About the Farm.

IF.

If not a bud the early spring
To bloom, and fragrance shed, did bring,
And not a blossom blossoming
On shrub or tree,
Or merry bird to blithely sing,
How sad 'twould be.

If not a throb of pleasure sweet,
Or hope, did childish hours greet,
Did not an after-time complete
Its bliss, impart,
How mournfully methinks would beat
Matured hearts.

HOW TO SELECT SEED.

It has been pretty clearly demonstrated that good healthy seed, selected from the home wheat field, as one would select and save seed corn, will not run out, but, on the contrary, will grow better annually.

TO PREVENT ONIONS FROM GOING TO SEED.

As soon as the most advanced stalks give signs of going to seed, roll the beds with a barrel or keg, and repeat as often as the tops straighten up, say every three or four days, until they give up the business of going to seed, and attend strictly to making large bulbs. A few rollings will produce the desired effect.

HOW TO PLANT TREES.

Shade trees are often planted too near to our dwellings and too thickly, as to make the house dark and damp and cheerless. Large evergreens are very much out of place on the sunny side of the house, while they form an appropriate screen and windbreak along the cold and exposed sides of our buildings. Set out trees—it is a duty, but set them out judiciously.

HANG YOUR FARM GATES.

A good, well-hung gate will save its cost the first year, in the time saved by stopping to put up bars whenever any one passes. Farm gates are pleasant for master and man, and in England there are good, substantial ones into every field on the farm, and all have good, safe latches, made to open easily with a riding stick or whip, so that a farmer can go all over his farm without dismounting.

CARE OF HORSES' FEET.

A farmer of experience says that the feet of a horse require more care than the body. They need ten times as much, for in one respect they are almost the entire horse. All the grooming that can be done won't avail anything if the horse is forced to stand where his feet will be filthy. In this case the feet will become disordered, and then the legs will get badly out of fix; and with bad feet and bad legs there is not much else of the horse fit for anything.

WHAT TO TEACH THE BOYS.

Teach the boys to love the farm, but do not prove hard taskmasters. Do not make their farm life one of drudgery and toil if you would have their thoughts in after life turn lovingly to their old homes and happy young lives. Teach them that something more than muscle and physical endurance is required, that, indeed, agriculture is a science or art that should be conducted according to clearly-defined laws and well-established principles, and successful in proportion to the intelligence that directs it.

BUTTER MAKING.

The New York Tribune, in speaking of the Higgins process of making butter, says:

Mr. John Higgins, who a few years ago laid the country under obligations by developing the method of gathering butter in a granulated form, has made the obligation larger by devising a method for preserving and transporting butter to any market in the world.

The means are as simple as barreling pork. He gathers the butter in the granulated form in the churn, and as soon as the buttermilk is rinsed off, the granules are immersed in saturated brine made of purest salt. When the cask is full it is headed, and is then ready for any emergency. Experiments made in putting up butter in this way, after making journeys, and standing six or eight months exposed to summer heat, have shown that by cooling thoroughly before handling, and rinsing the brine off with cold water as soon as opened, the butter will have the freshness it had when it came from the churn unchanged, and is ready to be seasoned and put in shape for the table. There is no doubt that butter made from good milk and put up in this way will keep as good as canned fruit, and for the same reason.

The Art of Advertising.

One of the queer things in business is the propensity of people to seek irregular mediums for advertising. It is unaccountable the prices that some now pay for sticking their advertisements in irregular places. Especially is this so when compared with their unwillingness to pay anything for advertising in the regular channels. Men will pay large sums for inserting their business cards in a section of a frame in a hotel, bar-room, street car, railway station, or in a hotel register, or an almanac, or guide-book, or annual of one sort or another. The by-ways they seek, or that successfully solicit them, are innumerable. Likewise they will spend large sums for printing special circulars, and in postage to them. In all this, they ignore the most essential condition in advertising, namely, that it has character and effect from the medium through which is given to the reader. Advertisements thrust into irregular and un-business places impress the general mind that the concern is of similar character.

On the other hand, an advertisement in a general newspaper of first-class standing, carries the impression that the advertiser has a standing in his own community, which he is not afraid to show to his neighbors, and that he does not shrink from competition with the best of them. These are the different impressions that are made on all minds by advertising in a journal of high character and circulation among the reputable classes, and when seen in by-places and irregular and low channels. Every one finds this in his own feelings, if he would think on the subject. If any one is going to a place to buy, whether he be a trader or buying for his own use, and he had to seek dealers thro' advertisements, where will he look for them? To registers, almanacs, theatre-bill frames, in railway stations? On the contrary, he looks to the most reputable newspaper of the place, and he thinks that advertising in these gives an assurance of the good standing of the advertiser and of the sufficiency of his stock.—Cincinnati Gazette.

"What ever shall I do with such a bad boy," said a loving mother as she strove to impress on the mind of her six-year-old tow-head his manifold troublesomeness. "Oh, you let me alone; I ain't half as bad as I can be."

Odds and Ends.

It is now admitted that the crow destroys more grasshoppers than any other bird.

"Consistency, thou art a jewel," as the office boy said when he got the paste the right thickness.

Mrs. Miller, of Portland, Oregon, has given birth to her twentieth child, which is strong and well.

The best of all soils on which to establish a poultry-yard is gravel or sand, resting on a substratum of gravel.

Too many of our young men think that they can make more money by running a horse than by running a farm.

The useless waste of money on weddings and funerals calls for reform. Extravagance makes young men dread marriage and death.

Wilbur F. Storey states that his recent expenditures on the Times, of Chicago, amount to $143,000, and that this was demanded by "the foremost city of the continent."

In the region of the upper Nile is to be found the watermelon in a wild state, and Schweinfurth has submitted proofs that the cradle of this nursling of culture lies in Africa.

Mr. Conkling practices every day with the dumb-bells and takes a great deal of out-door exercise, bathes twice a day, and diets himself as if he were in constant training for a prize fight.

Whenever a new and startling fact is brought to light in science, people first say, "It is not true," then that "it is contrary to religion," and, lastly, "everybody knew it before."

A French engineer has perfected a plan to stop railway trains instantaneously, but not to prevent passengers from a free circus performance over the backs of seats when such a stop occurs.

On a recent trip of one of the steamers running to San Francisco, bread was served for dinner one day which tasted strongly of coal oil. The captain afterward asked the baker if he did not know that kerosene had got into the flour. He admitted that he did. "Why didn't you feed it to the chickens, then?" was asked. "Oh," he replied, "I was afraid it would kill 'em."

Dean Stanley lectured recently in London on "Milton." He said that Milton's two works, "Paradise Lost" and "Paradise Regained," covered the whole of English theology from top to bottom. It was very surprising, he said, when one analyzed his own thoughts about the creation, the fall of the angels, and the entrance of sin and death into the world, how very much of his thoughts, actions and words on these subjects were drawn, not from the Bible, but from Milton.

Take Care of Your Habits.

Character is the substance, reputation the shadow only—sometimes longer, and sometimes shorter. How important, then, is care in the growth and formation of habits, since character is but a "bundle of habits" that years have been picking up and combining; and when combined, you may annihilate the composition, but you can not alter it. It is no easy matter to drop habits, even those that hang most loosely upon the outside. We have an attachment to them, or they have an attachment to us, which is not readily separated. They are like an old pair of shoes, which, though there are no advantages attending them, still are easy, and we are loth to "cast them off." They are like an old hat, which, though it has become unsightly, still sits comfortably to our head, and we dread the breaking of a new one.

Newspaper Decisions.

1. Any one who takes a paper regularly from the Postoffice—whether directed to his name or another's, whether he has subscribed or not—is responsible for the payment.

2. If a per-on orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrearages, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.

3. The courts have decided that refusing to take the newspapers or periodicals from the Postoffice, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facia evidence of intentional fraud.

Papers ordered to any address can be changed to another address at the option of the subscriber.

Remittances may be made by check, draft, money order, or registered letter. All Postmasters are required to register letters on application.

"Ma," said a little girl, "if you'll let me buy some candy I'll be good." "My child," solemnly responded the mother, "You should not be good for pay; you should be good for nothing."

THE AVANT COURIER

ANNUAL

FOR 1879.

It contains, among other things, twenty pages of just such information as is desired about the farming, stock-growing, mining and other resources of Montana. Three views of Eastern Montana in the pamphlet were engraved especially for it.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS:

We know of no better or cheaper way of obtaining reliable information about Montana than the purchase of this little volume.—Butte Miner.

Its principal feature is the valuable information furnished concerning the Territory in general, and Eastern Montana in particular, which is carefully and correctly compiled.—Madisonian.

The commercial and other resources of Gallatin Valley are fully explained in a concise and entertaining manner, and the inducements to immigrants are plainly stated without exaggeration.—Benton Record.

It gives a thoroughly accurate account of the present condition of Gallatin County, and a great deal of information relating to Montana.—New North-West.

Copies are presented free to subscribers of the AVANT COURIER.

Single copy.....25 cents
Five copies.....$1.00

SELECT LIST
—OF—
LOCAL NEWSPAPERS
Many persons suppose this list to be composed of CHEAP, low-priced newspapers. The fact is otherwise. The Catalogue states exactly what the papers are. When the name of a paper is printed in LOCAL PAGE TYPE it is in every instance the BEST paper in the place. When printed in CAPITALS it is the ONLY paper in the place. When printed in roman letters it is neither the best nor the only paper, but is usually a very good one, notwithstanding. The list gives the population of every town and the circulation of every paper. It is not a co-operative list. IT IS NOT A CHEAP LIST. At the foot of the Catalogue for each State the important towns which are not covered by the list are enumerated. IT IS AN HONEST LIST. The rates charged for advertising are barely one-fifth the publishers' schedule. The price for one inch for four weeks in the entire list is $635. The regular rates of the paper for the same space and time are $1,136 35. The list includes 970 newspapers, of which 153 are issued DAILY and 817 WEEKLY. They are located in 825 different cities and towns; of 22 are State capitals, 328 places of over 5,000 population, and 451 county seats. Lists sent on application. Address GEO. P.
