TRAMPS MUST SAW WOOD.

Brooklyn Charities Department Tests a Man's Sincerity.

Places Where the Unemployed May Get Work.

There are two places in Brooklyn where a man's willingness to work is tested to the utmost. They are the wood-yards of the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities.

The yards are located, one at 80 Pacific street, and the other at 50 South Eighth street. The first is known as the Northern Industrial Wood-Yard, the other as the Western Industrial Wood-Yard.

These wood-yards are places that the ordinary tramp always gives a wide berth. The authorities in control of the yards know that nothing will increase the magnitude of "that tired feeling" in a lazy man like the sight of a buck-saw and a cord of hardwood.

The northern yard was opened about six years ago. The western yard has been in operation but two years. The northern yard is conducted under the supervision of C. S. Shearer, the western by F. W. Francis. The Pacific street yard contains about two city lots. In one portion of it is piled cordwood of various kinds. A supply of saws and bucks completes the outfit. There is a building in the inclosure which is used as an office, and as a shelter in stormy weather. The western yard is similarly arranged, except that it is a trifle smaller.

General Superintendent George B. Safford, of the Bureau of Charities, in talking about the wood-yard department, at the office of the Bureau, 69 Schermerhorn street, said: "The yards were primarily opened to test the sincerity of many persons who apply to us for charity. We were overrun with applications for assistance till we put these yards in working order. The yards have several advantages. They test a man's willingness to work. Large cities are filled with habitual beggars. We believe it is criminal to assist a man in his efforts to resist work. It is every man's duty to work and provide for himself and those dependent upon him. We are thrown in contact with this class of people to such an extent that we can almost detect a man afflicted with the tired habit as soon as he comes around.

"Several years ago we were at a loss what to do. Tramps flocked in upon us in large numbers. Our resources were limited. When the suuply was exhausted from being heavily taxed by undeserving people the needy were obliged to go without. At last we thought of the woodyard. When the tramps found out that they had to work for what they got, our visiting list was reduced very rapidly. The largest number of calls for assistance formerly came in about supper time. Now we have a way of fixing that part of the system.

"We never give a man a cent of money here. If he gets any money from us he gets it in the form of wages.

"The woodyard is an excellent place in which a man can help himself in case he is in actual need. It is intended simply and solely to tide over men who are out of employment until they can better themselves. Any man applying for work in the yard can get it.

"A man can earn any amount, from 10 cents to $1.50 a day, according to his determination to work and his ability to saw wood. The woodyards are open from 7 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock at night. The Pacific street yard is also open at night. If a man comes in and says he is hungry and wants a place to sleep, we send him over to the yard. If he will saw wood for an hour we think he is entitled to a meal. He is given a check by which he can get a good supper and bed.

"The wood yard is one of the best fields in the world to study human nature. The buck saw is a gigantic success as a means of solving the question of the sincerity of a man's intentions. If a man is lying you can easily prove it. Sawing wood is hard work. Some men go into the yard with great gusto. If they are bluffing their back begins to ache very soon. They are suddenly taken ill or something happens that they throw up their saw in a short time.

"On the other hand, you see men come in looking sick, wornout and worried. They grasp the saw with determination. They may go at it awkwardly but they put in their full day's work. They are tired and sore, too, but they have wives and children to care for. They are sincere and honest. We do not want to keep these men in the yards. When we have learned what they are worth we find them better and more remunerative employment.

"We sell the wood cut up by these men to any friends of our organization who will buy it. The yards are self-supporting. Last year the western yard gave 623 men 5,231 days' work. The northern gave 425 men employment, or 3,240 days' work.

"The western yard paid out in wages $3,766.62 last year. In the same time the northern yard paid out $2,124.19.

"There are many men in a prosperous condition to-day who owe their situations to the wood yard scheme."

IN THE DRY-GOODS DISTRICT.

E. D. Otto, the cashier for W. L. Wellington, has returned, and brought back his fishing tackle from Van Cortlandt Lake.

It is rumored that Billy Crow, the domestic salesman for Sweetser, Pembrook & Co., yearns for the quiet ease of life that a Custom-House appointment assures.

Walter Howell, the well-known resident buyer, has added another to the number of houses for which he buys.

George Fisher has received a letter from Jimmy Blake, who is at the Fair, in which are expressed his full views on the Midway Plaisance. As a result he is going there himself next week.

George Grandon, the wandering nomad of the trade, spent yesterday bidding his friends good-by. He starts to-night on a long trip West.

Howard Farr, the print designer, is back from the Fair. He spent two weeks of his vacation in Horticultural Hall, making sketches of all the plants and flowers of rare design to use as patterns for next season's prints.

Harry Brady, the white goods salesman for Creighton & Burch, who is away on his trip, is sending in big orders.

George Macle, the ribbon salesman, who returned from his vacation last week, is going away to-day to take a two more weeks' breakaway. He says he can get more with a gun in Sullivan County than he can get here with samples.

The business of the week has closed, leaving behind the most favorable impression of any week's trade for some time. All the departments enjoyed a share of the trade, but the bulk, as heretofore, went to the dress goods, prints and domestics. The trade was remarkable for the number of small orders, showing that buyers are purchasing with a view to get just what they need to piece up their Fall stocks and to revisit the market when business conditions have improved. It is probable there will be many duplicate orders, and that business will drag along till very late.

Frank Harder, the bleached goods salesman for Wheelwright, Eldredge & Co., is delighted with the success he has achieved with his new hotel venture.

A camping-out party, consisting of Willie Ryan, Joe Ponton and Edgar Morse, will leave to-morrow night for the Adirondacks. Willie Ryan has done nothing all the week but hustle around to buy the supplies, and see that they were packed so the bottles would not be broken.

Walter Dean, of Henry, Poe & Co., is in the market every day, looking after the Tudor and Nord ginghams, and at night retires to the cool breezes of Manhattan Beach.

His Assailant Unknown.

John Marze, a sailor, of 175 Cherry street, was taken to Gouverneur Hospital this forenoon suffering from a badly bruised face resulting from a beating, he received from an unknown person about 5 o'clock this morning.

FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN.

Fresh-Air Home in the Country for Little Unfortunates.

Something About the Work That Is Being Done at Daisy Fields.

A fresh-air home for crippled children, where the little patients can be taken from the unhealthy and squalid tenement-house homes of the city out into the sunshine and pure air of the country and kept there for the whole six months of Summer while they are being restored to health and bodily vigor, is something decidedly novel in the way of charitable work in this field.

Such a home has been established near the pretty village of Englewood, N. J., and its name, "Daisy Fields," is suggestive of its attractive surroundings. The great need of especial care being given to crippled children in order to supplement and successfully complete the work of the skilful surgeons began in the hospitals of the city is probably realized by very few, and this suggested the idea of establishing this Home, which was opened last June.

The work has been begun in a modest way, and is supported entirely by private means, but so much real good has been accomplished during the short period of its existence that its promoters have every reason to believe that it will be greatly enlarged and rendered still more effective in the future. At present the Home consists of a modest-sized cottage, surrounded by prettily laid out grounds, the gift of residents of Englewood, fitted up with everything which is necessary to contribute to the comforts of the little patients, twelve of whom have been cared for there during the past Summer.

The Home is under the supervision of Miss Herbert, the matron, who has seven nurses to assist her in the care of the children, thus showing the vast amount of attention required for even so small a number of patients. The children at "Daisy Fields" are all taken from the orthopaedic department of the Post-Graduate Hospital, in this city, and during their stay at the Home receive the same treatment and care from the surgeons of that hospital as they did in the city.

The great number of applications for admission to the orthpaedic wards of the city hospitals makes it impossible to keep the little patients under treatment very long after they have reached a certain stage of convalescence, and they must then be sent back to their homes to make room for other and more urgent cases. In very many instances a child which is well on the road to complete recovery, when thus returned to its tenement-house home—for all these little ones come from the very poorest families of the city—is shamefully neglected, the braces and bandages provided by the surgeons often being deliberately removed. The result is that not only is a cure prevented, but the child is sent back in a more desperate condition than when it was taken into the hospital.

"Daisy Fields" is the place where just such cases as these are provided for, the idea being to retain the children until they have so far advanced towards recovery that they will not be endangered by returning to their homes, or, if they are to go back to the hospital again in the Winter for further treatment, they will be better prepared by a life in the invigorating air of the country for the confinement of the hospital wards. With plenty of good, wholesome food and pure air and sunshine, it is wonderful to see what rapid progress towards health is made by the little inmates of "Daisy Fields."

One of the greatest obstacles to contend with in dealing with this class of cases is the expense involved in their treatment, not only in the way of special apparatus required, but on account of the constant attention and nursing which is necessary. To meet this, those who have established the Home rely entirely on the generosity of its friends.

The officers of the Home are Mrs. Herbert B. Turner, First Directress; Miss Frances M. Lyman, Second Directress; Miss Katherine N. Miller, Secretary, and Mrs. Joseph R. Tillinghast, Treasurer. Among those who are interested in its work are Rev. Henry Y. Satterlee, Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott, Rev. Dr. William S. Rainsford, Rev. Dr. A. F. Schauffler, Rev. Dr. William S. Langford, Dr. D. B. St. John Roosa, Dr. Francis Delafield, Dr. William H. Thompson, Rosewell G. Rolston, Morris K. Jesup, Robert W. De Forest, J. A. Bills and Charles D. Kellogg, of the Charity Organization Society of this city.

The home at "Daisy Fields," which is the first one of its kind to be established in this country, will remain open this year until Nov. 1. It is proposed for next year should the work receive the generous support which it merits, to considerably enlarge its present accommodations so that a greater number of the poor children may enjoy its benefits.

SPRUNG BEATS MEYENBERG.

Important Trade-Mark Case Decided by Judge Freedman.

Judge Freedman, of the Superior Court, has rendered a decision in the action brought by the Meyenberg corporation against Isaac Sprung denying the plaintiff's application for an injunction.

The action was brought to restrain the defendant from using the plaintiff's trade-mark, the representation of a beaver, the word "Royal" and the words "silk fur" upon a textile fabric called silk plush and silk fur, an imitation of beaver.

Great interest was taken in the case by the cloak houses of this city for the reason that the parties to the suit are the only ones who manufacture the goods.

Lawyer Alfred R. Jawsrower, of the Pulitzer Building, who appeared for Sprung, admitted that his client was using the trade marks, but contended that inasmuch as the symbol and words were not arbitrary or fanciful, but were descriptive of the goods, they could not be exclusively appropriated by the Meyenberg corporation.

They Camp in the Public Squares and Vacant Lots.

CALDWELL, Kan., Aug. 25.—Boomers bound for the Cherokee Strip are just beginning to arrive her in force. Their objective point heretofore has been Arkansas City. The hotels are filling up and many camps have been pitched in the public squares and in vacant lots. Thousands accompany with their loads of children from the West go direct to the line, where wagon tops are converted into tents and the boomers make a temporary home until Sept. 16, the opening day.

People gathering here will make for the land adjoining the Salt Fork of the Arkansas River and the land between that stream and the Cimmaron River, which is as rich as any in the Strip.

RIVER PILOTS SUSPENDED.

This Closes Navigation in Rock Island Rapids at Davenport.

DAVENPORT, Ia., Aug. 26.—Yesterday notices were received by twelve Rock Island Rapids pilots suspending their licenses for thirty days. The reason is not known. The twelve men comprise the best of the river, and if they are ordered off during the spring no pilots of rafts will come over the rapids, and steamboats from this point on will have to close their season.

Two thousand men will be thrown out of employment here if the order stands. Attorneys have been retained by the pilots and they will fight.

One Less Vicious Dog.

Policeman Thomas O'Brien, of the Mercer street station, shot and killed a vicious dog in front of 201 Bleecker street, about 1.30 o'clock this morning.

RAILROADS AND RAILROAD MEN.

News and Gossip of Interest in Transportation Circles.

General Manager Seargeant, of the Grand Trunk, is in town.

W. H. Mealy has been appointed Superintendent of the Mexican Central.

President Depew, of the New York Central, has abandoned his proposed European vacation.

The Pennsylvania is building new shops in Washington of such a capacity that thirty-two cars can be repaired at one time.

General Passenger Agent Daniels, of the New York Central, left yesterday for Lake Geneva, Wis., to be absent until Sept. 5.

W. W. Anderson, formerly general agent of the Port Royal and Western North Carolina road, has been appointed Superintendent of the same.

Cornelius Shields, General Superintendent Western division of the Great Northern, has been appointed General Superintendent of the Chicago Great Western.

It begins to look as if the New York and New England will operate the Poughkeepsie Bridge system, otherwise known as the Philadelphia, Reading and New England.

The Great Northern has abolished its Pacific coast division freight and passenger agency held by H. A. Johnson, formerly assistant general freight agent of the Union Pacific.

The Louisville and Nashville, has abolished its Western passenger agency in Kansas City, also its travelling passenger agency, the headquarters of which were in Junction City, Kan.

William A. Nettleton, son of President Nettleton, of the Kansas City, Fort Scott and Memphis road, has been appointed assistant superintendent of motive power of that system.

The Broadway scalpers are doing a big business to Chicago on the cheap excursion trains under the $8 and $9 rate, and the Trunk Line Association appears to be powerless to check it.

It is reported that the Seaboard Air Line Company is quietly getting control of the Marietta and North Georgia with a view to securing an entrance into Knoxville out of Atlanta.

The Pennsylvania has given notice to Philadelphia consignees that they must deposit $1,000 with its treasurer on peaches from Delaware and Maryland on which freight charges have not been prepaid.

The West Shore to-day takes off six of its passenger trains. They are the Catskill Mountain express, the half-holiday special and Saratoga and Catskill Mountain limited northward and southward, the Saratoga special and two Catskill Mountain expresses.
