CHANGES AT THE THEATRES.

Harrigan Opens with a Revival of "Dan's Tribulations."

Lottie Collins and Her Company at the Star.

Harrigan's agreeable home in West Thirty-fifth street was thrown open to the public last night, when the author-actor revived the third play of the Mulligan series, called "Dan's Tribulations." Mr. Harrigan received a right royal welcome. So did Mrs. Yeamans, John Wild, Joseph Sparks and other favorites. In fact, the cast was made up of actors dear to Harrigan's friends. The performance moved along rather slowly, and did not end much before midnight. A review of "Dan's Tribulations" will appear in to-morrow's "Evening World."

STAR THEATRE.

Lottie Collins, at the head of a company of her own, and no longer anxious to sing "Ta-ra-ra-boom-de-ay," began an engagement at the Star Theatre last night. She appeared with Albert Christian in a musical sketch, entitled "A Naughty Substitute," and, as a dancer from the Gaiety Theatre, London, sang and danced very nicely. She gave one verse of "Ta-ra-ra" in response to gallery shouts, but gave it reluctantly. Her company included Katie Cohen, Gilbert and Goblie, Conroy and Fox, "Cain and Abel" and others.

FOURTEENTH STREET THEATRE.

The popular Fourteenth Street Theatre, right in the heart of the shopping district, was reopened last night with W. H. Power's production of Edmund S. Gurney's Irish play, "Glen-da-Lough." J. K. Murray played the part of Terence O'Toole, the exceedingly amiable hero who always rushed on the stage just as the villain was about to persecute the heroine. That suffering damsel was impersonated by Miss Clara Lane. W. H. Power, jr., and Charles A. Smiley were also in the cast.

GRAND OPERA-HOUSE.

The sympathetic west-siders who can laugh at a risible farce-comedy, cry at a moving drama and thrill at a blood-curdling melodrama with equal facility were treated to a revival of that excellent play, "The Silver King," at the Grand Opera-House last night. Their hearts have frequently gone out to Wilfred and Nellie Denver before, but they went out once again just as vigorously as ever. The part of Wilfred Denver was played by Carl A. Haswin, who did very good work.

COLUMBUS THEATRE.

Sutton Vane's English melodrama, "The Span of Life," was the attraction at the Columbus Theatre, Harlem, last night. With its big scene written around the King Chasm in Zambesia, Africa. The audience revelled in the misfortunes of poor Kate and her child, but they burst into sympathetic applause when three acrobats fell across the fatal chasm, linked together and made a bridge across which she escaped from the villain. And the villain, of course, was unable to pursue her.

R. H. JACOBS' THEATRE.

This is nice weather for a good wet tank, and there was one at H. R. Jacobs' Theatre, used in connection with the drama known as "Lost in New York." The tank served to show the East River and to facilitate the escape of various parties in boats and a steam launch from the Insane Asylum at Ward's Island. The scene was a highly effective one, and the audience seemed to like it as much as though they had never seen it before. The cast included some capable people.

GARDEN THEATRE.

The last week of Loie Fuller's engagement at the Garden Theatre was begun last night. Miss Fuller danced twice, and her numerous accompaniments was as pretty and as well directed as ever. The rest of the performance, for which the audience did not care very much, included Miss Irquhart and Guy Standing in "The Doctor's Blunder," Miss Marie Cahill, a clever young skirt dancer; Sig. Tagliapietra, Florence Thropp, Carrie Daniels and Mae Bruce.

TONY PASTOR'S.

There is not a variety performance in the city that can interfere with Tony Pastor's Theatre or rob him of a single patron. The entertainment at this house stands alone in its complete absence of sensationalism. The performance last night was excellent. It included Nellie L'Estrange, an exceedingly bright young woman; Harry Kennedy, little Eva Bertoldi, Ross and Fenton, in "Comedy Versus Tragedy," the Glenroy brothers, Leonard and Fulton, Mlle. Carrie, the Paterson brothers, the Waltons and Kissell in "the zouave drill wonder."

EDEN MUSEE.

The O'Brien sisters were again the main attraction at the Eden Musee last night. They appeared in very gorgeous costumes, and their dances were received with as much enthusiasm as before. The days of skirt dancing are by no means over, and managers are always pretty safe in offering it as an attraction. Mlle. Zaida sang some French songs with considerable piquancy. Adele Purvis Orri contributed her various specialties and Delprade pleased with his "speaking hat" trick.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN.

Good-by to this delightful roof garden next Sunday night—or, at least, au revoir. The last week of its present Summer season began last night, and a very enjoyable entertainment was given. The artists were Mabel Stephenson, who is well-known to New Yorkers; Elsie Adair, the clever little dancer, whose "Frolic Among the Pansies" will be pleasantly remembered; Horace Randall with his funny songs, Lawlor, Rose and Martin Julian, the contortionists, and the Dore brothers. The musical programme was very seven.

PEOPLE'S THEATRE.

"McFee of Dublin" was the play at the People's Theatre last night. It is not a classic by any means, but it is funny, and its star, John T. Kelly, an Irish comedian, was quite as much appreciated as though he had been playing "Hamlet," perhaps (alas! to have to say it) more so. "McFee of Dublin," is a trifle better than the average farce-comedy. It has a plot, and it seems able to stand by itself without the assistance of specialties. It was well cast, and it undoubtedly pleased Mr. Miner's patrons.

IMPERIAL MUSIC HALL.

"The best variety hall in America," says Teddy Marks, referring to his entertainment at the Imperial Music Hall last night. Well, without being as wilfully enthusiastic as Mr. Marks, it must be admitted that the programme was without flaw. Those who appeared were Marie Collins, the Avelos, the Tacchis, Cissy Lind, Alice Delmore, Sherman and Morisey, Kitty Clayton, Baggesen, Edward Leslie, Hafford and Mantell, Charles Compton, A. O. Duncan, Joe Flynn and Kinzo Kaneko.

DORIS'S MUSEUM.

"Not Guilty; or, Caught in the Web," is the fetching title of the melodrama that was played in Theatre No. 1, of Doris's Eighth Avenue Museum yesterday. Mr. Doris calls the piece "the Windy City melodrama, as played in Hooley's Theatre, Chicago," and there is no reason to discredit his assertion. The company presenting it did it justice. In Theatre No. 2 the Trocadero Novelty Company gave hourly entertainments, and in Theatre No. 3 Fitzgerald's Mummers were to be seen.

HUBER'S MUSEUM.

The French Novelty Company gave variety performances in the theatorium of Huber's Museum yesterday. Larry Tooley and his wife were, perhaps, the best of the artists. They presented a sketch entitled "The Coming Man," that met with much favor. In the curio halls were five lady sprinters, who indulged in races of 400 yards for prizes. The races were run on specially constructed machines, and they were watched by crowds of interested people. Such contests are always sure of appreciation.

ELDORADO.

There was no "King Solomon" at Eldorado yesterday. The mighty and gorgeous monarch has been put on the shelf. Instead, there was a vaudeville show in the afternoon and evening, and these entertainments will be continued indefinitely. The features of the show were little Freddie, "the boy wonder," the Ali Baba troupe of Arabian acrobats, and Lizzie Vaidis, whose sensational jump into a net is well worth seeing. There was a good band, and Eldorado was well patronized.

CASINO ROOF GARDEN.

There was a nice collection of clever people at the Casino Roof Garden last night. There were the Bissots, fresh from the veneer of Europe; Civetti, the shadowgraphist and juggler; Collins and Hendshaw, who were comic in a comic sketch; the Emmetts, who danced; Billy Carter, with his loquacious banjo; Frank Moran, whose "few brief remarks" were as funny and as apropos as ever; Connie Leslie, and four French dancers who did the quadrille that was a feature of last season's "Black Crook."

AMERICAN ROOF GARDEN.

The American Roof Garden will close its staircases and elevators next Saturday night. It was open last night, when a very good programme was offered. The attractions were the Frantz family, who leave for Europe very shortly; McBride and Goodrich, Nellie Page and Josie Dott, the Kawa-Kamis, Lady Mangel and several others. In the theatre "the Prodigal Daughter" celebrated its one hundredth performance. There was a large audience, and interest in the sporting drama is evidently unimpaired.

FELL AND JACKSON IN THE LEAD

Pennsylvania Republicans to Nominate a State Ticket.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 29.—It looks as though the Republican State Convention will be a harmonious assemblage, and Judge Fell, of Philadelphia, for Supreme Justice, and Col. Jackson, of Armstrong, for State Treasurer, will probably have things their own way. Haywood, of Mercer, is practically out of the fight. Speaker Thompson, of Warren, is here and a few of his friends, notably A. L. Taggart, of Montgomery, are advising him to stand firm, but the impression is that he will withdraw before the Convention meets and give Col. Jackson a clear field. The latter is here and has created a favorable impression.

The platform will declare for repeal and against the demonetization of silver and free coinage, with a recommendation in favor of the coinage of a fixed amount in silver annually, at the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury.

The pension policy of the present administration will be severely scored, and there will be a strong protective tariff plank, with a reference to the present business depression as the result of proposed revision of the tariff.

TO-NIGHT'S FISTIC AFFAIRS.

Billy Smith and Tommy Ryan to Meet at Coney Island.

Dempsey's Return Celebrated in a Lavish Way—Other Gossip.

A boxing exhibition that Billy Madden might have given at the Eldorado, if he hadn't insisted on corralling the first $2,000 and then 50 per cent. of the receipts after that, will take place at the Coney Island Athletic Club to-night. But Judge Newton will not let suave

BILLY SMITH.

William in on the ground floor, on anything like the above named terms. Madden tried to lease the Madison Square Garden and failed, and so the Coney Island people just stepped in blandly and saved Madden's bacon. The entertainment ought to pan out quite interestingly, for the programme has several really good features. The best card of the lot is the six-round bout between Billy Smith and Tommy Ryan. They are pacemakers in the art of punching, and the gait they will strike to-night is sure to be a swift one.

TOMMY RYAN.

The balance of the show will be furnished by Fred Morris, the "Black Cyclone" and Billy Hennessey, for six rounds, and a ten-round wind-up between Muldoon's "Pickaninny" and Henry Fennick, the "Arkansas Kid."

At the popular prices of $1, $2 and $3, it looks like a capital show for a paper, and if that whirling dervish of a cyclone, which zigzagged over the country last night doesn't cut up any more antics, the seashore amphitheatre ought to be well filled.

Jack Dempsey is at last in town, and his return to metropolitan sporting circles was accomplished last night under the most approved fanfare methods by Gus Tuthill, his manager, and the Columbia Athletic Club. Money fled lavishly in Jack's honor at the clubhouse, 115 East Seventeenth street, and the favorite fighter received his friends and admirers with much eclat. Dempsey appeared to be in excellent health. He is hog-fat, however, and must needs train long and arduously to put himself into first-class battling condition. A closer study of Jack in the sunlight will give one a better idea of his general condition. One thing is sure, he is not insane now. He is willing to meet Dick Burge or any one that Gus Tuthill selects, but Jack declares he will never again fight at more that 142 pounds. His weight now is about 155 or 160 pounds. Dempsey will undoubtedly have a tremendous crowd at his benefit in the Grand Central Palace next Monday night. He thoroughly deserves it all, for he was the quickest to put on the gloves in behalf of a fellow-pugilist in adversity. Now that circumstances have placed Dempsey among those who need ready money, the public will probably demonstrate its generosity, as the New York public always does.

Bob Fitzsimmons telegraphed last night that he would surely wind up with Dempsey, and Jim Corbett will give an exhibition with his sporting partner, Prof. John Donaldson.

A genuine surprise was caused in yesterday's opening games between Fred Hovey and Clarence Hobart, in the all-comers' tennis tournament at Newport when Hovey defeated Hobart three straight sets, taking 12 games to Hobart's 8, 111 aces to 89, 42 passes to 35, 40 outs to 27, 27 nets to 21, and one double fault to four. Heretofore, every time they met Hobart galloped away from Hovey.

R. D. Wrenn won the other match from Sam Chase, and the finals, which are being played to-day between Hovey and Wrenn, look like gifts to Hovey in his excellent form of yesterday. But sometimes things are upset in tennis as in other sports and pastimes.

George Dixon is trying to force Billy Plimmer into agreeing to meet him in a finish go at 114 pounds weight. He taunts the Englishman with "blowing," as the appended card sent to "The World" shows:

"In regard to the challenge to Billy Plimmer, issued in my behalf by Tom O'Rourke, through 'The World,' I will say that I will bet Plimmer $5,000 of my own money, or more if he wishes, that I will beat him in a finish fight at 114 pounds. I have always been giving away weight to everybody. In this case I do so again, while Plimmer will not have to give away an ounce, as he well knows. When I fought Cal McCarthy I weighed only 97 pounds to his 111, so Plimmer's talk about my being way over his weight is all bluff. If he does not accept this challenge, or make some effort to cover the $1,000 deposited in your hands, at least he should stop blowing. A four-round contest does not constitute a fight. GEORGE DIXON, Featherweight Champion of the World."

Tom O'Rourke adds that Plimmer "hasn't the heart to travel as far as a finish fight. These boys surely ought to get together.

SPORTING GOSSIP OF ALL SORTS.

James Stansbury, champion oarsman of the world, has written a letter to Mr. Fox asking for the return of the $500 he deposited with him to bind a match with any man on the world. Stansbury says: "I do not see the use of staying any longer in America as Jack Gaudaur, the champion oarsman of America, who claims the Police Gazette championship rowing cup, which implies also the world championship of America, refuses to arrange a match unless he has his own backer as final stakeholder. Gaudaur will not row in any of the Western or Southern States either. I will give him $500 for expenses, which I think is quite unreasonable. Although I hold the championship of the world, I will row any man in the world for $5,000 a side, or for the Police Gazette championship challenge cup, the race to take place over the Parramatta River, Sydney, New South Wales, Jack Gaudaur preferred, and I will allow $500 expenses."

At the next monthly games of the Pastime Athletic club, which take place on Saturday, Sept. 2, H. H. Morrell will give an exhibition over the hurdles.

The Lenox Wheelmen's road races at Louisville, S. L., resulted as follows: One mile, scratch, Will Holman, first; Walter Herman, second. Two-mile handicap, Machman, scratch, first; Hammelsbach, 4-min. second. The result of the five-mile handicap is in dispute, but Prohlaska will undoubtedly be given first place.

Prof. Palmer and John Collins will swim from McDonald's Pavilion, Bayonne, to Lighthouse, S. I., for $200 a side, it is said, on Sunday next.

The Pittsburgs defeated the New Yorks yesterday, 3 to 2. The record to-day stands:

	Won.	Lost.	Per Cent.		Won.	Lost.	Per Cent.

The Sea Beach Railroad will run special trains to and from Coney Island to-night to accommodate the patrons of the show at the Coney Island Athletic Club.

This despatch comes from Boston this morning: "The Jubilee has her crew on board, and Capt. Barr believes he has a good lot of men. The owner of the Marguerite sent three of his best sailors on board yesterday, and four good ones were sent from the Lookout. About half of the old crew unshipped or their places yesterday afternoon, but they were refused employment. The Jubilee will not hand out an East Boston crew. Bets were laid to-day that she will not win in New York. It would take at least two days to get from Boston to New York, and in this time she would foul up some. The Jubilee will take part in the trial races next week."

The Union Pacific has formally given notice to its switchmen that a 10 per cent. reduction in their salaries is to be made.

His Cordial Grip.

(From Life.)

Stokes—The President of your company seems to take quite an interest in you now.

Clarkly—What makes you think so?

Stokes—I notice he has fallen into the habit of shaking hands with you when he comes into the office in the morning.

Clarkly—Yes; he thinks it's cheaper than raising my salary.

THOUGHT THEM WIRE TAPPERS.

Three Men Arrested While in Performance of Their Duties.

The police of the West One Hundred and Fifty-second street station reported this morning that they had arrested three men, charged with tapping the Western Union wires which convey news of the races to poolrooms in Fort Lee. The men are Benjamin F. Barrett, a lineman, August Cranshaw, an operator, and Michael Carney, an engineer.

Barrett climbed a pole at the foot of One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street and attached a copper wire to one of the wires on the pole. Cranshaw then received messages intended for the poolrooms in the station in a box he had. The messages were repeated to the other side of the river by signals with a flag.

Some people bathing in the vicinity noticing these actions notified the police and the arrests followed. It transpired at the police station that the men were sent by the Western Union Company to repair the cable which crosses the river at that point, and the box relay was used in order to avoid any delay to the poolrooms in receiving their news while the repairs were being made.

Capt. Killilea satisfied himself that the story told by the arrested men was correct and immediately discharged them.

RUFUS F. ANDREWS DEAD.

Was Surveyor of the Port During Lincoln's Administration.

News comes from Swampscott, Mass., today of the death in that village Sunday night of Rufus F. Andrews, who was Surveyor of the Port of New York during President Lincoln's first Administration, and was after the war and almost down to the day of his death an active Republican worker and lawyer in this city. He was sixty-eight years old, having been born at Medina, O., in May, 1825. He studied law in Rutland, Vt., and was secretary to Gov. Paul Dillingham of that State, marrying the Governor's niece. He came to New York in 1853, and was associated politically with Seward, Greeley and Thurlow Weed.

He was, through an accident, one of the group about Lincoln's deathbed, being in Washington as an applicant for the Collector of Customs District-Attorneyship, and accompanying Attorney-General Bates to the President's sick room.

Mr. Andrews was in the office of Peter B. Sweeney, and took part in the famous prosecution of the Tweed ring. He leaves two sons, Addison F. and Herbert C. Andrews. He died suddenly of paralysis. His body is expected to arrive in this city this evening.

HIS ENTERPRISE BALKED.

Greenhaut's Stand Confiscated and He Wants His Money Returned.

Morris Greenhaut, of 214 East Third street, has, through his attorney, Alfred B. Jaworower, of the Pulitzer Building, commenced an action against E. Schreiber, an east-side saloon-keeper and a leading light in any number of lodges.

On April 4 last Schreiber leased to Greenhaut a stand in front of one of his saloons, corner Ridge and Stanton streets, where Greenhaut proposed to enter into the business of dispensing soda water, cigars and cigarettes. Greenhaut was to have the privilege for $400 per year for one year, and paid $100 security for rent.

On June 23 the Department of Incumbrances removed the stand, and Greenhaut now sues to recover his $100, and claims that inasmuch as the hiring is in violation of a corporation ordinance which forbids landlords from renting stands for a consideration the contract was void.

SETTLED OUT OF COURT.

Gen. Hamilton and His Wife Make Up Their Quarrel.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Mrs. Sarah E. Hamilton, the wife of Gen. Alexander Hamilton, has withdrawn her application for proceedings to have her husband declared a lunatic, and the family difficulty has been settled out of court.

Counsel for both sides appeared before Judge Dykman here several days ago and matters were then adjusted, although the fact has only just leaked out. It is said that Gen. Hamilton agreed to give up his acquaintance with Mrs. Freeman and to live with his wife, either in New York or Washington, allowing her $1,500 a year. She in turn withdraws her charges of cruelty against him and agrees to live with him wherever he chooses.

It is stated that one of the chief causes of the disagreement between them was the avowal of Gen. Hamilton for Tarrytown, where his wife resides and living, she is now reported to be preparing to leave Tarrytown to join her husband.

In Darkest Indiana.

(From Judge.)

Commercial Tourist (to woman standing at farm-house gate)—Excuse me, ma'am; I seem to have lost my way. Can you tell me if this road goes to Pulaskiville?

Woman—Wa-al, stranger, I'm rather new fer these parts myself, but thar's my husband stan'in' in the door thar, he kin tell yer.

Commercial Tourist—Great heavings! That man your husband! Why, he's a nigger! Is that the best a good-lookin' white woman like you can do round here—marry a nigger?

Woman—I dunno—mebbe so. Even at that I does better'n my sister. She married an Evansville drummer.

To Fight It Out.

(From Truth.)

Minnie—Bessie and Jack are engaged.

Helen—Why, they never meet without fighting!

Minnie—Yes, and now they are going to get married in order to be able to fight it out.

FROM THE WORLD OF LABOR.

Daniel Suiter will represent Brewers' Union No. 1 at the coming Convention of the Journeyman Brewers National Union.

Saddle and Harness Makers' Union No. 28 is agitating for shortening from piece work to day work as proposed to the Convention of the National organization.

Cabinet Makers' Union No. 7 has called a special meeting for this evening to consider changes to be made in the reorganization of its employment and business office.

The St. Louis Trade and Labor Union has requested the Board of Education in that city to insist that union workmen be employed on the repairs in the schools of St. Louis.

Walker & sons, paper manufacturers at Burnside, Conn., have a contract to supply the Internal Revenue Department with 200 tons of paper. Wages were cut 10 per cent after the contract was received.

The Brewer Association of the Fourth Assembly District, whose headquarters is at 91 Delancey street, has changed its meeting nights to the second and fourth Tuesday of every month. Sam Chrystal has been elected Secretary.

Machinists' Union No. 2 has appointed a special committee to submit instructions for the delegate to the National Convention. The next regular meeting will be on Wednesday, Sept. 6, as no meeting will be held on Labor Day.

Cans will be supplied by the Indianapolis Trade and Labor Council to all working girls who will take part in the Labor Day parade of that city. These cans will bear fac-similes of the different trade labels.

James A Wright, Master Workman of National Trade Assembly 231, K. of L., garment workers, lie in St. Louis trying to bring about an agreement between the striking garment workers of that city and their employers. The men demand the ten hour workday.

President William J. Gaskin has called a special meeting of the General Executive Board of the Potters' National Trade Assembly for to-morrow evening in Trenton, N. J. Important questions relating to the depression in business are to be discussed.

H. Batterman, of Brooklyn, has notified the United Garment Workers that he does not sell any garments made at non-union shops, and especially that he is not doing business with Meyer Jonasson & Co., whom the U. G. W. are fighting.

The boilermakers and iron ship builders of Brooklyn have given up their fight for nine hours for the present, as the employers stated that during the general depression they would be compelled to close if the nine-hour day were insisted upon.

Frank L. Rossman, successor to S. Kelliher as Grand Secretary of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen, was one of the founders of that organization. He has served two years as Recorder of Kanawha County, Iowa, and was for several years a member of the Brotherhood's General Executive Board.

For failing to attend the last regular meeting of Brewers' Union No. 1, the shop delegates from Beobtel's and Schmitt & Schwanenflugel's breweries have been fined $2 each. For the Labor Day parade H. Wendt was elected marshal of the day, and Messrs. Zirk, Lutz and Bonkopf will be the standard bearers.

August Raffo has been elected Secretary of the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum Association. The action of the Board of trustees in refusing to sign a contract with the Brooklyn Waiters and Bartenders's Union, which contained conditions alleged to be detrimental to the interests of the Association, was sustained by a vote of eleven against two.

The members of the Labor Day committee of the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum have decided that in spite of the industrial and financial depression the parade next Monday will be as large as on any previous Labor Day in Brooklyn. In place of John J. Kennedy, who resigned, Grand Marshal Cannon has appointed Edwin Freiberg to act as one of his aides.

The Relief Committee for the unemployed appointed by the International Labor Exchange Conference has sent a circular letter to a number of well-known public men asking them to give lectures for the benefit of the Relief Fund. Among those so asked are John Swinton, Robert G. Ingersoll, Hugh O. Pentecost, Oliver Teall, Mr. Gaffney, Father Dacey, P. J. McGuire and Henry George.

Jacob Milch, Secretary of the United Hebrew Trades Union, denies the charges made at last Sunday's session of the Labor Conference at 257 East Tenth street, that the Relief Committee of the U. H. T. U. only gives to those who belong to their affiliated unions. Mr. Milch asserts that any man, woman or child who applies to them for bread and other necessaries of life is given relief just as long as any provisions are in store.

August J. Jos, Thomas J. Keenan and Michael A. Brown have been appointed as a special committee by Machine Wood Workers' Union No. 41 to arrange agitation meetings for the purpose of gaining new members. Another committee is to go to the American Order of Stair Builders to insist that they compel all machine wood workers with whom they are working to join the union, or strike in a body. Ed. Kelly, of Eichman & Co., unless the men working there become members of the organization. A vote of thanks was tendered to Cabinet Makers' Union No. 8 and Carpenters' No. 281 for assisting in procuring work for unemployed machine wood workers.

All local unions of the Journeymen Tailors' Union of America have been advised by their general officers to defer all strikes during the present industrial crisis, as there is hardly any chance of winning strikes under present conditions. Reductions of wages have been received from all parts of the country, and if the members were to strike in all these places the Union would go to pieces in less than no time. In many cities where tailors were on strike the benefit fund has stopped, as the funds would be exhausted if benefits were continued. The receipts last month at Secretary John B. Lennon's office amounted to $2,887.15, and $2,503.05 has been expended. There is a balance of $8,435.61, and $3,066.82 is in the strike fund.

Of an Agricultural Turn.

"I think Benny will make a farmer," said Mrs. Bloobumper to her husband.

"What makes you think that?"

"I found him picking the seeds out of some seed cake I had given him, and he said he was going to plant them and raise all the cake he could eat."
