, was fearfully cut in the throat last night by Arthur Stanton, son of the hotel-keeper, with whom Mahon was boarding.

Mahon was under the influence of liquor, and had quarrelled with a waiter at supper over the food served him. Young Stanton and Mahon got into a row in the office, and Mahon's throat was cut, severing the jugular vein.

Medical assistance was rendered, and after much difficulty the cut was sewed up and the man removed to the hospital. The wound will probably be fatal.

Judge John D. Brien, a lawyer of this city, was stabbed yesterday by A. W. Griswell.

Brien, in the heat of a debate, used harsh language towards Griswell a few days ago, and approached him in a drug store to apologize. After he had done so, Griswell seized him and stabbed him, inflicting a serious but not fatal wound. Griswell is in jail.

POLICEMEN IN THE TOILS.

Even Superintendent Byrnes Cannot Cope with the Enemy.

More Than 150 of "the Finest" Are Suffering from Grip.

Grip seems to have fastened itself on the officials at Police Headquarters in real earnest.

Supt. Byrnes turned up at his office this morning feeling, as he termed it, "very rocky, indeed," and undecided as to whether he should go out and be punished with another Turkish bath.

Last evening he left Police Headquarters, and, repairing to a bath, submitted to the process for a couple of hours, hoping to rid himself of the grip symptoms, which were tugging at him unmercifully.

It was all to no purpose. This morning he reported for duty after having spent a sleepless night.

He is not the only victim about Police Headquarters. Health Commissioner Emerson himself has had for some little period, a touch of the Russian post and has this for been unsuccessful in ridding himself of it, and as for Dr. John T. Nagle, of the Bureau of Vital Statistics, he has been dragging along under the control for weeks. He is putting daily for some sort of a rather favorable to the proposition little microbe, deeming this about the only cure for its persistent attack.

Sergt. O'Toole, of the Bureau of Information, went home a week ago to-day suffering with influenza, and he has not been able to return to duty since. He is having a serious attack of the grip.

Sergt. Harley, his running mate in the Information Bureau, is back at work, but he is suffering with grip for a long time.

About four out of every ten of the officials and employees around the Mulberry street building are complaining of feeling a heavy, oppressive symptom of grip, and the medicine watch is better plan to pursue, lest the disease sticks it out.

There were over 150 policemen reported on the sick list this morning, and at least 20 per cent. of these are contracted through grip.

Instead of influenza decreasing along Police Headquarters, recent developments demonstrate to the contrary.

Dropped Dead on the Street.

PARIS BEHIND THE RECORD.

Bonanza Mackay's Wife and Son Among Her Passengers.

Col. Tom Ochiltree Arrives, but Col. North's Fullerton Does Not.

The American liner Paris poked her nose over the bar at 1.25 o'clock this morning on her round trip under the American flag and has her anchor dropped anchor at Quarantine.

Her time from Southampton to Sandy Hook was six days, sixteen hours and thirty two minutes, and the distance covered was 3,111 knots.

While the run of the Paris is considered good for this season of the year, it is still nearly five hours behind the record made by the Furnessia in last April, of six days, eleven hours, forty-four minutes.

When the Paris dropped anchor at Quarantine, she was boarded by several Central Office detectives who began a search for Col. North's famous greyhound, Fullerton, which was thought to be on board. A various passenger named Merchant had a greyhound, and the detectives thought that Fullerton, the Nihrs King of Turf, Col. Tom Ochiltree, who was on board, and who knows Fullerton well, relieved Mr. Merchant from the embarrassment in which he had been placed.

Col. Ochiltree said that Fullerton had been sent to Paris, given his friend Col. North. He said the latter had intended returning Fullerton to this country on the Paris, when Fullerton was stolen, however, he decided to embark on the ship himself. He is of the opinion that the greyhound has been stolen by some clever thief, who is holding him for ransom.

Col. Ochiltree also said that Col. North would send El Diablo and Royal Harry, two famous thoroughbreds, to this country later in the season. El Diablo is entered for the Derby, and as "Pretty Minnie's" horses, entered for that fashionable event, have been disqualified by the death of their owner, Col. North thinks he can win with Royal Harry.

Among the passengers on the Paris was Mrs. Mackay, wife of the "Bonanza King." She was in charge by her young son Clarence. She has secured a suite of apartments at the Hotel Waldorf, and will remain in the city until Monday, when she will continue her journey overland to San Francisco. Mrs. Mackay said that she had received very encouraging news in regard to the condition of her husband, who was recently shot.

In the second cabin were fifty young women, who are supposed to represent the perfection of European loveliness. They are bound for Chicago to take part in a spectacular piece that will be presented there during the World's Fair.

The Paris carried 69 first, 38 second cabin, and 167 steerage passengers. March 21, when 20 miles east of Sandy Hook, she passed a white painted brig, showing the letters "A. C. P. B.," that wished to be reported.

ARCHITECTS TO UNITE.

Paris Ecole des Beaux-Arts Students Will Form a Club.

American architects who have in recent years attended L'Ecole des Beaux-Arts, at Paris, have decided to form an association here to keep in touch with their alma mater and encourage other architects to study in the French capital.

A grand dinner will be given at the Union Club, Friday evening, and Monday evening, when the association will be formally organized. Upwards of twenty architects from this city and Boston will be present.

Among the prominent recent Boston graduates in the Paris school, and the number is increasing year by year, the entire Harvard University corps of instructors, including Professor Ware, Professor Hamlin, Professor Coolidge, Professor Sturgis, Professor Wolcott, Professor Hoyt, Professor Allen, Professor Rotch, Professor Ricker, Professor Wheelwright, Professor Shepley, Professor Rutan, Professor Sedgwick, Professor Ames, Professor Fuller, Professor Perry, Professor Brooks, Professor Richardson, Professor Hunt,
