selves. It doesn't seem reasonable. Our honest belief is that if the Director General would put on his spectacles and look around a bit, he might find a more likely alibi than the one mentioned.

THE ABDICATION OF OLD NICK.

By A. E. Lawrence.

1.

ABOUT August 15, 1918, Kaiser Bill took sick
And died at noon the following day and appeared before old Nick;

Nick says to him, "Well met, Dear Bill, we know you ain't no slob; I'll abdicate right here and now and hand you o'er my job."

2.

"I'd thought my system mighty good, but I guess I'm slipping fast
While your equipment's up-to-date and built for years to last.
We've waited for you night and noon and put on extra gloss
Upon our old and worn out plant, to welcome our new Boss."

3.

"I'd thought I was a clever guy, but I lacked your imagination,
Or otherwise I'd held my job and matched your reputation.
We're 'way behind the times it seems, a bunch of poor old sticks,
So, now's it's up to you, Friend Bill, to teach us all new tricks."

"There's been sly remarks at my management—open sneers and slinging mud
I've found that what we need, dear Bill, is efficiency—new blood;
I've held my job a million years, against all comers—still
I'm mighty sure there's no mistake—I know you'll fill the bill."

5.

"No need to bring on recommends, no need to bring one letter,
Your record made in Belgium, in fact could be no better;
The towns you've occupied in France—Gee Whizz! you raised some stew—
Since first I've learned from these two points, I've had my eye on you!"

"That poison gas of yours, was good—the way it made them choke,
The things we've got down here compared to that are but a joke.
That liquid fire game you started wasn't quite so well
Just one of our old standard works—some plain old-fashioned Hell."

"I've looked out o'er the ocean too, and envy's turned me green,
We've nothing here that's half so slick as your new submarine;
On all the seas it seems you've worked, from Atlantic to the Red—
The bottoms of the oceans now are carpeted with dead."

8.

Another record, too—you've made—I hadn't far to seek
You cleaned out all Armenians—the Syrian and Greek.
I've read the papers o'er each day—they way the dead lay thick;
You know that I'm not squeamish Bill, but it nearly made me sick."

9.

Your ways of treating women and the children too, were new,
We haven't dared to pull such stunts, the credit belongs to you.
From all accounts back there on earth, they won't regret your loss,
Although it surely means our gain—we'll get a brand new boss.
