AUCTION SALES.

Virginia Midland Railroad

FOR SALE AT PUBLIC AUCTION

By virtue of and in obedience to a decree rendered by the Circuit Court for the city of Alexandria in the chancery cause of John C. Graham vs. the Washington City, Virginia Midland and Great Southern Railroad Company and others, I shall, in front of the Market Building, on Royal street, in the city of Alexandria, in the State of Virginia, at twelve (12) o'clock m.,

ON MONDAY, THE TWENTIETH DAY OF DECEMBER, 1880

sell at public auction to the highest bidder, the following described property:

The ENTIRE LINE OF RAILROAD known as the Washington City, Virginia Midland and Great Southern Railroad, lying between the city of Alexandria and the city of Danville, and from the town of Manassas, in the county of Prince William, on the aforesaid main line, to the town of Harrisonburg, in the county of Rockingham, together with all the branches thereof as they now exist with all appurtenances and equipments, rights, privileges, franchises, properties, real and personal, and works to the said railroad and branches respectively belonging, or in any wise appertaining, including the roadway and tracks, rails and road bed, side tracks, bridges, viaduct, trestles, fences, stations, depots, machine shops and all other buildings and structures, docks and wharves, sand and gravel pits and deposits of materials and all other things belonging to, or used or designed to be used, for or in connection with the said railroad or branch railroads respectively, together with all locomotives and tenders, freight and passenger cars and all other cars and all other rolling stock or equipment whatsoever, machinery, tools and all materials for the use of said railroad or any of its branches and all other personal property thereunto belonging, including all property and things whatsoever of any such nature or description as is above mentioned. The said line of railway and branches extends a total distance of 346 miles.

The purchaser of said road and property above described will also be substituted to the rights and assume the responsibilities of said defendant company under a contract between said company and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, dated on the 20th day of August, 1873 whereby the said Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company leases from said defendant company so much of the said road as lies between Strasburg and Harrisonburg and so much of said road as lies between said points will be sold subject to said lease.

The said purchaser will further take said road and other property subject to the contracts made under orders of the Circuit Court of the city of Alexandria by the Receiver in said suit with the Charlottesville and Rapidan Railroad Company and the Franklin and Pittsylvania Railroad company—and subject to all other contracts of the Receiver in regard to said property, whether made under order of the Court or not, and will assume all his liabilities thereunder. Should the purchaser not comply with the terms of sale, there will be a resale at his cost and risk.

Terms: The terms upon which said Commissioner shall sell said property as set forth in the said degree are—cash as to a sum of money equal to the principal and interest of all bonds secured by deeds of trust on said property or any part thereof, except those secured by the deed of trust of the defendant corporation, dated on the 1st of May, 1873, in which D. H. Miller, Robert Garrett and John W. Burke are trustees, and for a further amount of cash equal to the past due interest on the debt secured by that deed; as to a sum equal to the principal of the debt which has been heretofore ascertained to be due under said deed, on such credit as will meet the amount of said debt at maturity, taking care that as to such deferred payments provision be made for the purchaser to so pay interest on the purchase money in instalments that the interest so to be paid by him shall meet the coupons for interest yet to fall due on said principal—as to residue of the purchase money on a credit of one, two and three years, with interest from date of sale.

For the deferred payment as above provided the Commissioner shall take the obligations of the purchaser and return them with his report of sale, when the Court will direct how the payment of the same shall be secured by some satisfactory lien on the premises sold.

Of the cash, which it is herein provided shall be required on the sale of said property, two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000) shall be paid to the Commissioner within five days after said sale, and the residue shall be paid by the purchaser upon the confirmation of said sale in such manner as the Court in the decree of confirmation may direct.

TOMBSTONE ADVERISEMENTS.—Perhaps the most unexpected of all epitaphs are those in which the mourning relatives of the deceased endeavor to make a little money out of their grief, or to convert their sorrow into a little bit of trading or shopkeeping. We must acquit the dead man of any participation in the manœuver; the epitaph is written when he is no longer in a condition to criticise it; and his poor bones are made ancillary to a trade advertisement.

Take the following as an example: Here lies the body of James Hambrick, who was accidentally shot in the Pecus River by a young man; with one of Colt's large revolvers, with no stopper for the hammer to rest on. It was one of the old fashioned sort, brass mounted; and of such is the kingdom of Heaven." Or the following: In one of the cemeteries near Paris, a small lamp some years ago was kept burning under an urn over a grave; and an inscription on the grave stone ran thus when translated into english: "Here lies Pierre Victor Fournier, inventor of the Everlasting Lamp, which consumes only one centime's worth of oil in one hour. He was a good farther, son and husband. His inconsolable widow continues his business in the Rue aux Trois. Goods sent to all parts of the city. Do not mistake the opposite shop for this."

A tapster at Upton on Severn certainly had an eye to the main chance, if he really inscribed the following epitaph on his father's grave-stone:

Beneath this stone, in hope of Zion,
Doth lie the landlord of the Lion;
His son keeps on the business still,
Resigned unto the Heavenly will.

And not less so an American stonemason, who made the same tombstone serve the double purpose of a mortuary memorial and a trade advertisement: "Here lies Jane Smith, wife of Thomas Smith, marble cutter. This monument was erected by her husband as a tribute to her memory, and as a specimen of his work. Monuments in this style, two hundred and fifty dollars."

The lady to whom is attributed one graveyard effusion had her thoughts unquestionably directed, if not to trade and shopkeeping at least to matrimonial possibilities: "Sacred to the Memory of James H. K——, who died August 6, 1880. His widow, who mourns as one who can be comforted, aged twenty four, and possessing every quality for a good wife, lives at ——."

A JUDGMENT OF SOLOMON.—In some ancient manuscripts in France occurs the following interesting story, which has no place in the Bible itself, though it is in the original prefixed to the Proverbs of Solomon. It appears to have been a great favorite in the middle ages; and was often related from the pulpit. A king, in some domestic difference with his wife, had been told by her that one only of her three sons was a true offspring, but which of them was so she refused to discover. This gave him much uneasiness; and, his death soon afterward approaching, he called his children together, and declared, in the presence of witnesses, that he left a ring, which had very singular properties, to him that should be found to be his lawful son, and that to him too, should belong his kingdom. On his death a dispute arose about the ring between the youths—and it was at length agreed to refer its decision to the King of Jerusalem. He immediately ordered that the dead body of his father should be taken up and tied to a tree; that each of the sons should shoot an arrow at it, and that he who penetrated the deepest should have the ring. The eldest shot first, and the arrow went far into the body; the second shot also, and deeper than the other. The youngest son stood at a distance and wept bitterly; but the king said to him: "Young man, take your arrow and shoot as your brothers have done." He answered: "Far be it from me to commit so great a crime. I would not for the whole world disfigure the body of my own father." The king said: "Without doubt you are his son, and the others are changelings; to you, therefore, I adjudge the ring."

DEBILITATED DIGESTION.—In the "Memoirs of Count Segur" there is the following anecdote: "My mother the Countess de Segur, being asked by Voltaire respecting her health, told him that the most painful feeling she had arose from the decay of her stomach and the difficulty of finding any kind of aliment that it could bear. Voltaire, by way of consolation, assured her that he was once for nearly a year in the same state, and believed to be incurable, but that nevertheless a very simple remedy had restored him. It consisted in taking no other nourishment than yolks of eggs beaten up with the flour of potatoes and water." Though this circumstance took place as far back as fifty years ago, and respected so extraordinary a person as Voltaire, it is astonishing how little it is known, and how rarely the remedy has been practiced. Its efficacy, however, in cases of debility, can not be questioned and the following is the mode of preparing this valuable article of food as recommended by Sir John Sinclair: Beat up an egg in a bowl and then add six tablespoonfuls of cold water, mixing the whole well together; then add two tablespoonfuls of farina of potatoes; let it be mixed thoroughly with the liquor in the bowl. Then pour in as much boiling water as will convert the whole into a jelly and mix it well. It may be taken alone or with the addition of a little milk, in case of stomachic debility or consumptive disorders. This dish is light and easily digested, extremely wholesome and nourishing. Bread or biscuit may be taken with it as the stomach grows stronger.
