RICO WENT WIDE.

Brooklyn Hugged the Rail and Won the Third by a Scant Half Length.

PETER DE LACY'S WAR CRY.

Tis Said He Threatens to Arrest Every Bookmaker Who Opens at Elizabeth.

GUTTENBURG RACE TRACK, April 12.—A cold, east wind made the air a trifle unpleasant at Guttenburg to-day, and heavy wraps were a comfort.

The crowd soon warmed up, however, and in the excitement attendant on picking winners soon forgot all about being cold.

Eckert's band, by playing popular music, helped to keep the crowd cheerful and in good spirits.

The attendance was fully up to the average, and the betting was as brisk as usual.

This was the last day at Guttenburg until after the twenty-day meeting at Elizabeth ends. Then Guttenburg will fill in the gap until the regular season opens in New York State.

Those who imagine that the New Jersey Jockey Club will have smooth sailing during its twenty-day meeting at Elizabeth may be grievously mistaken. It is said that Peter De Lacey has declared himself. He asserts that he will arrest every bookmaker who does business at Elizabeth, no matter whether the law legalizes racing or not.

De Lacey will be backed up by Judge Lippincott's interpretation of the law. The Judge, in his charge to the Hudson County Grand Jury, asserted that the Parker laws legalizing betting on races were unconstitutional, and he charged the Grand Jury to indict any one found making books on the races.

De Lacey will work under the old disorderly house laws, and there is no doubt but that he means what he says.

The pool-room proprietor has no love for Mike Dwyer, who, he believes, was the power behind the throne in the recent movement against city pool-rooms.

The racing to-day was first class, but, as usual, disappointing to the talent. The surest thing failed to materialize. Phonograph was the good thing in the opening event. He opened at 4 to 1 and was pounded to 8 to 5.

He won the money handily, notwithstanding he got away badly. Pisa colt was left at the post. Auburn, a long chance, filled second place, in front of Lillie R. gelding, who was well played.

The third race was a duel between Brooklyn and Rico. Both sold very near even up in the betting. They ran head and head for nearly the whole distance, Brooklyn finally winning, deadlight, a 15 to 1 chance, was third.

WATER-PIPES IN THE WAY.

Something New in the Line of Rapid-Transit Obstacles.

All the members of the Rapid Transit Commission was present at the meeting held at 4 P. M. to-day at Mr. Steinway's house, 26 Gramacy Park.

The object of the meeting was to consider the new route from One Hundred and Eighth street through Washington Heights to Fort George prepared by Mr. Starin.

In accordance with the request of the commission at yesterday's meeting, Engineer Bogart presented a report on this route in which he discussed the various sections of the route in detail.

The first obstacle which would be met, Mr. Bogart said, were the huge iron water-pipes which ran under Tenth avenue from Ninety-third to one Hundred and Tenth street.

There were six of those pipes, each of which was four feet in diameter. Those took up a greater part of the width of the avenue.

From One Hundred and Thirteenth to One Hundred and Nineteenth street the old Croton aqueduct occupied the greater part of the street, and about this last named point there were four cast-iron pipes, one of which was five feet in diameter.

Mr. Bogart then discussed the possibility of constructing a four track railroad in an open cut on Tenth avenue and gave as his opinion that the street was too narrow for such a road unless the sidewalks were diminished in width.

The cable road now passes through this avenue, and sufficient room would have to be left on each side of the railroad parapet to make excavation for this line when an open cut was necessary.

In the proposed tunnel section it would be necessary, Engineer Bryant thought, to move the pipes which convey the Croton water to the city to the side of the street, as the tunnel was not deep enough to pass under them.

Mr. Steinway stated that he had received a communication from Commissioner Daly, of the Public Works, which was read.

The Commissioner stated that he was unalterably opposed to any route or tunnelling scheme which would necessitate a displacement of the water pipes and that portion of the old aqueduct which ran through Tenth avenue. He had examined the route proposed by Mr. Starin, and, in his opinion, the route could not be constructed without interfering with the city's water supply.

BOSSES ARRESTED.

Six of the Clothing Manufacturers Charged with Conspiracy.

Warrants Issued at the Instance of the Locked-Out Cutters.

Negotiations for a Settlement Will Probably Not Be Stopped.

Six members of the Clothing Manufacturers' Association were arrested at noon to-day on complaint of their locked-out employees of the Garment Workers' Union.

The manufacturers were just deliberating on the feasibility of meeting a committee of the locked out men to-night with a view to terminating the fight when Policemen O'Connor and Carnovan, of the Tombs Court squad, entered the room with Secretaries Charles F. Reichers and Harry Waite.

The latter identified the manufacturers designated in the warrants and these were forthwith placed under arrest.

The warrants were issued by Justice Burke, this morning, on the application of Herman Fromme, the lawyer of the locked-out cutters.

The fact was kept a profound secret until after the arrest was actually made.

President Hornthal was the first one arrested. The others were A. F. Hochstadier, Leo Kaufman, B. Holzman, John Trounstine and David L. Newberg.

This sudden irruption of the police into the room threw the manufacturers into great consternation. They soon recovered from their astonishment, however, and set out with their captors, first to notify their bail to be present at the hearing at 2 o'clock this afternoon and then down to the Tombs Court.

Lawyer Fromme was at his lunch when informed by an "Evening World" reporter that the arrests had been made.

"I didn't think the warrants would be executed so quickly," he said. "I have no doubt the manufacturers were under the impression that our threat to cause their arrest for conspiracy in locking out their cutters was an idle boast.

"We went about the matter in the ordinary way, the same as we should do in procuring warrants for assault or any other crime. The reason we applied to the Tombs Court was because the Board of Police Justices had decreed that warrants should only be granted by Justices in whose district the crimes for which they sought to be obtained was committed. In this case the overt act attending the manufacturers conspiracy in locking out their cutters was committed in the Tombs district.

It was thought this morning that the lock-out would soon be at an end. The ground for this belief was that President Gompers had written to President Hornthal, of the Manufacturers Association, asking that a meeting be appointed at 8 o'clock to-night at the Madison Avenue Hotel, with a view to adjusting the trouble if possible.

Lawyers are divided in opinion as to whether the manufacturers can be held for the Grand Jury on a charge of conspiracy.

"For my part," said Mr. Fromme, "I have no doubt but that they have clearly violated the Penal Code in conspiring to lock out their men. All that the Police Justice can do in such a case is to determine whether there is any ground for believing that they were guilty of such an offense.

"If he thinks there is ground for such a belief he must hold them. He has no discretion in the premises."

President Gompers, of the Federation, sent a letter to the manufacturers' meeting this afternoon saying that he had no knowledge that the arrests were to be made.

He expressed regret that any such step had been taken, and intimated that the responsibility for it rested altogether with the leaders of the United Garment-Cutters' Union.

The Manufacturers, at their meeting, finally decided to meet a committee from the Garment Cutters at the Madison Avenue Hotel to-night.

ANTI-POOL-ROOM BILL ADVANCED

It Goes to Second Reading in Assembly Despite Mr. Sullivan.

ALBANY, April 12.—When Senator Saxton's bill, forbidding the sale of pools, except on race tracks, was reported to the Assembly this morning Mr. Sullivan moved to recommit it. He said:

"It was my intention, if possible, to keep this bill in the Committee. It has no business out of the Committee. It is simply a fight between two sets of gamblers, those on the race tracks and those in the pool-rooms, and, as usual, those on the race tracks have the most money."

He then withdrew the motion, and the bill went to second reading.

Surgeon of the Twelfth Promoted.

ALBANY, April 12.—Nelson H. Henry, of New York city, has been commissioned by Adjutant General Porter to be Assistant Surgeon-General with the rank of Colonel. Col. Henry is now Surgeon of the Twelfth Regiment.

ATROPINE SYMPTOMS

Present in Mrs. Buchanan's Case, Says Dr. Peabody.

He Has No Doubt that She Died of Narcotic Poison.

It Is a Bad Day for the Alleged Wife-Slayer.

Unless the cross-examinations are too long, the testimony gathered by the District-Attorney against Dr. Robert W. Buchanan, on trial for poisoning his wife to death, will be completed to-day, and the defense will begin.

That is what District-Attorney Nicoll said, this morning.

Drs. Thompson and George L. Peabody were the first witnesses to-day, called as medical experts to testify that the chemical history of Mrs. Buchanan's case—that is to say, the diagnosis by Drs. McIntyre and Watson—indicated that she had taken both morphine and atropine.

After these two scientists in materia medica there are six lay witnesses who testify to little odds and ends to complete the case against Buchanan," said Mr. Nicoll.

There had already been sworn forty-five witnesses for the prosecution. These would bring the number up to fifty-three, and if to-day sees the completion of the people's case against Buchanan the prosecution will have occupied twelve days and the trial up to date seventeen days.

The typewritten minutes of the Buchanan trial up to date occupy 1,400 pages. There are 4,000 folios of 100 words each, or 400,000 words!

Dr. George L. Peabody lives at 57 West Thirty-eighth street. He is Professor of Materia Medica at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, and a pathologist as well of some renown.

The District-Attorney put to him a hypothetical question describing the case of Mrs. Buchanan and the symptoms she displayed in her last illness.

A Long Hypothetical Question.

Mr. Nicoll described Mrs. Buchanan as a middle-aged woman of temperate habits, industrious and of good health, having never been ill save for a slight attack of grip.

He then read the facts as told by the witnesses of the illness and death, the autopsy, chemical analysis, and microscopical examination after death.

The hypothetical question would fill a column of "The Evening World." It concluded with:

"Conceding all these facts to be true, what, in your judgment, was the cause of death?"

After a long wrangle, during which the big volumes of testimony were ransacked by all the lawyers, the Recorder ruled that the question must be modified by the District-Attorney, and then Dr. Peabody was permitted to answer, an hour and ten minutes having been spent in wrangling over it. Dr. Peabody replied:

Died of Narcotic Poison.

"I should say that the patient died of narcotic poison of some kind."

Then to another question he said: "I should suppose the poison to be morphine with atropine, or a preparation of belladonna, or one of two or three other allied plants."

In the course of the argument the Recorder found himself opposed to both Nicoll and Brooks, and he commented on it smilingly.

"First time Mr. Brooks has agreed with me since the trial began," said Mr. Nicoll.

"First time you have been right," promptly replied Mr. Brooks, and everybody laughed.

Much has been made of the failure of Profs. Witthaus and Doremus to swear positively that they found atropine (belladonna) in the viscera. But, as Mr. Jerome said, atropine is more quickly dissipated than morphine, and might have been so much dissipated through the system of the dead woman as to be practically undiscoverable.

Symptoms of Atropine.

Dr. Peabody said that several of the most characteristic symptoms of atropine poisoning were included in the description of the case by Dr. McIntyre.

"The pains in the head, the feeling of constriction of the throat, the anxiety of the patient—in both, hysteria—are all characteristics of atropine poisoning; the flushing of the face, the slowness of respiration, the variations of temperature—all are perfectly consistent with coma produced by morphine and atropine poisoning combined. The pulse, rapid and feeble, is characteristic of a late stage of atropine poisoning.

"It is a characteristic of morphine poisoning," he said, "that in the earlier stages of the coma the patient may be aroused by external irritation so as to sometimes speak intelligently prior to sinking into the comatose condition preceding death."

Mr. Brooks objected to this last statement on the ground that it was many hours after she sank into coma when Mrs. Buchanan was aroused. In fact it was eighteen or twenty hours.

The objection was overruled, and then Dr. Peabody said in reply to the next question:

"Atropine is an antidote to morphine to the extent that it retards the operation of the morphine. It counteracts certain effects of morphine on certain functions."

After the intermission, Dr. Peabody declared that he was able to say in further reply to the hypothetical question that Mrs. Buchanan's coma was not due to chronic nor to acute Bright's disease, nor was it alcoholic, hysterical, diabetic, apoplectic, epileptic, nor uræmic coma, and he gave his reasons clearly and full regarding each of these suggestions.

Had the coma been due to embolism or to hemorrhage of the brain, Dr. Peabody was sure the pathological examination described by Drs. Loomis and Prudden and Prof. Doremus must have discovered it.

Dr. Peabody also repudiated the suggestion that Mrs. Buchanan died of muscarine poisoning, due to eating poisonous mushrooms or toadstools, describing the peculiar symptom of muscarine poisoning.

Sullivan took Dr. Peabody in hand for cross-examination. Almost his first question elicited the fact that Dr. Peabody had had under observation during the past ten years two cases of poisoning by morphine and atropine combined. He described them.

One was in 1884, a man of thirty-four, who had been under his care at the New York Hospital for the morphine habit. On his discharge the patient took a solution of six-half grain morphine and one-thirty-second grain of atropine. This man's life was saved after many hours of hard work.

Mr. O'Sullivan took up the several points of description compared them, or rather contrasted them, with the symptoms shown by Mrs. Buchanan, and, one at a time, he showed that the symptoms were entirely different, some of them diametrically opposite to each other.

Dr. Peabody, like Profs. Witthaus and Doremus, said he believed the finding of the death of a grain and a half of morphine in Mrs. Buchanan's viscera indicated that she had taken four or five grains.

Sullivan took Dr. Peabody on on this, and insisted on knowing by what rule or through what course of ratiocination Dr. Peabody arrived at that conclusion. "But it might not be, Dr. Peabody, if you had never watched the analyses of the chemist in a case where the dose was known, he only concluded that the dose must have been a large one for the death of a grain to have sufficed to kill, when it could be not only to the patients, after an illness of twenty-six hours."

The trial will continue to-morrow.

COLUMBUS UP TO DATE.

The New Discoverer is to be Welcomed by the Chieftains.

MOONSHINERS IN BROOKLYN.

Government Officers Raid a Large Illicit Still.

Five subordinates from the office of U. S. Internal Revenue Collector Nathan, assisted by two United States Deputy Marshals, captured one of the largest and best equipped illicit distilleries this morning, that has fallen into the hands of Government officials for years.

The distillery was located in the old, ramshackle, five-story brick building 179 Furman street, just at the foot of Columbia Heights. It was built for a residence, but since the suicide of the last occupant, whose name was Ryan, in the house, five years ago, the agents have been unable to get a tenant, and, therefore, allowed the place to fall into decay.

Of late, smoke has been seen issuing from the chimney, and a half dozen or more swarthy-visaged men were occasionally observed to enter and leave the building at given hours. The movements of these men were so stealthy that neighbors became suspicious, and the last few days the old, deserted building and its mysterious occupants have been the talk of the vicinity.

Collector Nathan heard of the suspicious circumstances, and detailed one of his most careful and trusted subordinates to make an investigation, with the result that the actual purpose for which the place was inhabited, was discovered.

This morning, at 10.30, the Government officers swooped down on the place. They gained entrance by forcing the basement door. Once inside, they could hear the hum of machinery in operation in an upper story. Every door up to the second story was barred, and had to be forced, necessarily with a great deal of noise. As a result, the operators were forewarned, and when the officers finally burst in the room where the distillery was located, there was not a human being in sight. The men had escaped through the scuttle hole to the roof, and have not yet been apprehended, though Collector Nathan is sanguine that all of them cannot escape.

The apparatus was in full operation. About 2,000 gallons of high wines in casks; an iron still of modern make, with a capacity of 150 gallons, a copper worm, 30 empty casks, 2,000 gallons of mash steeping in a big tub, and some minor paraphernalia were seized.

Guards were placed over the building, and a more minute search of the closets and rooms is being conducted this afternoon, with hopes of finding some clue to the identity of the proprietors.

The men are supposed to be Italians from their appearance, and the fact that one of the escapes while running through an adjoining yard was accosted by an Italian and answered in that language.

EXONERATE THE COMMISSIONERS

Charges Against the Board of Charities and Corrections Dismissed.

The charges of mismanagement and maladministration made to the Mayor against the Commissioners of Charities and Correction by the Commissioner of Accounts were declared not sustained, and dismissed to-day by Mayor Gilroy. He practically exonerates the Charities Department.

Commissioners of Accounts Wahle and Daly, now Commissioner of Public Works, signed the report so summarily disposed of by the Mayor.

Mr. Wahle said to an "Evening World" reporter this afternoon: "The report was originally made in December, 1891, and held back at the request of Mayor Grant. He called for all reports on his last day in office, and among them we presented the charity question.

"It is not true that it was made to influence Mayor Gilroy to reappoint me. That is absurd."

The Commissioners of Accounts are appointed by the Mayor, to hold office at his pleasure.

$30,000,000 FAILURE.

English, Scottish and Australian Chartered Bank Goes Under.

Its Suspension Causes Great Anxiety and Consternation.

Main Office in London—Branches in Many Provincial Cities.

LONDON, April 12.—The English, Scottish and Australian Chartered Bank has failed, with liabilities amounting, to £6,000,000 or $30,000,000.

The bank was incorporated by royal charter in 1852, and claimed to have a paid-up capital of £900,000 and a reserve fund of £310,000.

The London office is at 38 Lombard street, E. C. Charles John Hegan is Chairman, and the Court of Directors includes William George Elden, John Inglis, Sir William Anderson Ogg, James D. Thompson, James Tullock and John Harrison Watson.

The Auditors are W. A. Elin and Alexander Young, and the bankers for the institution are the Bank of England, National Provincial Bank of England, British Linen Company Bank and the Bank of Ireland.

The suspended bank has main branches at Sydney, Adelaide, Brisbane and Melbourne and at various lesser points in the colonies of New South Wales, Victoria and South Australia. It transacted banking and exchange business between Great Britain and the Australian colonies and had large deposits.

The failure has added to the anxiety and consternation which previous recent failures of financial institutions with Australian connections have caused.

BELGIAN MINERS DESPERATE.

They Attempt to Imprison Men in a Pit at Quaregnon in Hainaut.

BRUSSELS, April 12.—Three hundred miners engaged in the strike at Quaregnon, in the province of Hainaut, to-day made an attack upon the sheds at the mouth of a pit and smashed every window in them.

There were many men working in the pit who had refused to join the strikers, and the mobs efforts were directed against them as much as against the owners of the pit.

All sorts of rubbish, old boards, stones and dirt were thrown into the shaft, the intention of the strikers being to imprison the men in the mine.

The mob was on the point of attacking another pit when the gendarmes arrived and induced them with the flat sides of their swords.

The strikers finally dispersed, but further trouble is apprehended.

Great anxiety is shown among the labor leaders. All their efforts are now directed to bringing about an agreement between the miners and their employers, refusing to accept the bill to establish universal suffrage.

THE GIANTS PLAY IN NEWARK.

Have to Pacify Mrs. McCartin Before Tackling the Star A. C.

NEWARK, N. J., April 12.—The New York Giants journeyed hither this afternoon to meet the Star Athletic Club's nine in a friendly baseball contest.

It was chilly and cloudy, and the Newark cranks did not turn out in big numbers.

What few were on hand were delightfully entertained by Mrs. Mary A. McCartin, the owner of the Emmett street ball grounds, where the game was played.

She made a vigorous verbal kick to Arthur Bell, who represented the New Yorks, because the Stars had neglected to obtain her permission to use the grounds. The Stars had secured the right to play from the Street Commissioners, who have recently seized the property to cut a street through, but that did not satisfy Mrs. McCartin.

Eventually she was pacified and the game started, with players thus assigned, in batting order:

| New Yorks. | Stars. |
|---|---|
| Burke, l. f. | Carlin, 2d. |
| Tiernan, c. f. | Young, 3d. |
| Davis, 3b. | Farrell, s. s. |
| Connor, 1b. | Warner, c. |
| Ward, 2b. | Moran, 1b. |
| Fuller, s. s. | Leonard, r. f. |
| McQuaid, c. f. | Beatz, l. f. |
| Kilroy, r. f. | Gilroy, c. f. |
| King, p. | Miller, p. |

The Stars went to the bat first but they were retired quickly without a run.

For the New Yorks Burke, Tiernan and Davis scored.

Neither side scored on the second third or fourth innings.

In the fifth inning the Stars failed to score. The Giants made 3 in their half, Burke, Tiernan and Davis scoring.

BROOKLYN AND COLUMBIA AGAIN

Baseball and a Handful of Enthusiasts at Eastern Park.

EASTERN PARK, BROOKLYN, April 12.—The Brooklyn Baseball club played its second game of the season at this park this afternoon with the Columbia College team.

The weather this afternoon was not conducive to the comfort to the handful of enthusiasts who braved the pneumonia-laden atmosphere to see the game.

On Friday the Brooklyn team will play the McCormick's Paterson team at these grounds.

The batting order this afternoon was:

| Brooklyns. | Columbias. |
|---|---|
| Grim, c. f. | Ryan, c. f. |
| Foutz, 1. f. | B. Grossman, 3b. |
| Burrows, c. | Smith, ss. |
| Smathers, 1b. | Shipman, c. |
| Day, 3b. | Hutchins, 2b. |
| Richardson, 2b. | Hildreth, 1b. |
| Stewart, ss. | Millard, r. f. |
| Kinslow, r. | Stewart, p. |
| Stein, p. | Mattlage, l. f. |

Umpire—Mr. Peoples.

The game opened at 3.45 with Brooklyn at bat.

Foutz drove a hot three-bagger to the right field fence, and scored on Stewart's wild pitch on Burrows's third strike. Burns going to second and stealing third.

Brooklyns got a base on balls and made second. Burns and Smathers both scored on a passed ball. Three runs.

There was no more scoring until the ninth inning, when hits by Grossman, Shipman and Millard, with a passed ball, a base on balls and a fly muffled by Smith gave Brooklyn two.

Columbia's tallies for Brooklyn and retired their opponents without a hit.

In the little Foutz's sale hit and steal, Burrow's long fly to centre, Brouthers's sale fly, Day's fine hit, passed ball, Richardson's hit and a wild pitch Stein forced the game.
