Alexandria Gazette

SATURDAY EVEN'G., SEPTEMBER 27

OLD HUNTERS.—Up near Laramie Peak there yet remains a great deal of game, such as bear, elk, deer and antelope, and this is about the right time to commence hunting. There are several old hunters in that section who have their cabins in good localities, who spend a good portion of their time in hunting. They are a singular class of people and care little about life outside of the mountain ranges.

As a general thing they are gaunt and wiry men, excessively fond of tobacco, and the physical labor they sometimes go through almost exceeds belief. It is no joke to walk twenty or thirty miles a day, up the mountain sides, where there is an abundance of fallen timber and tangled vines, in search of game—but these men do it and enjoy it. They have very little use for the young hunters that come out from the States, and who are unused to fatigue, and, as a general thing, look upon their efforts with a good deal of contempt.

If a man will go hunting with them he is expected to keep up and do his share. Elk hunting requires resolution, and is attended with a good deal of privation, and men who engage in it must expect to undergo much fatigue. Besides this, when large game is killed, it requires to be taken care of, and there is the additional labor of skinning the animal and carrying the meat down the mountain sides, or returning for it, after miles and miles of hard travel, with a horse on which to carry it down to camp.
